LOVE'S CHOICE. BY WILLIAM WINTER.

he stroller in the pensive field Doth many a 'widering flower descry; metimes to him the roses yield. Sometimes the lilies feel his eye; smetimes he takes delight in one, ometimes in all, sometimes in none.

But when, in dusky woodland ways, He sees, beside some dreaming stone, The fresh, untutared violet raise Her pleading eyes for him alone, Then makes his heart its final choice, And Nature speaks in Passion's voice.

The stroller beauty's gurden through, By many a wayward impulse led, Semetimes is charmed by gold and blue, Sometimes is charmed by gold and blue, Sometimes by loven and manifing red; Sometimes proud dame and maiden small Please just the same, or not at all.

But when, remote from pleasure's whirl,
He sees, at home's sequestered shrine,
The ardent, cheerful, guileless girl,
Of mortal mould, but soul divine—
Too good, too beautiful to know
How fair her worth and beauty show—

Then all his roving fancies panes,
Entransed by this o'erwhelming grace,
It rales him by celestial laws;
It lights a splendor in his face.
'Tis the best good that Heaven can give;
He wins it—and begins to live.

On the Eve of Battle.

Gen. Custer in his life on the Plains thus describes the prelude to what might have been a battle between the United States troops and the Indians: For a few moments appearances seemed to foreshadow anything but a peaceful issue. The infantry was in the advance, followed closely by the artillery, while my command, the cav-alry, was marching on the flank.— General Hancock, who was riding with his staff at the head of the column, coming suddenly in view of the wild fantastic battle array, which ex-tended far to our right and left and and not more than half a mile in our front, hastily sent orders to the infantry, artillery, and cavalry to form line of battle, evidently determined that if war was intended we should be prepared. The cavalry, being the last DRY - GOODS, GROCERIES to form on the right, came into line on a gallop, and, without waiting to align the ranks carefully, the command was given to "draw sabre." As the bright blades flashed from their scabbards into the morning sunlight, and the infantry brought their muskets to a carry, a most beautiful and wonderfully interesting sight was spread out before and around us, presenting a contrast which, to a military eye, must be striking. Here in battle array, facing each other, were the representatives of civilized and barbarous warfare. The one, with but few modifications, stood clothed in Square Timber, Boards, Shingles, the same rude dress, bearing the same patterned shield and weapon that his ncestors had borne centuries before; the other confronted him in the dres civilization had pronouced the most perfect. Was the comparative supe-riority of these two classes to be subjected to be mere test of war here? Such seemed the prevailing impression on both sides. All was eager anxiety and expectation. Neither side seemed to comprehend the object or intentions of the other; each was waiting for the other to deliver the first blow. A more beautiful battle-ground could not have been chosen. Not a bush or even the slightest irregularity of ground intervened between the two Arnold & Hartshorn, lines which now stood frowning and facing each other. Chiefs could be seen riding along the line as if directing and exhorting their braves to deeds of heroism. Fortunately before coming to conflict matters were explained and the two bodies were soon at work making a treaty of peace, instead of fighting.

A FEMALE KNIGHT .- The Scranton Times has an account of a great excitement among the Knights of Pythias of that place. A nice-looking person, young and genteel, came to Scranton, a few months ago, giving the name of Francis Williams. He became acquainted at the boarding Knights of Pythias lodge, and finally Willowware, Groceries, Boots & Shoes, Hats & expressed his desire to join. He was Caps, Clothing, Tobaccos, &c. Also, Flour, proposed, went through the usual Bacon, Salt, Fish, Grain, etc. routine, was elected, received the Page's degree, made a favorable impression, advanced to the second degree and was duly prepared for the for Grain, Wool and all kinds of Lumber and third or Knight's degree, but in a cortain part of the work an unfortunate pin breaking disclosed to all the officers and members present that they had been initiating and giving the degrees of the order to a woman! The mem-bers were startled and nonplussed, and dor a long while silence reigned. No one knew what to do. It was finally agreed that she should be kept under Supervision until the Worthy Grand Chancellor could be heard from.

ENEMIES .- They who are very successful in business, who achieve greatness, notoriety in any pursuit, must expect to make enemies.

So prone to petty jealousy and sordid envy is poor human nature, that who-ever becomes distinguished is sure to be a mark for the malicious spite of those who, not deserving success them-selves, are envious of the merited triumph of the more worthy. Moreover, the opposition which originates in such despicable motives is sure to be of the most unscrupulous character; hesita-ting at no iniquity, descending to the shabbiest littleness. Opposition, if it be honest and manly, is not itself un-desirable. The companies desirable. The competitor in life's struggles who is of true mettle deprecates not opposition of an honorable character, but rather rejoices in it. It is only injustice or meanness which he deprecates; and it is this which the Hose successful must meet, proportioned in bitterness; oftentimes to the measure of success which excites it.

THEtimes are hard; you'd like to know How you may save your dolla. The way to do it I will show, If you will read what follows.

A man who lived not far from here, Who worked hard at his trade, But had a household to support That squandered all he made. I met him once. Says be, "My friend, I look threadbare and rough; I've tried to get myself a suit, But can't save up enough."

Says I, my friend, how much have you?

I'll tell you where to go

To get a suit that's sound and cheep:

To REIZENSTEIN & Co.

He took what little he had saved, And went to Reisenstein & Brothers', And there he got a handsome suit, For half he paid to others.

Now he is home, he looks so well, And their effect is such, That when they take their daily usal, They don't eat half as much. And now he finds on Saturday night, With all their wants supplied, That he has money left to spand, And some to lay aside.
