The gentleman who spreads out his luggage on a couple of seats in the cars and persistently reads his newspaper, determinately unconscious that others who have paid as much as he has are looking in vain for a seat, is as truly ill-bred as the country girl who noisily eats her pint of peanuts, ecattering shells on sent and floor, utterly regardless of the annoyance she gives her neighbors. In this democratic country we travel in public conveyances too much as if they were our own private carriages. How often calling. the eleventh and twelfth passengers in a city omnibus, who know they have full claim to a seat, are discomforted by the out-spread garments, the immovable attitudes, and the blank faces of those who happen to have entered the stage before them. Common civility demands that a movement be made to give room until the whole complement is filled out; afterward prices and superior quality of goods will amply courtesy and generosity will often satisfy all. though the negro debate at Cooper Institute, the other night, was a to jobbers. scurvy affair, we are indebted to the administration champion Rev. H. H. Garnett, for one entirely new and NEW GOODS: startling fact in our history-a fact we venture to say as novel and interesting to President Grant as to anybody. It has been among the "historical problems" of the war. Where New Firm at Wallaceton, Pa. did General Butler fight? Was it at Baltimore or at Big Bethel? Or at New Orleans, after its capture for him by Farragut? Or was it on the James, where the distinguished General-in-Chief of our armies reports him to have been "bottled up!" No, it was Have bought the entire stock of goods from P. at none of these famous points that Gallagher, and are receiving a general assertmen of new goods from the Eastern cities, such as Garnett's piercing ray detected him in the active defence of his country. Of course not. Even his dusky auditors would have known better. But he alluded to our hero as "Ben Butler. who fought among the clouds!" There you have it, future McCauley of your country. Ben Butler fought among the clouds. There is in our earlier history one other General who fought among the clouds, but didn't stay We believe his name was Lucifer .- Springfield Republican.

Too TRUE .- An exchange says: Dr. Scheeppe, who has been tried the second time for the murder of Miss Steinecke, at Carlisle, Pa., has been acquitted. He came as near hanging as any man who has escaped, and very largely, in consequence of the To exchange for Country Produce, Railroad Ti testimony of medical and chemical experts, whose inferences were hastily DANIEL GOODLANDER, drawn from examinations carelessly made. Those who were best acquainted with all the facts of the case believed in the innocence of the accused, DRY GOODS, NOTIONS. and finally secured his second trial, which has reversed the decision of the first, and demonstrated the utter worthlesaness of the testimony of those experts who contradict each other and hold the life of a human being as of far less account than the drugs they dabble in and the theories they are hired to maintain or oppose. There may be a science of medicine; but if anybody imagines we have found it out, he has only to attend a Arst-class murder-trial in which medical experts play a part, to, recover from that delusion.

A SMART BUSINESS MAN .- When the President wrote a letter to Collec tor Grinnell, recommending Col. Leet FLOUR & FEED DEPOT for appointment as "general-order" man in the New York Custom House, on the ground that the Colonel was a smart "business man," his excellency came pretty near the mark. It apyears from this gentleman's own evidence that his sharp business talent has enabled him to make a very argood thing" out of his office, and it seems from evidence collected from various New York merchants, that the general order business has yielded from 250 to 300 per cent more than the law allows.
