We have borne the heat and burden Toiling painfully and slow; We have gathered in our harvest, We have gathered in our harrest, With rejoicing long ago. Leave the uplands for our children— They are strong to sow and reap ; Through the quiet Winter lowlands Our level way we keep.

'Tie a dreary country, darling, You and I are passing through;
But the road lies straight before us,
And the miles are short and few;
No more dangers to encounter...
No more bills to climb, true friend;
Nothing row but simple walking,
Till we reach our journey's end.

We have had our time of gladness; Twas a proud and impry day—
Ah! the proudest of our journey—to the great Nursery men of Western New York, Pennsylvania, New Jersey, Virginia, and Illinois. For that particular branch of the Nursery business the Dr. claims he has a location unsurpassed, and gives his reasons which look sound. First he has the soil, rich, deep, clean, and exactly adapted for the easy production of trees.—Second, he claims that experience proves there are more gentle rains that sweep up and down the Mississippi river that come just in time to the little seedlings alive, and can be relied on with more certainty than at any other point in the country where the Nursery business is carried
