WEDNESDAY MORNING, JUNE 18, 1972.

A blue base in the distance lies,

The crisp green meadows are newly a
Cloudlets drift in the summer skies,
Birds are loud in the tragrant thern.

The leaves, like lovers, kiss in the brocce, And over the fields of glossy wheat, Like ripples glancing on sunny seas, Like winds dance on their fairy feet.

The river, glimmering in the sun,
Like a forest of Templar lances shows,
Motionless as a kneeling nun,
The gray spire shines from cettage rows.

Swifter than swallow down the wind, O'er the bridge and through the vale, The engine rushes, and far behind Wreaths of luminous vapor sail. To one long pent in city lane
Noting the spring by slow deg ses;
Of summer little but warmth and rain,
What magic in such morus as these!

The breast expands as to night dew,
Wood violets spring in bausts of dove,
Hope brightens to her brightest hue,
And the heart glows with faith and love.

John Heffernan was a boy when he entered the establishment of Mesers. Goldsticks & Moneybags, but he bro's with him a certificate from his Sunday school teacher, saying that he was an honest lad, who could learn more verses and forget them quicker than any other toy in the class. His employers were obliged to test his honesty in various ways, but he stood the test nobly.

When Mr. Moneybags saw him pick up a pin from the floor he was aveeping, he thought that John might be guilty of taking things, and dropped a ten cent shin plaster in the same place, but John honestly swept it out without noticing it and brushed it into a corner, where he could pick it up at his leisure. Then Mr. Moneybags overpaid him his weekly stipend by the amount of $1, and waited to see what the boy would do. At the dead hour of night the Moneybags should be discovered a ten control of the co

BY WILLIAM D. YCHNER.

The bands of friendship, pure and warm,
We twine around the heart,

An inveterate chewer may bayes moral resolution enough to break ciff the habit, though it rarely happens that an effort is made to do so, as an apology is found for continuing a prin-tice that is positively destroying the foundations of health. Once addicted to chewing tobacco, to abandon it is to chewing tobacco, to abandon it is an achievement few have the happiness to perform, notwithstanding the melancholy mortality of men in the meridian of life who are constantly meridian of life who are constantly being destroyed by the subtle influence of that strange plant on fthe nervous system. Thus sudden palsy of the heart, palsy of a limb, palsy of one-half of the tongue, and even instanta-neous death, are traceable by physi-cians to excessive use of tobacco. But the vice of betel nut thewing is still more remarkable. When this is es-tablished there seems no retreat. The victim wears out his teeth, gums and digestion, and dies with an unsatisfied longing for another quid. Betel nut trees thrive in most parts of tropical India, the Indian Archipelago and the Philippine Islands. They grow up gracefully about thirty feet, rarely more than eight inches in diameter.
