Of the Public School.

A Singular Occurrence.

The Washington, (Pa.) papers publish the following occurrence of a singular case of horse stealing that recently took place in that country : Some two weeks ago, a trio of Carrol township boys being in our place attending court, Messrs Nelson, Henry and Wylie, started home about mid night, going up the pike on horseback. At the Valley Ian School House, they halted to have a moment's talk before separating. While there a man rode The boys hastily down the pike. thinking that he, like themselves, was out sparking, determined to find out who he was, and where he had been. So they called out in sport, "Stop, would meet Thief! Halt!" The rider instead of the same. stopping spurred on his horse, and arriving at Hamilton's Store took up the Nelson's read home, he followed, still crying out halt, stop! The stranger finding himself in danger of being overtaken, wheeled his horse into a fence joke was taking, Nelson called out to Country Produce. the unknown to come back, that it was only fun, and that he did not want his horse. No attention was paid to this, however, but the mysterious stranger fled into and through the woods, and out of sight. Nelson took the horse back to the pike, and meeting Mr Newell, it was put in his stable, at Valley Inn. Now comes the queer part of the ". P. WEAVER ..... The next morning, Mr. James Williams came down the pike with the word that a borse had been stolen from Mr. Isane Stacher the night be WEAVER & BETTS fore, and that he was on his way to our town to telegraph the news to dif-ferent points. He was told about the strange borse in Newell's stable, and on going there found the lost animal So the intended joke turned out to be the capture of an actual horse thiefand no wonder the rascal was scared when the young men called out Stop Thief! He had been quite cool about it too, for having first caught the horse in a field at Stacher's, he took him into the stable where he fed him be fore he saddled, bridled and rode him off. This is the coolest piece of rognery we have recently met, and bbout the best result of a joke.

English and Irish Emigration.

Recent statistics exhibit a remarkable fact with reference to the emigration from England and Ireland. For many years statistics have shown the unexpected result of an increasing Square Timber, Boards, Shingles, with a decreasing emigration Ireland. Last year, for the first time in the annuls of British emigration, the actual number of persons who left English shores exceeded the Irish emigrants, the exact number being— England, 68,935; Ireland, 67,897. The fact is that low wages, commer cial depression, the monopoly of land in the hands of a few, and the general dissatisfaction of the people with their political institutions, are daily driving a larger proportion of Englishmen lish statesmen and publicists are al ready foreseeing with alarm an exodus on even a more awful scale than that The First of the Season! by which, from a thousand open wounds, the life blood of Ireland so freely poured. Well, indeed, may the patriotic Englishman look with alarm on the present condition of his country. Its army, a mere handful as com pared with the gigantic hosts of Coninental Europe, cannot march thirty miles without a bungle. Her naval KRATZER & LYTLE. officers, heirs to the fame but not to the genius of Nelson, run splendid vessels on rocks as well known to the Your Groories, anilor as the column in Sackville street is to a citizen in Dublin. France, Germany, and Belgium are producing better and cheaper wares than can be turned out from Manchester spinning Your Shoe Findings, mills or Birmingham smithies. And, to add to all this, insufficient work and low pay are leaving her artisans little alternative between semi-starvation and exile. For any sufferings of the English working people we in Ireland have the heartiest and most unleigned sympathy. It was not a voice from the people, it was a spokesman of a cold hearted aristocracy and a selfish bourgroisic, which in the hour of our mortal agony, exclaimed with brutal exultation; "The Celt is gone-gone J with a vengeance.

A North Carolina colored parer was recently seen making tracks for the Virginia line and upon being accosted by a gentleman as to whither he was going, confessed with dismay that he was fleeing the State, as he had just the clary was to be hung."

How to Save Money.

- THE times are bard; you'd like to know How you may save your dollars; The way to do it I will show, If you will read what follows. A man who lived not far from here, Who worked hard at his trade, But had a household to support That squandered all he made.
- I met him once. Says he, "My friend, I look thread bear and rough;
- I've tried to get myself a suit, But can't save up enough."
- Says I, my friend, how much have you? I'll tell you where to go To got a suit that's sound and cheap: To REIZENSTEIN & Co.
- He took what little he had saved, And went to Reisenstein & Brothers', And there he got a bandsome suit, For half he paid to others.
- Now he is home, he looks so well, And their effect is such. That when they take their daily meal, They don't eat haif as much.
- And now he finds on Saturday night, With all their wants supplied, That he has money left to spend, And some to lay aside.
- His good success, with cheerful smile, He gladly tells to all. If you'd save money, go and buy Your clothes at—
