I'm sure I can't see it at all, What a poor fellow ever could do For apples, and pennies, and cakes, Without a grandmeiher or two.

Grandmothers speak softly to "mas,"
To let boys have a good time;
Sometimes they will whisper, 'lis true,
T'other way, when a boy wants to climb.

Grandmothers have muffins for ten, And pies, a whole row in the cellar, And they're apt (if they know it in time) To make chicken pie for a "feller,"

And if he is had now and then, And makes a great racheting noise, They only look over their spees, And say, "Ah, these boys will be boys;

"Life is only so short at the hert, Let the children be happy to-day." Then they look for awhile at the aky And the hills that are far, far away. Quite often, as twilight comes on, Grandmothers sing hymns, very low, To themselves as they rock by the fire, About Heaven, and when they shall go.

And then a boy, stopping to think, Will find a hot tear in his eye,

To know what will come at the last; For grandmothers all have to die. I wish they could stay here and pray, For a boy needs their prayers ev'ry night. Some boys more than others, I s'pose— Such as I need a wonderful sight.

It is a sign of health or of convalescence when men love gentle, simple pleasures and enjoyments that do not rush or roar, but distil as the dew. The love of rural life, the habits of finding enjoyment in familiar things, that susceptibility to nature which keeps the nerve gently thrilled in her homeliest nooks, and by her commonest sounds, is worth a thousand fortunes of money, or its equivalent.

How you may save your dollar. The way to do it I will show, If you will read what follows. A man who lived not far from here, Who worked hard at his trade, But had a household to support That squandered all he made.

I met him once. Says he, "My friend, I look threadbare and rough; I've tried to get myself a sult, But can't save ap enough." Says I, my friend, how much have you? I'll tell you where to go To get a suit that's sound and cheap: To REIZENSTEIN & Co.

He took what little he had saved, And went to Relicentein & Brothers', And there he got a handsome suit, For half he paid to others.

Now he is home, he looks so well, And their effect is such, That when they take their daily meal, They don't eat half as much. And now he finds on Saturday night, With all their wants supplied,

That he has money left to spend, And some to lay aside.
