

Marriage and Longevity.

Of all the relations into which a man enters, marriage is the one which exerts most influence on his mind and body, on his powers of study, on the development of his affections, on the bringing forth of all the hidden qualities of his character.

As a rule, early marriages are better than those which come later in life. Aristotle thought that eighteen years for the woman and the twentieth for the man were the likeliest periods respectively to insure happiness in marriage.

Spring is nominally here. The field labors of the year will soon commence, and we should see that everything is ready for energetic, systematic work.

The Value of Time. The field labors of the year will soon commence, and we should see that everything is ready for energetic, systematic work.

Plattsburgh applies to the legislature for more "free" companies than the remainder of the State.
