We learn by the Reveille of the 22d ult., that Isaac McKee, an old and esteemed resident of our county, died, a few days previous, at his home, on Clearfield creek, a short distance below Madera. His position in the neighborhood will not be filled very soon.

Our friend Snyder, commonly called "Jersey," has just established himself in new and more commodious quarters, where he will no doubt be pleased to receive his old friends and new ones, too. He will now be found in Graham's Row, Market Street, next door to Fred. Miller's store.

Another successful Sunday School Institute, for Brady township, was held at Luthersburg last Thursday and Friday. Ministers, representing three or more different denominations were in attendance, including Rev. Tyon, M. E. Presiding Elder of the District, and Rev. B. Crittenden, Missionary of the American Sunday School Union.

We notice by a late number of the Falls City (Nebraska) Times, that our young friend John Watson, son of Mr. C. D. Watson, of this place, has become one of the publishers of that paper. Well, this was rather unexpected to us, to hear of John getting into the newspaper business, but we hope he will succeed in his enterprise.

Changed.—The schedule time of trains, on the Pennsylvania Railroad and its branches, was changed, on Monday last. But little alteration, in the line of trains, on the Tyrone and Clearfield Branch, were made, only effecting the time of the mail, it leaving Tyrone and arriving here five minutes later than before. See schedule in another column.

Messrs. A. W. Walters and John Johnston shouldered their fusees about one o'clock on Friday last, and went to the Big Spring, on the barrens, and by five o'clock were back with a buck weighing 180 pounds, and the fun of it was we had venison enough to last us two days. Hunt more, Al and John, we can stand such sport as that from now until January, 1874.

Y. M. C. A.—We have been requested to announce that a District Convention of the Young Men's Christian Association will be held in Tyrone, Pa., on November 18th and 19th, 1873. It is earnestly hoped that Clearfield will send delegates to the said Convention, as there will be ample arrangements made to accommodate all delegates that may be present at the Convention.—Those desiring further information will please address W. H. H. Young, Chairman, Tyrone, Pa.

We are again in receipt of a marriage notice without the necessary accompaniment, the name of a responsible person. This time it comes from New Washington. It is not sufficient for a minister or justice to simply write out the notice that so and so were married by so and so, but it is necessary for the minister or Justice to sign his name below, with request to publish. Send along the name and we will be pleased to insert the notice. We have to be thus particular in order to prevent being imposed on.

The new M. E. Church at Woodland was dedicated on last Sabbath, and the balance of the church indebtedness—about $2,000—subscribed. The dedicatory service was conducted by Bishop Bowman, who delivered an eloquent and powerful sermon of considerable length. The new edifice was christened Dill Chapel, by the trustees and members in honor of the pastor, Rev. Wm. H. Dill, of this place, to whom great credit is due for his efforts to provide the people of Woodland and vicinity with such a beautiful house of worship.

The Sunday School Jubilee in the Methodist church, on Saturday evening last, was an entertainment relished exceedingly by both the older and the younger portions of our community. The church was filled before the hour of commencement with persons of all denominations, eager to hear Bishop Bowman and Chaplain McCabe; the former being the first Bishop that ever visited this place. Both delivered very eloquent and entertaining addresses. Shorter addresses were also made by Wm. M. McCullough and T. H. Murray, Esqs. Much credit is due to D. W. McCurdy, Esq., the Superintendent, for his efforts to promote the progress of the school, and no doubt the presence of the large audience that greeted them on the evening of their jubilee will serve to encourage himself and scholars to still further progressive efforts.

The Ishmaelite.—A political quack named T. H. Murray, who has made Divinity and law his study for some time, but without success, has lately undertaken to "paddle his own canoe" in the insurance business and politics. Last week he especially displayed his christian (?) character in preparing a column of abuse of ourself for the Journal. His tongue or pen can slander no one where Thomas' true character is known, but, being such a noted hypocrite, we will be compelled to notice him at some length, after court is over, when we shall have more time to illustrate the libeler. For the present we refer the reader to what St. Matthew records, when referring to a class of whom Thomas is a modern representative. The photograph is complete and can be found in chapter XXIII, and verses 13, 14, 15, 23, 24, 25, 26, 27, 28, 29 and 32 and 33.

Across the River.—On the 30th of October, 1873, Jane Stewart, wife of John Stewart, departed this life, in this borough, aged 72 years, 9 months and 28 days. She was born in Ireland, on the 2d of December, 1800, and, with her husband, came to Clearfield county, in 1819, settling in Bradford township, where they resided until a few years ago, when they removed to this borough. She was the mother of a large and interesting family, and a neighbor of rare "goodness." We heard one of her old neighbors remark, a few days previous to her demise, that he had had almost daily intercourse with Mr. Stewart's family for over 35 years, and a "jar" never occurred between them, and that a neighborhood of such mothers as Mrs. Stewart would create a Paradise. Mrs. Stewart's maiden name was Campbell, and, if we mistake not, she has a brother, Archibald, residing at Reynoldsville, who is well known to the old settlers of our county.—She has crossed over. Let her rest in peace, and may the living imitate her good qualities.

Sensible.—An exchange says: The Supreme Court, of this State, has decided that it is the duty of persons in crossing railroads, either on foot or otherwise, to stop immediately before crossing the track. In not doing so they are guilty of criminal negligence and in case of injury in their person resulting from the passage of cars a claim on their part will not hold good, but the parties can be prosecuted by the railroad company and receive damages, if any should accrue to the company by the neglect of the person or persons attempting to cross.

Church Dedication in a Panic.—

I have the pleasure of announcing to the public that the new Methodist Episcopal church, at Woodland, was dedicated to the worship of Almighty God, on Sunday, Nov. 2d, according to the forms of said church. The occasion was one of rare interest and power. Rev. Bishop Bowman preached a sermon, in the morning, of such clearness, force and religious unction as will leave an indelible impression upon the hearts and minds of the people. Now, that he has gone, it seems as though an Angel had been among us and left a blessing. Rev. Chaplain McCabe preached a scriptural and soul-stirring sermon at night. During the day and night he entertained the audience with sacred song. And oh! such singing. It almost gave us glimpses of the Heavenly glory. In the name of the church, I thank these Ambassadors of Christ for their visit among us. Said Bishop Bowman to me: "Brother Dill, I feel that I am instrumental in accomplishing more good, by coming to such places as this, than by accepting the invitations that crowd upon me from our large churches in the cities." May God bless him, and preserve his life and breath for many years to come. I also desire to thank the people for the generous manner in which they responded to the appeal for money. Although, in the midst of a serious financial panic, the money (two thousand dollars) was cheerfully and promptly subscribed. Thanks are also due, and are hereby given, to the Railroad Company, for the elegant cars furnished, and to the officers of the train, for their courtesy. To the choir of the Clearfield M. E. Church, I discharge a pleasant duty when I thus publicly recognize their valuable services so cheerfully rendered. And now I invoke the Divine Blessing to follow this enterprise, so that the future glory of this church may unfold in the conversion of many precious souls. WM. H. DILL.

Accidentally Shot.—Geo. M. Yocum, a leading member of the Bellefonte bar, was killed, one day last week, by the accidental discharge of his gun. It appears that he, with others, had repaired to the Three Runs, on a hunting expedition, making their headquarters at the log shanty of Simon Haupt and his cousin, Henry Hile. Soon after leaving the shanty, he took the gun off his shoulder, placing the butt on a log, with his arm resting on the muzzle, the gun slipped and went off, the charge (three buck-shot) entering his arm. He was afterwards hauled nine miles to the railroad, at Driftwood station, on the P. & E. road, and thence to Lock Haven, where he died the next morning from the loss of blood and physical exhaustion. In the death of Mr. Yocum, Centre county has lost one of its leading legal minds and an upright, prominent citizen.—Mr Yocum was the law partner of D. G. Bush.

Church Dedicated.—A correspondent says: As previously announced, the new and handsome M. E. Church, situated at Oak Grove, near Blue Ball, Grahamton Circuit, was dedicated to the worship of Almighty God, on the 19th ult. The services were conducted by Rev. T. M. Reese, P. E. of this district, assisted by the pastors in charge, and were of such a character as to reflect much credit on the elder as a preacher and also a financier. The congregation was large and liberal. One thousand dollars was asked for and twelve hundred dollars was received. Suffice it to say that all were pleased, and if their purses were a little lighter their hearts were much more so.

Another Opening.—Our Congressman, Col. Curtis, some three months ago, appointed a Cadet, to West Point, from this district.—The party so appointed has resigned and a vacancy exists. The Erie papers contain the following card:

I am requested, by the Secretary of war, to nominate, for the 19th Con. District, a Cadet to the Military Academy, at West Point, who will be required to report, at the Academy, on the 25th of May next. The young man who will pass the best competitive examination will be selected, and the nomination will be made as early as the 15th of November next. C. B. CURTIS.

Boys, there is a good opening for you from Second Lieutenant up to Major General. You certainly can make a point where so much latitude is given. Col. Curtis can be addressed at Erie, Pa.

Killed.—John Lockiden, an employe on the railroad extension to Curwensville, was killed, on Friday evening last, while blasting rocks, in the cut at "Hogback." The deceased was terribly torn and lacerated about the head and neck. Both eyes were blown out and his wind pipe cut off. His body was taken in charge by the officers of the railroad and forwarded to his home, at Frankstown, near Pittsburg. He was a single man, about 22 years of age, but an aged father and mother largely depended on his support. Another laborer was seriously injured, at the time of the explosion, but he will recover.

Letter from Lawrence.

Lawrence Township, Oct. 22d, 1873.

Mr. Editor—In your issue of October 1st, you refer to the numerous complaints from all portions of the county, because of the high school tax which has been assessed the past year. Now, sir, I do not know how it is in other parts of the county, but if the people in other districts are loaded down with school and road taxes as we are in Lawrence, I should think they were more than mortal if they did not complain. Now, I will give you some figures and I think you will see that one hundred per cent. comes nearer the raise on our school and road taxes within the last five years than twenty-five per cent. does. By referring to the school duplicates of 1868-69 I find the amounts levied for school and building purposes to be about $2,100 and $2,289, and in those two years the unseated tax was a trifle over $400, and the State appropriation about $150 each year, making in all, for those two years, the sum of $5,100, and by referring to the settlement of 1869 I find the school orders all canceled and a balance due the school fund of $1,561. Now, for the school years of 1873-74 I find the amounts levied for 1873 to be something over $3,000, and for 1874 a trifle less, and the books show that the amount received from unseated lands for Lawrence district, for those two years, to be over $1,400, and from the State about $456, making in all, for those two years, the sum of $2,700. And by referring to the last settlement I find this district paying interest on about $600. How is that for one month's extra time? Now, sir, if we take a view of the road fund we find it in rather a worse condition. If you refer to the settlement of 1869 I think you will find on the books about $600 due the Lawrence road fund from unseated lands. Since that time the valuation on real estate has been more than doubled and largely raised on personal property and we have had the same amount of mills levied and the present year they have run it up three mills higher, and the township very largely in arrears. Now, sir, how is that for high? Why, Mr. Editor, if that Court House ring, which they say you have in town and which has frightened so many of late, would run the finances of the county on this basis, how long would it be until the county would be bankrupt? I do not wish to be understood as charging those township officers with embezzlement, but it looks as though there was great extravagance or gross neglect of duty in the handling of the people's money. Now, the tax payers of Lawrence township are a hard working and industrious class of men, and are ever willing to pay their taxes, and all they ask is that the money drawn from their hard toil be properly and judiciously expended on the objects for which it is levied. There appears to be a mania got possession of all officers, from the highest to the lowest, that the more of the people's money they can dispose of the better they are doing their duty; but, in all probability, there will be a financial crash one of these days and I think it would be wise for all in authority to put their house in order to meet such an event; for, if it should come, and our taxes at such a high rate, who, in the name of Heaven, would be able to meet them? In these fast times of railroads and iron bridges it may not be thought wise to retrace our steps, but I think it would be well to go back to first principles. Within the last few years there has been many local laws placed on the statute book, which work great injury to the people, among them the one changing the mode of collecting taxes by the county treasurer, and the act creating four supervisors in this township, and the district treasurer act. All of these acts, I think, it would be well to ask the Legislature to repeal. The greatest curse that rests on our country at present is that we are governed and officered too much. Like the Egyptian lice, they are eating up the substance of the people.

A TAX PAYER.

We have but one remark to make in reply to our intelligent correspondent, and that is upon the mode of collecting the county taxes: Instead of there being from $15,000 to $20,000 outstanding county taxes, in the hands of thirty collectors, as there was under the old system, it will not average $3,000 under the new. Look across at Indiana and Centre counties, where they are working under the old law, (until the last year in the former.) In the former county there was outstanding, in the hands of their collectors, the sum of $42,000, and in the latter county it was about $35,000, while in counties of the same size, where our system (the Venango system, as it is called,) is in force, not one-tenth that sum remains in the hands of the constables, and but few losses occur to the county, from the fact that but a small sum remains outstanding at the close of the year.

A Card from Mr. Luther.

Luthersburg, Nov. 1st, 1873.

Editor Republican—Dear Sir: The editor of the Clearfield County Times, in his issue of Oct. 25th, publishes an article headed "W. S. Luther and his Card," part of which might be believed by persons not acquainted with either the editor or myself, and might lead persons to think that I was sub-editor of the Times. By your permission I will mix a dish of "hash" for the Times man and let him cook it to suit himself. In order to show to the people how many stories the Times editor has told concerning the Gov. Bigler scandal, I will make a few quotations. In his issue of October 7th, he says in his article, "Is this Honesty?" "We overheard a part of the talk," &c. Then he was at the fair hunting up locals. And Oct. 14th he says: "As to the articles in question, they were written on the information of parties, outside of Curwensville, whom we met at and during the fair," &c. Oct. 25th he says, I called at his office the day after the fair and was the first man that gave him information. How nice he agrees. If he got his information at the fair, how could I give it to him the day after—But more, he says: "If, after pretending to edit a paper twelve years, we could not write our own editorial and local items we would throw down the quill in disgust," &c. Who, would any one, infer from this, did his writing but himself? Again, when the citizens of Curwensville insisted that his paper should not go out, he suppressed the whole edition and issued extra half sheets. The half sheets that were circulated in Brady had both articles in concerning Gov. Bigler. I cannot say they were extra. He says: "We will give a specimen of what influence and perhaps a small sum of money can do towards buying the honor of men and one in particular," meaning myself. I dare say, there is not a man in Clearfield county believes that, and the Times editor don't believe it himself. He says: "Let Luther go on with his school master effusions as long as he pleases; his literary efforts will be as entertaining and readable matter as the Republican generally contains." In answer to this I will just say that if Brainard publishes a few more articles on mill-wifery he will have gained the honor and the glory he has long been seeking. He says: "The conversation turned on the fair." Yes, it did, and he says I told they were a set of rascals. Now, I don't believe there is another man in the county that will say that I said Gov. Bigler or any other man in Clearfield was a rascal. He says: "We asked who were the officers last year," and I answered "Gov. Bigler was President." I will say to the young man that it is not true. He neither asked me nor did I tell him any such thing. He says I told him what the Journal had charged for institute circulars, &c., and after he gave me his prices I said the Journal was an outrage. Not wishing to give the prices charged at either office, I will give the difference: The Times office charges just $1.00 more for two hundred circulars than the Journal office, according to his own figures in my possession. How many think this is an outrage, unless it is outrageous low. He says: "Mr. Bigler, when he was shown the article in question, only laughed at it and passed it off as a good joke."—So did every one else laugh at it and thought an editor ought to have known better than to publish it. He says: "We can only think he took this way to gain notoriety," &c. I can tell the editor that I did not go away from home to become so, and all the notoriety his paper gave me will not amount to much. He says: "Gov. Bigler would not attend the fair because he could not stick his glue-tipped fingers into the money drawer." He has face enough to say I told him this. He gives the receipts of the fair in the same issue, which he says is $1,360, leaving a surplus of $400, and says the society will have $700 to put on interest for one year. Who believes that such a noted man as Brainard would run an entire paper without knowing facts. Go and tell him that he does not publish facts and he will deny it. I need not. Brainard, keep your position. I envy no one. I will assist you in your evil ways as I have done heretofore. If I thought you had changed in the last few weeks I would call at your office. I did call in and can say nothing to you that would make a refined gentleman of any one. And further: Brainard, if you have not got the money just send your photograph to me and I will paint your portrait and wait on you for the pay; besides, I want like one myself to put on the gallery stove to keep the cat away from the greaser. If Brainard is a man, gentleman or otherwise, he will tell the truth, and that is, that he wrote both articles, concerning Gov. Bigler, and that I was not dictator. Yours, very respectfully,

WINFIELD S. LUTHER.

Major John Ross, one of the oldest residents of Bell township, died, on October 20th, aged 74 years and 9 months. He was born in the State of New Jersey, January 20th, 1799. In 1822 he was married to Anna, daughter of Philip Barnhart, of Centre county, Pa. In 1833 he, with his family, emigrated to this county, where he lived until the time of his death. As a citizen, he was upright in his dealings; as a neighbor, he was kind and obliging. He did not belong to any branch of the Christian church, yet he understood well the plan of salvation, and when he was asked, on his death bed, in whom he put his trust, answered, "in God." He leaves his aged companion, nine children, and a large and respectable connection to mourn his decease. Sacred be his tomb! Peaceful be his slumber! A. B.

Opened at Last.—We learn that the directors have finally secured a teacher for the Town Hall School, which opened on Monday morning, under Mr. Schaffer, of Easton, who comes well recommended as a teacher. Prof. Ross, of New Washington, had been engaged to teach the school, early in the season, but when he examined the building he found it so much out of repair that he abandoned it. We learn that the directors have since put the house in order and the school is open for the reception of scholars.

A neighbor of ours suggests the following: "Has an American citizen any rights that an Express Agent or a Baggage Master is bound to respect? is a question that might be asked with propriety by the citizens of this place." We refer him to the officers in question.

Sad Affliction.—We learn by the Phillipsburg Journal that two children of Stephen Waugh were buried on Tuesday a week, in one grave. Both died of cholera infantum. Mr. Waugh has now buried twelve of a family of fourteen children.
