WHAT I BAW IN A DREAM.

WHAT I SAW IN A DREAM. A wreck of a mass on the sidewalk, Cursing the passers by, a rows in the partor opposite, Urging a maides to 0; A handlord around with a pose, A transt begging for time, A handlord around with a pose, A transt begging for time, A hief with an officer shatting, And a schared vesser's shime. A one-legged solder with organ, Grinding for pumles and b ead, A millensire rolling in diamonde, A parent with grief-bound head; A host-hinek's ary round the corner, A had in jewels rare. A beggar thild sweeping the crosswalk, With feet both dirty and hare. A induge ched to soft roles of emine.

A judge clad in soft robes of ermine. A crimical pale in the dock, An old mother woiting in anguith. A broker counting his stock ; A sagrant with twins at her boson,

Fit type of misery's lot: A found wife with angel like meekness, Devoting her life to a sot.

A poor widow mourning and toiling, With naught but an honest name; A wanten, in powder and laces, Boldy preclaiming for alame; A "Dives" in fin purple and linen, A "Lararous" sick at the gate; The one worships God in a hovel, The other in velvent and state.

The other in vervel and state. A partor and priost, each maintaining That theirs is the only true arced; A mardorer slaying his visitin, With no one stay the dark deed; A nation arryed agoient nation, A million of bayonets glean; A million
