Sewing on the buttons; Overseeing rations;
Soothing with a kind word
Others Ismentations;
Guiding clumy Bridgets,
And coaxing sullen cooks;
Entertaining company,
And reading recent books—
Woman's work.

Burying out of sight
Her own unhealing smarts;
Letting in the sunshine
On other clouded hearts;
Binding up the wounded,
And healing of the sick;
Bravely marching onward,
Through dangers dark and thick—
Woman's work.

Woman's work.

Leading little chiblren,
And blessing manhood's years;
Showing to the sinful
How God's forgiveness cheers;
Souttering sweet roses
Along moether's path;
Smilling by the wayside,
Content with what she hath—
Woman's work.

Letting fall her own tears,
Where only God can see;
Wiping off another's
With tender sympathy;
Learning by experience;
Teaching by example;
Yearning for the gateway,
Golden, pearly, ample—
Woman's work.

Lastly cometh silence,
A day of deep reperse—
Her locks smoothly braided,
Upon her breast a rose;
Lastes resting gently
Upon the marble check; Upon the marble check;
A look of blessed pease
Upon the forehead meck!

Pale hands softly folded,
The kindly pulses still:
The lips know no smiling,
The noble hear no thaill;
Her couch needs no smoothin
She craveth for no ear;
Love's tanderest entreaty
Wakes no responses there.

Fresh grave in the valley— Tears, bitter sobs, regret; One more solemn terson That life may not forget. Face forever hidden,

Race forever run—
"Dust to dust," a voice saith,
And woman's work is done.

HOME WEDDINGS.

What scene on earth is fairer than a wedding in the house? There are no weddings like home weddings. The church is well enough for those who cannot do better. But to a child, no cathedral can be like that chief and foremost church of the heart, the father's house! This is the church within the church. There, where the daughter was reared, and taught in all womanly grace, and equipped with housewifely habits, ought she to be married. Around her all the tender associations of childhood, of love, and happiness. Her new life should date happiness. Her new life should date every taste and is every taste and is every taste and is every style april, 70 from the nest in which her old life was bred. In Europe, marriage is regarded as a sacrament, and as requiring, at least in a moral point of view, the special grace of which the priest is held to be the divine depository, to make it sacred and safe, we can understand why the young applicants for domestic life-happiness should repair to the church. And when, for centuries, generation after generation have been married in the village church, we can understand how a thousand associations would surround that charmed spot, and meatien, to be had at village church, we can understand surround that charmed spot, and make it sacred to love as it is to de-

If there is an act in one's whole life STONE - WARE POTTERY, that belongs to home, it is marriage. If one has no home, there is a go reason why, next to that, she should repair to a church. But we never could understand the feeling that leads a child, tenderly reared in an ample mansion, surrounded by en-deared objects, to leave the roof under which life has been spent, and repair for the marriage service to that most which he offers to farmers and builders at a triffe unhomelike place, a church. It is above cost. Those in need of the article would de true that, to a devout nature, the as well to give me a call, or address me by letter, before negotiating their lime. sociations connected with a church are many and precious. But they are not domestic. They are solemn, away from common life, almost the antithesis of that social and summery atmosphere in which two hearts ripen into

Without uncharitableness, it may be feared that too many persons have regard to the show, the brilliant impression made upon the admiring life is bribed by vanity, to serve in its monorel service. But these censures. are not to apply to those bouseless creatures that in marriage seek a home; nor to those of big hearts and small houses, who have troops of friends without room to receive them; nor, in short, to any whose hearts do not bound at the name of home, as the dearest and most sacred place on carth. Happy are they who are mar-ried under the roof where they were born, and who, when in their own house, can see the smoke from their father's house, the home of childhood, the paradise of memory!

It crops up here and there against you, requiring more lies, and at last, too often, has to be admitted as a lie-most usually so admitted in silence, but still admitted, to be forgiven or not, according to the circumstances of the case.

By the light of reason we cast a sort of glaring illusion around ourselves; but, if confided in, it tends only to obscure our vision of more exalted glories. Illuminate a town; the streets are light, while the heavens are lost in darkness; but when the day breaks forth, both the earth and the sky becomes visible. So the sparks of our own kindling, while they shed an ar-tificial brilliancy for a short distance around us, involve the scenes above in shadows even darker than those of night; but if the "day-spring from on high" dawn in the soul, we have clear the 9- years both of earth and heaven.

How to Save Money.

THE times are bard; you'd like to know How you may save your dollars; The way to do it I will show, If you will read what follows.

A man who lived not far from here, Who worked hard at his trade, But had a household to support That squandered all he made.

I met him once. Says he, "My friend, I look thread bear and rough; I've tried to get myzelf a suit, But can't save up enough." Says I, my friend, bow much have you?

I'll tell you where to go To got a suit that's sound and cheap : To REIZENSTEIN & Co. He took what little he had saved,
And went to Reiseastein & Brothers',
And there he got a handsome suit,
For half he paid to others.

Now he is home, he looks so well, And their effect is such, That when they take their daily meal, They don't eat half as much.

And now he finds on Saturday night, With all their wants supplied, That he has money left to spend, And some to lay aside. His good success, with cheerful smile,

He gladly tells to all.
