A Judicial Outrage.

On our first page will be found a statement in detail of a judicial transaction which occurred at Harrisburg last week. We allude to the case of Shaffer, who, according to the laws of the State, should be hung, but through the jugglery of the court goes to the penitentiary.

A similar transaction occurred in our Court twenty-two years ago. A jury found a man guilty of murder in the first degree, but the offender was afterwards sent to the penitentiary for twelve years—for murdering his brother.

We are opposed to capital punishment. We would hang no one, but would send all such offenders to the penitentiary during their lifetime. If society is rendered safe by this mode, no member of it has the right to demand more. To this the advocate of judicial murder of course objects. He wants to hang all murderers. But does he do it? No. Out of ten murderers committed, if he hangs one he will do very well, while the other nine will be out of the penitentiary in a few years, ready for a new victim. In this protecting society? In this executing the law according to the oaths of the officers, jurors, etc.?

We hold that courts have no more right to violate law than the highwayman, and if they do, they should be punished or at least deposed. We want the advocates of capital punishment to enforce their law, or else to stand by and see the protected and perjured avoided, or give us our system, and we will guarantee both or abandon our views and system very soon.

Judicial jugglery is horrible! And yet what else is it when only one culprit in ten gets his dues. Twelve years in the penitentiary for murder is a baroque upon civilization; and right at the Capitol of the State, too! To adjust a high social crime on a financial basis may be first-class economy, but it is horrible morals and worse patriotism. Nevertheless, to see or make it a true index of the average and mercenary motives of the men who now control public affairs, and sounds like the "death rattle" to liberty and pure morals in the body politic.

The Ballot-Box Stuffers. That the late election was carried by the most outrageous frauds ever attempted since the days of the Eitzen-Stevens dynasty, is fully established by the testimony of honest Republicans, who can no longer keep their mouths or eyes closed to the wrongs perpetrated by the corrupt leaders of their own party. In the city of Philadelphia, that highly "loil" and Christian city, scores of respectable citizens went to the election polls, and were not allowed to vote because some thief or repeater had already voted in their name. And among them were some of the oldest Market street merchants. To prove what we say, and we ask every one of our readers to peruse it carefully, we quote from an editorial clipped from the Philadelphia Press of the 18th, in which the editor says: "Gradually our people begin to comprehend the atrocities on the ballot-box on Tuesday, the 8th of October. The revelations already made, and daily being made, indicate something of the scheme by which the people of this fair city have been once more placed under the feet of desperate and designing men, and we are not without hope that the whole plot will be finally disclosed. However disreputable to civilization and contempt of law, and however unparalleled in the annals of political fraud, we firmly believe that when all the facts are laid before the public the reaction will inexorably consign the authors of this deliberate conspiracy to the doom they deserve. Happily the people are now to reform the State Constitution meets within a few weeks, and the rights of the manner in which the profit of suffrage has been trampled into the dust by party managers, and the unblushing corruptions at the polls in Philadelphia, Pittsburgh, and elsewhere throughout the State, will act as a spur, if any were needed, to the good men who compose that body, and who, we believe, will end an evil which, persisted in, will place us on an equality with the wickedest criminals of New York. This convention will be one of the highest of our representative bodies. Far above the Legislature in authority and dignity, its operations can be conducted independent of the partisan majority fraudulently sent to Harrisburg to enforce the one-man rule. Hundreds of reputable citizens of Philadelphia have called at our editorial rooms to present cases of repeated and open perjury at their respective precincts. We refrain giving names for obvious reasons, but most of them we have long and favorably known. One of the oldest merchants on Market street states that when he reached the polls he found that his name had been voted. The officers refused to take his ballot, upon which he proceeded to the court and secured an order constraining them to receive it, and on his return he found that another person had in the meantime voted upon his name. Two of the sons of a well-known journalist were perjured in their journals, as we learn from their father, and one of them was actually informed, by a respectable citizen, that he had been voted by the twenty-sixth citizen who had been perjured that morning. In one case a repeater attempted to perjure a well-known gentleman while the gentleman himself was on the ground, and the vote was only rejected when he denounced the ruffian. An eminent physician, upon presenting his vote, was actually informed that he had already voted, upon which he remarked, 'I have two sons at home; please let me know whether my name has been voted for them, in which case I will save them the trouble of coming here.' The reply was that they had both voted, and he left with a due sensibility of the glorious privileges of American citizenship. These are only a few of very many cases indicating the publicity and the enormity of the scheme set on foot under the auspices of Cameron and Russell Erett. What shall we think of respectable men who have lent their names to the proceedings, and of prominent officials, receiving salaries four times larger than the salary of the President, who applauded and pushed forward organized crime, and what would be thought of the newspaper which, organ of them, did not in the name of decency and law, and in the name of a plundered people, cry out against such shameless practices.

Legislative Reform.

The greatest evil which seems to affect the Republic just now is Congressional and Legislative corruption. If there is no cure for this evil patriots may as well hang their heads upon the willows, because the government of the great central States is just now in the hands of thieves and unscrupulous men, and if no remedy can be applied through our Constitutional Convention, which will assemble next month, it will take less than half a score of years until we will land either in a monarchial or despotic government, so far as our own State is concerned. The following wholesome advice upon the question under consideration we take from the Press, and it meets our ideas exactly: "The root of evil in the public affairs of Pennsylvania is the Legislature. The corruption that has become systematic, reaching even to the electors themselves, originated in this body. Its reform is the question that must engage most of the attention of the Constitutional Convention. We may amend the Constitution in the interest of good government, put all manner of checks upon the law-making power, and erect every safeguard against corruption; but human ingenuity may surmount, and yet with a venal Legislature and one evil genius at its back, all this work will be so much honest labor lost. This is, after all, the greatest subject before the people. If, as was recently remarked of a neighboring Commonwealth, 'If corrupt men can continue to control our State Legislature, their domination must remain unbridled, and in an amazingly short space of time the whole country will be mortgaged to public creditors. But the evil will not stop with the robbery of the Public Treasury. Its natural sequel would be the corruption of the people themselves. With our present system of elections and appointment we do not believe it possible to secure an honest Assembly. The Assembly as at present formed we believe entirely too small. It is unrepresentative, and, unlike a Democracy, not near enough to the people. The first step towards reform, we believe, will be to restore its original popularity by enlarging its membership. More representatives and smaller districts will admit of scrutiny into the character of candidates, and of an opportunity for the exercise of the unbiased judgment now so seldom displayed in the exercise of the suffrage. "The Legislature of Pennsylvania consists now, as it has consisted for three-quarters of a century, of thirty-three Senators and one hundred Assemblymen. The population of the State in 1870 was 2,511,701—one Senator for every 106,730, and one Assemblyman for every 55,217. In the Massachusetts Legislature there are forty Senators and two hundred and forty Assemblymen, and the population of the State in 1870 was 1,451,351, or one Senator for every 36,433 of the population and one Assemblyman for every 9,174 of the population. In New Hampshire, with only 318,390 population, the Legislature numbers 341 members. In Vermont, Connecticut, Rhode Island, and other New England States, the Legislatures are equally popular, and in all of them it is only in Pennsylvania and New York, where the tendency has been to remove the law-making power further and further from the people, that the State capitals are compared to stables and where charges of "cavalry and bribery are openly made. "The first step toward reforming the Legislature will, we think, therefore, be to increase its numerical strength and to restore as near as possible its original rate of representation. The first Legislature in our history was based upon the census of 1790, when the population of the State was 434,374, and the apportionment one Senator for every 13,023, and one Assemblyman for every 4,344, which was the nearest approximation to Democracy yet and simple ever witnessed in the government of Pennsylvania. "The restoration of these rates would of course make too cumbersome a body, and we can at least revise in a measure the influence of the people in the administration of affairs. One Senator for every 35,217 of the population, and one Assemblyman for every 13,000, would be a good basis on which to build. "HOLD ON, GENTLEMEN.—There has been much cackling in the ring newspapers about Hartman's vote in Montgomery county. But the official returns show that while the Republican ticket is elected Mr. Buckleau has a small majority in Montgomery. A timely pardon by Governor Geary towards Hartman to two or three hundred voters, and the Democratic divisions concerning a member of Congress contributed further to his strength. His personal popularity had nothing to do with it, as the votes show. Dr. Acker, the present Congressman, sold every office in the county to the Cameron ring. Acker is about the best played-out demagogue in the State. It was his treachery which reduced the Democratic majority in Montgomery county, and not the personal popularity of the due-bill candidate, Hartman. "CROWD IN.—The Pittsburgh negroes have raised a fuss with the school boards of that "loil" city. The darks want to send their children to school with the white children, and some of the refined white loyalists are turning up their noses about it. But this does not deter the Africans from urging the matter to a focus. The "colored brethren" want the respective school boards to settle the matter before the election, while the directors want to postpone the matter until after that critical period shall have been passed. They want the votes of the Sambos before they decide against them. "It is now pretty generally conceded that R. B. Elliot, one of the negro Congressmen from South Carolina, will be elected United States Senator by the negro and carpet-bag fraternity in that State. "The Democratic and Liberal State Committees have a meeting at the Merchants Hotel in Philadelphia to-day to take into consideration the large frauds perpetrated by the Radical robbers on the 8th.

OHIO AND INDIANA.—A regular political break-up has set in in these two States since the late election.—The Democratic triumph in the latter State has so completely demoralized the enemy that he does not know where to strike; while the large gains made in the former State has solidified every element opposed to the Grant-Dont family, and one of the most vigorous campaigns ever carried on in that State is going on now. All the old war horses leave the harness on and are working night and day. Pendleton, Pugh, McCook, Morgan and their friends are ably assisted by a host of Liberal Republicans, who express no doubt of carrying these two States in November for Greeley, by large majorities. By carrying these two States Mr. Greeley's election is secured beyond a doubt, without Pennsylvania. Simon Cameron need not be consulted.

Once More to the Breach, Dear Friends, Once More. The following which we clip from the Danville Intelligencer, whose editor has just been elected to the State Senate, fits our ideas so completely that we transfer it to our columns, and ask our friends to adopt the advice therein contained: "There is a disposition in some persons whenever they experience defeat in a political contest, to depend, give way, and almost invariably to make another effort. We find a few Democrats in this frame of mind since they have learned of our defeat in the State, brought about by drilling and manipulating the negro vote by corruption and fraud, and by a number of Democrats staying at home and neglecting to vote. At first glance the condition of things is calculated to make the patriot despair. But a closer examination shows that there is another effort.
