WEDNESDAY MORNING, DEC. 10, 1873.

HOW THEY POP THE QUESTION The sailor says, "I like your rig, And though I've noticed many, I really think you are, old gal, As trin a craft as any; And if you'll only say the word, Through every kind of weather, Just blast my eyes if we don't Go crutsing on together."

The poet, with enraptured gaze,
Points out a single star—
"Tie thus, sweet lady, that you shie
On mortile from star;
But oh! it is my fondest hope—
Though settleb, I must own—
That is some modest, view weathed

That in some modest, vine-wreathed cot, You'll shine for me alone." The dancing marter, Franch, of course,
Thinks carnestly of mating.
And seeks some little widow with
A how excruciating.
"Madame, so heart is in so hope,
You love a leetle beet,
And go to way of life vis me;
Madame, I kees your feet."

The actor quotes from many plays, And swears by many persons, His hand shall build his Arabella, A cot among the flowers.
Without her smile he e'er is like
A ship without a rudder;
Then talks of dark despair and death
Until he makes her shudder.

The tradesman, with a busy eye,
A partner seeks for life—
For sure the best investment in
A tidy, loving wife.
He sees her as a kind of stock,
To sell as any other—
Count out the requisite amount,
And buys her from her mother.

And Pat, the coachman, winks at Bid,
As flits from room to room,
The ever merry chambernaid,
With dusting pan and broom.
He says, "Me darlint, when we've laid
Us by a heap of money,
We'll get the priest to ite the knot,
If you'll say yes, me honey."

Says Hans Vou Schmidt, who keeps saloon
"I want a guter frow,
To help me make der lager pier,
Und milk der prindle cow;
To make mine shirts and cook der krout,
Und efrytings to do;
To feed der horse und slop der peeg,
Und tend mine papies too."

And even Sam, the barber man, And even Sam, the barber man,
At Nan rolls up his eyes,
And talks of matrimonia: bliss,
With most heart-rending sighs.
"If you don't gub that lily hand
To dis 'ere lub-siek nigger,
He puts dis pistol to him head,
And dem him pulls de trigger."

Having rented Mr. Entres' Brewery he in his pockets, whistles meditatively in hopes by strict attention to business and the manufacture of a superior article of BEER to receive the patronage of all the old and many new customers.
