A Busy Man .- The spoon thief, Butler, had a busy time in Congress, for several weeks before its close, de fending his Confederates. One day he would defend Ames and his band, the next he would defend Grant for his outrageous conduct in Louisiana, and the next he would object to and squelch all resolutions and inquiries leading to a solution of the pardon of the Philadelphia repeater, Brown .-Such was the kindred and no doubt congenial occupation of the greatest knave in the last Congress.

ASHAMED AT LAST .- Mrs. Vice Pres ident Wilson has parted with her Credit Mobilier stock, which her busband purchased for her from Oakes Ames. But a few days ago her godly husband insisted that he had done no wrong when he took his wife's money and defrauded the Treasury out of several thousand dollars in the same nanner that Ames, Brooks & Co. had. He esteemed it a legitimate transaction. Kelly paid his blood money in-
