A dove is waltring around his mate Two cherrons black on his wings of slate

Ah, the buxon girls that help the loys, And the pohler listens of humbler Troys

As they stripped the basks with sustling fold From eight-rowed corn as yellow as gold,

By the candle-light in pumphin bowls.
And the gleams that showed fanta-tic holes,

In the quaint old lantern's tattoord tin, From the bermit glim set up within;

By the rarer light in girlish open As dark as wells, or as hipe as skies

I hear the laugh when the our is red,

The coder cakes with the ancient iwist, The cider cup that the girls have kissed,

The boys and girls in a double row Wait face to face till the magic bow

Shall whip the tune from the riolin And the merry palse of the feet begin.

And showing off with a wooing note The satin chine of his golden throat-

CLEARFIELD, PA DNESDAY MORNING, SEPT. 23, 1874. THE OLD BARN'S TENANTRY. BY R. P. TAYLOR. He rules the roset and he walks the key With a dreadful cold and a Turkish way. Two broadsides fires with his rapid wing. This sultan proud of a line of kings,-The Saxton lambe in their weelen tabe Are playing school with the a, b, abs; are a curiosity. The pathway is very narrow and sigrags up the mountain in every imaginable direction. Take a hadly built worm fence and tie it, into a bow-knot, and you have a faint idea of one of the mountain trails. These sigrags are so close one above the other, that when a number of tourists are moving along and you view them from the valley below, the horses seem actually to stand one up on the other. It took us and our guide three hours to make the assumit of Mt. Star King, 5,600 feet in height. The trail by which we made the ascent, was over three miles in length. On such a tour you must allow your horse to have his own time. He understands his business, is sure footed, and takes a rest at least every four rods. To urge or guide him might cause him to stimuble or fall, and in the tevent the tourist might go to 'kingdom come' on househack. After taking a good view of the valley from the summit of Star King, which was grand in the extreme, we started for Glacier Rock, 3,700 feet high. From this point we had grand view of Grizsly Bear, Vernal and Nevada Falls; also the following hundred was grand in the extreme, we started for Glacier Rock, 3,700 feet high. From this point we had grand view of Grizsly Bear, Vernal and Nevada Falls; also the following hundred with great danger of being huried into the abyes below.
