HISTORY OF THE UNITED STATES.

While countless ages slowly passed away, The western world in heathen darkness lay. The God of nature bere laid interwined The grandest features of our globs designed. Huge mountain systems rose in towering might, With peaks illumined by coleanis light. Unanunbered rivers through the tranquil land, Plowed ouward toward the distant stormy stran-

e and, And gaverns yawned for miles beneath the ground. Fresh water lakes spread out among the trees, With all the seeming of vast intend reas; Rude, savage tribes possessed the vast domains Of forest wilds and blooming prairie plains. But cultivated minds of early times, All business infracted to him will be promptly, attended to. heart-it is a jewel beyond compare-

A century passed, as history relates,
With mane to settle the United States.
But by and by, with energy inepried.
Two noted companies the land acquired;
And in the progress of succeeding years,
Half founded many homes of piencers.
Within the nation's hounds as they are traced
To-day, the following colonies were placed
In earlier times, in permanent array:
The first, St. Augustine in Fierida,
A Spanich settlement of old recown,
Sunceeded by the English at Jamostown.
St. Mary's was established in the South;
New Ansterdam quite near the Hudeon's month.
The Maythewer's presented Physician dock.
Of exiles, Isialad here on Plymenth rock;
And Roger Williams, soon exibed from themes,
Near Nazin generic floorhold Portiliance.
This is the sacred spot where first we find
Religious Tolerance to mankind;
Where Church and State were in no way combined
But werey me could thin as he inclined,
With the inalienable right assigned
To worship God according to his mind,
In Christian rectitude was cetted then,
By deede of passe, the hand of William Penn.
The story of his government allurds
Unbroken faith will all the Indian bordes.
James Ogletherpa to Georgia led the way,
Ard thus the States were formed in fair array,
By emigration from the distant Eng.
The pepulation rapidly increased.
With fire and sword and toll surrounding them,
They dazed the pertie of those wilds to atom.

The strengholds of their ancient capital.
New States were added as the years sention,
And all alarms of coming war were gone,
But brightest theirs are sometimes overcast.
With durinest iterus anof devariations yast.
As time progressed there came a fatal day,
When armies met again in mai array.
On hortile folds in traitrivinal strile,
A mation struggled for a nation's life.
The North uprose—defiance rated the hour,
The South was crushed beneath prevailing power
When four years war our countrymen had srought
And near of theod had lest their crimson stains
on bastioned heights and Southern hattle-panis
Where full four hundred thousand true and tris
Some of the Union for the Union died.
The conflict proved a mere Confederation
We are not, but a living contral Nation,
Secure alike from all external flow,
And givil war a impressantable wise.
If errors through our want of skill occur,
Our progress they can never long defer;
For Frontance directs the helm and prove,
Of thirty seven States whiled now.
What starting contrasts later ages show,
To what supersed flour hundred years age!
Where seen alone the Red Men's birth came.
Where forests ward for cointifus miles around,
Are feetile fields of cultivated ground.
Where swywain growed the democrates' eyes,
Our promient spires and towers and cities rise.
So leave events that long have passed away,
Invention and improvement's sterling worth,
Make this the happiest portion of the carth.

The search for that great Ku-Klux Conspiracy which formed the pretext for this invasion has led to some resuits which the radical leaders did not anticipate. The most of those who have been arrested are poor and simple minded countrymen from the mountainous and less fertile regions of the State. Many of them are hardly mountaineers who have had disputes with revenue officers for seizing their little stills in the hollows and fastnesses of the Bige Ridge, or have punished the negroes and mean whites who have tracked them to their haunts and have given them the information that has led to their detection and capture. Out of such maconspiracies which baunt the diseased magination of Senator Scott and his negro witnesses.
