"The Rochester Convention presents to the country in one respect a gratifying contrast to the Syrneuse gathering of last week. Its proceedings thus far have been orderly and dignified, while those of the Republicans were marked by somes of rowdyism worthy of the palmiost days of the Empire Club or the Market organization. or the Empire Unb or the Morart organization. The time was when Democracy was supposed to be a spoonym for ruffinnism at all public meetings, but if we are to judge from the experience of the present year the political parties appear to have explanged characteristics, and the highling, amearing, endgelling and shoulder hitting seem to be monopolized by the hitherte respectable republicans."

The Sun says : The contrast between the Republican and Democratic State Conventions is worth noting. The Grant Convention was packed mith roughs and pulsarine, who assaled the Greeky delegates and disgraced the meeting by a terrible row. The Democrate stitled their differences before the Convention began, and everything moved of quietly, no roughs or policeman being present."
