The Lancaster Weekly Intelligencer is unautoassed as a family journal. Equal in size to any paper published in Pennsylvanus, each issue contains a varied store of Literary. Political and Scientific matter, together with all the news of the week. Its agricultural department alone is worth more than the price of the paper. It is the oldest Democratic journal is Pennsylvania, having been established in 1794, and all political questions are freely and fairly discussed in its columns. Its large circulation makes it a very valuable advertising modium.

HACKMAN'S CORN PLANTER.

This togenious machine, for which a patent has just been issued, it is confidently believed will impersed all others in men or offered to the public. It is constructed to that it furrows, plants and sows at a time, at equal distances upart, belt way, dropping four, five or siz grains in such hill, at the worker may determine before commencing, covering the zorn when dropped, amosthing down its awar furrows and leaving the ground in better condition than before planting.

It is in itself a rowplete self newiring machine, requiring no hired assistance and doing the worker and with greater regularity and precision than it rould possibly be done by hand, at her than emotion the labor.

Any body that coun drive, with this Planter can go into a field prepared for corn and furrow, drop and cover ten to fifteen there also yit, it caspecity being limited only by the distance a team can be stendily driven. It is so constructed that when not planting or in turning at the end of the farmer, by a mere touch it is raised off the ground, thrown out of gear and moved baselward or farward, where you may want it, without dropping the sorn at touching the earth.

Practically it ignores men, hore and plows in corn planting, and makes that which has hereinfore been hard labor a more pastime for a boy, at about healthy exercise for a lary min.

Inspection of the Planter constructed by the pat enter cordising selfcited, and county, State or individual rights for eals, at low rates, to expedinite introduction.
