Mysteries of the Nerves. Dr. Brown-Squard lectured in Plymouth Church recently on mental phenomena. The famous scientist is apparently fifty years old, and notably handsome.

The experiments in the way of flying, led to the conclusion that insects employ much less muscular force in that way than in drawing or pushing.

What killed the iron duke. "One of the greatest of military heroes," said the lecturer, "the Duke of Wellington, employed a quack, who injected nitrate of silver into his ear.

How the Chinese Catch Fish. The cormorant is largely employed as an assistant to the fisherman, and is carefully educated to his work by professional trainers.

When the fish is very large and weighs seven or eight pounds, for example, the cormorant will assist each other, one catching the fish by the tail, another by the head, etc.

Congressmen and National Banks. A National Representative from the wilds of Missouri has introduced a resolution in Congress "wanting to know" how many Congressmen are interested in national banks, who they are, what the amount of their interest is, and on what such matters.

What does he mean? Does he imagine that Congressmen have no right to hold large shares in these banks over whose interests they must legislate favorably or unfavorably?

CONDIMENTS IN FOWLRY DIET. Cayenne pepper, mustard or ginger can, with benefit, be added to the food of the fowls, to increase their vigor, and to stimulate egg production.

This apparently artificial diet will be seen to be natural if we remember that wild birds of the gallinaceous species get access to various high-spiced berries and buds; articles that give the "game flavor" to their flesh.
