THE REPUBLICAN.

CLEARFIELD, PA

WEDNESDAY MORNING, OCT. 14, 1874.

THE SABBATH BELLS.

The old man sits in his easy chair,
And his ear has caught the ringing
Of many a church bell far and near,
Their own sweet music singing.
And his head sinks low on the aged breast,
While his thoughts far back are reaching
To the Sabbath morns of the boyish days,
And a mother's sacred teachings.

A few years later, and lo! the bells
A merrier strain were pealing,
And heavenward bore the marriage vows
Which in his manhood's joys were sealing.
But the old man's eyes are dimming now,
As memory holds before him
The sad, sad picture of later years,
When the tide of grief rolled o'er him.

When the bells were tolling for loved ones gone!
For the wife, the sons and daughters,
Who, one by one, from his home went out,
And down into death's dark waters.
But the aged heart has still one joy
Which his old life daily blesses,
And his eyes grow bright and his pulses warm,
'Neath a grand-child's sweet caresses.

But the old man wakes from his reverie,
And his dear old face is smiling,
While the child with her serious eyes reads on,
The Sabbath hours beguiling.
Ah! bells, once more ye will ring for him,
When the heavenly hand shall sever
The cord of life and his freed soul flies
To dwell with his own forever

LUMBERMAN'S EXCHANGE.

AN INTERESTING AND IMPORTANT MEETING AT WILLIAMSPORT.

An adjourned meeting of the Lumberman's Exchange was held in Williamsport, on the 30th ult., in their rooms on Willow street, with a large attendance, every mill in the city, but two or three, being represented, and two-thirds of the capital invested in manufacturing in Lock Haven also represented.

D. M. Peck, Vice President of the Exchange, occupied the chair.

The minutes of the preceding meeting were read and approved.

Mr. White made a statement as to the agreement, in relation to stock, made at Saginaw. He was one of the party who went West to consult with Western lumbermen in relation to production and supply. They found that the views of the Western men coincided with those of the West Branch valley, although the West Branch men were passive, said but little, but understood their position well. In relation to reciprocity there was but one opinion, that Canadian lumber should not be admitted free There was a universal feeling that the production should be regulated to accord with the demand.

[Mr. White here read the resolution passed at the Saginaw convention, to the effect that there was an overstock of lumber, causing a reduction of price, and that under the financial condition of the country, it was necessary to reduce the manufacture at the mills at least one-third, provided the spirit of the resolution met the views of those with whom they were brought into competition.]

The resolution was unanimously adopted. There they were differently situated. They would reduce manufacture, but would not check the cut. They were so peculiarly situated that they could hold their logs in the water. That was the position of the Western men. The fire fiend had devastated their timber land, and they were anxious to get out their logs where they would be safe from the forest flames. From all quarters, from the far west, Minnesota and Wisconsin, the resolution expressed their sentiments, and as a local organization it became necessary for the West Branch Lumberman's Exchange to act as an auxiliary. Local organizations were recommended by the convention, and they asked for canvassers to ascertain who would agree to the reduction, and that those who would not, be reported to the national organization. In that convention were men of influence, and their views had weight throughout the country. He believed that those views would be respected, and it was a duty devolving upon the Exchange to take action in accordance with them.

Mr. Foresman would say in reference to the canvassers, that the country was districted, and the canvassers were appointed for the purpose of getting all lumbermen to sign the national constitution, and report those who would not. He had the honor of being the canvasser for this district, and those who had not become members he would like their names at the earliest moment, as he was compelled to report October 15th.

Mr. Lentz would like to know what action Canada would take.

Vice President Peck replied that in August a meeting had been held there, and similar action had been taken to that of the Saginaw convention.

Mr. White took the chair, to allow Mr. Peck to introduce the following resolutions as a substitute:

WHEREAS, Owing to the large stock of lumber on hand in all sections of the country, to the depressed condition of all the business interests of the country, and to the action of the railroad companies carrying from this point, by a combination increasing the rates of freight one dollar per thousand feet from this point, while the rates were simultaneously reduced from three to four dollars per thousand feet from all points west, thereby enabling large amounts of lumber to be shipped into our market at a price less than the cost of production here, necessarily resulting in loss and ruin to those engaged in the business here, unless steps are taken to counteract the same; and as the only feasible way to do this, by reason of the action of the railroad companies as aforesaid, is to reduce our product largely; therefore,

Resolved, That we will adopt the resolution passed at the meeting of the National Association at East Saginaw, and curtail the cutting of our mills next season to two-thirds the average cut of the last two years.

Resolved, That the action of the railroad companies in charging us three fifths as much freight for carrying our lumber two hundred miles as they do for carrying lumber from the Western States eight hundred to one thousand miles, is an unjust discrimination against a large State industry, and is unwise and unjust in its operation, and was not contemplated when their chartered privileges were given them, and if persisted in, steps should be taken at once to bring the matter before the people in such manner that they may know how corporations created by them are destroying the business interests of this State, and correspondingly benefiting the interests of other States.

Mr. Peck said delegates were present at Saginaw who had been appointed by meetings held in different sections of the country. He was on the Committee of Resolutions, and they framed their resolutions to meet the extreme views represented. He thought this substitute was in accordance with the sentiment of the lumbermen of the valley. The agreement of lumbermen was not binding, and might not be considered as policy, as the public might look upon it as an attempt to get up a "corner." He did not wish to see them adopted hastily, but was in favor of a full discussion, and then if it was considered that the adoption of them would tend to benefit manufacturers, they should receive the endorsement of every member.

Mr. Foresman seconded the resolution. It was time the Exchange spoke out. They had given the Canawisa, or Philadelphia and Reading, the right of way, allowed them to run into their mill yards, endangering their property and increasing their insurance, and at the same time they were pro-rating and bringing in western lumber to the detriment of every manufacturer in the West Branch Valley. It looked like an effort to rout out the men of the Valley. He could not see why this should be done, for they had no western lines. He believed the people would be better off to-day if Williamsport had no railroad lines.

Mr. Merrill said the claim set up by the railroads was that they made nothing by bringing in western lumber, but they did it to keep their cars from rotting. The reduction of stock he thought would be the surest means of an equalization of freights. It was a plain matter of life and death to reduce the stock, and he thought the resolutions should be adopted.

Mr. Peck said that it would not be necessary to curtail the stock, were it not for the bringing in of western lumber. When the railroads raised their freights, they claimed they could not carry for the old rates, and it was to check the under current that he had offered his substitute.

Mr. White said all they asked was a fair market. The western markets were interfered with, the same as here, and it was Michigan that was doing the work. She would in a short time be out of lumber; here there was an unlimited supply. In the West there was a net work of railroads. Lines were constructed, and the Government allowed the homestead men to settle on land not taken by the lumbermen; they commenced the work of clearing up, and setting fire in their work of settlement, away went the timber of the lumbermen adjoining. The homestead men did not want to live in the wilderness, and by this means they forced a settlement, and lumbermen there openly declare that flame is their destruction. The day would come when West Branch lumber would be shipped to meet the demands of the Michigan people. He was heartily in favor of the resolutions offered.

After further discussion, the resolutions were read the second time.

Mr. Finney was in favor of them, but he wanted to see every man pledged; otherwise the resolutions would amount to nothing.

Mr. White was as well prepared to put in stock as any other man, and if there were those who wanted to go on to certain destruction, let them get out a large stock. The more stock they got out the less money they would have. It was only a quibble; he believed there was honor in lumbermen, and he also believed that the self-interest of every mill man demanded the passage of the substitute.

The resolutions were then put to vote, and carried unanimously.

Mr. Foresman moved that the Secretary furnish the Recording and Corresponding Secretaries of the National Association with copies of the resolution in reference to cutting. Carried.

Mr. Barrows moved that the resolutions as adopted be sent to the Associated Press for publication. Carried.

Mr. Finney offered the following:

Resolved, That a committee of two from Lock Haven and three from Williamsport be appointed to obtain signatures to an agreement to carry out the provisions of the resolution passed this day, and report at this Association all the firms who decline signing, said committee to report to the next meeting of this Exchange.

Carried.

The President appointed the following gentlemen as committee: Lock Haven—N. Shaw, J. S. Mason; Williamsport—P. B. Merrill, D. H. Merriman and R. M. Foresman.

Mr. Foresman offered several additional sections to the by-laws, as a guidance for the Directors, but after discussion the question was postponed until next meeting.

Exchange then adjourned.—Williamsport Bulletin.

A HARD LESSON.—The York Tribune, in commenting upon the course of the loyal Beecher, says:

If Mr. Beecher is innocent, he must look back with bitter regret and humiliation upon his course during these last years of trial. He has wasted strength, happiness, mental energy, money, and domestic peace in the vain effort to "suppress an earthquake." He has bargained with accusers for their silence, schemed with over-zealous friends to prevent any defense which might give notoriety to the charges, resorted to innumerable arts and devices to placate the adversary and buy the boon of a little longer silence. And all this while he has known that the scandal was not still. It was a sort of open secret, whispered at tea-tables, discussed in quiet corners, even showing itself now and then in the columns of the newspapers. There was a tacit understanding at Plymouth Church that the hideous thing should be ignored; but it perpetually came around to harass the preacher; women used it to control his action on public questions; men used it (if he tells the truth) to get money from him; there were scores of miserable letters, compacts, covenants, trusts, memoranda, and we know not what puzzling mess of documents, bargains, and confidences, for which common-place worldly people can find no reasonable excuse. Yet it ought to have been plain from the first that sooner or later all the efforts to keep back the explosion must come to naught, and the ruin must be all the greater from the long attempts at suppression.

RADICAL TACTICS.—For supreme ridiculousness commend us to the regular Radical organs. They can tell more lies about the Democracy, and make more contradictory statements in a week than the inventor of lies himself. A few weeks ago, the average Radical organ proclaimed far and wide that the New York Democracy would not nominate Hon. Samuel J. Tilden for Governor. The reason they gave was that Tilden was too honest a man; that he broke up the Tweed Ring and sent its members to the penitentiary or into exile, and much more of the same sort of stuff, winding up with the assertion that Mr. Tilden ought to be made Governor, but that the Democracy would not permit such a thing. But the Democracy did nominate Mr. Tilden unanimously, whereupon the average Radical organ changes its tune, and discovers that Mr. Tilden is a bad man, that he is the tool of the defunct Tweed Ring which he smashed, that he is a knave and a thief, and ought to be sent to the penitentiary; that he has been charmed by "malign serpents," and much other trash of the same character. And yet the average Radical organ pretends to truth and decency and generally has some played out preacher on its staff, who industriously hoes the Devil's half-acre, to the scandal of Christianity.

"LOYAL" FRAUDS.—The New York Sun says: It was excellent advice which the old Irish dame gave to her son just as he was embarking for America: "Patsey, dear," said the old woman, "Patsey, dear, be good to yourself." Henry D. Cooke, the predecessor of Boss Sheppard as Governor of the District of Columbia, evidently believes in being good to himself. He testified the other day in Philadelphia that the broken First National Bank of Washington, of which he was the President, was owned principally by the individual members of the firm of Jay Cooke & Co., of which he is one, and that this firm owed the bank $600,000, for which the defunct institution has no security except $100,000 in Northern Pacific bonds. He owed the bank personally $49,000 when it suspended, and the Potomac Ferry Company, a concern controlled by the Cookes, had been permitted to overdraw its account $5,000. Incalculable distress was brought upon hundreds of worthy people, many of them widows and orphans, by the failure of this bank, which by favor of the Administration was permitted to violate the banking laws with impunity; but Henry D. Cooke has been good to himself, and lives in affluence and is able to make costly presents when there is a wedding at the White House.

"Julius," the oldest lion in the United States, and for many years attached to Van Amburg's, Forepaugh's, and other menageries, died with lung fever, a few weeks ago, on the way back to New York. He cost $4,500, was thirty-one years old, killed two men and a number of animals, and died in Jersey. This lion has been in this section of country on several occasions.

TWO MORE "STATEMENTS"

A "maiden lady" of "the Beechers," named Catharine E., is out in a "statement" defending her "distinguished brother," the "Rev." Henry W. B., against the "slings and arrows of outrageous fortune," and handles "old man" Bowen without gloves. The "old man" retorts savagely, and accuses the fair Catharine E. of simply lying like a—Beecher! When these worthies accuse each other of lying and other crimes, we are inclined to believe both sides, on the principle that "when rogues fall out, honest men get their dues." "Swapping lies" seems to be a congenial pastime with all concerned in "the great sorrow," and if an "international lying match" could be inaugurated, Plymouth Church and its "distinguished pastor" would unquestionably win the prize. Naturalists say there are certain little monstrosities in the insect world which fortunately die in reproducing themselves. If that sanitary law prevailed in the higher orders of animal life—if only one he or one she Beecher, or Bowen, or Wilkeson, or Johnson could be produced during the allotted life of man—what a blessing it would have been to the entire community! Perverse and pestilent—dominating and cowardly—possessing the "wisdom of the serpent" without a particle of the "harmlessness of the dove," this fatal and mischievous family band themselves together like Italian banditti, and cunningly appealing to the passions, prejudices, and, indeed, stolid stupidity of what they impertinently call the "decent portion of the community," imagine they can ride rough-shod over "plain people," who do not believe that St. Paul was "a fool of a fellow" in comparison with their "gifted brother!" Nothing is safe from the polluting touch of a Beecher, if one of "the family" be assailed. The assailant is set upon by the hornets of Plymouth Church, and if mendacity, meanness, cowardice and cant can accomplish anything, his reputation is stung to death in a moment. Bowen is the last "shocking example" of the vindictiveness of the Beechers, but they may yet live to learn that it would have been better to have left "the old man" alone.—New York Day Book

A PATHETIC INCIDENT.—"Mintwood," the Paris correspondent of the New York Graphic, relates a pathetic incident of the actress Blanche d'Antigny, which has been revived since her recent death. Like the majority of French actresses, Blanche led an immoral life, and yet she was not destitute of kindness and delicacy, as the present anecdote certifies. When Luce, an actor, and her colleague at the Folie Dramatique, became ill and died, Blanche ordered her carriage, and, waiting upon the Cashier of the theatre, asked for an advance of 150 francs on her salary. The Cashier at first treated her request as a joke, knowing her abundant resources. "But I was never more sincere in my life," she urged. "But this is a strange request," replied the Cashier, "you have only to sell one of those," pointing to the diamonds in her ears, "to realize 10,000 francs." "Oh! I know that," she cried, lowering her veil to hide her tears; "but I want the money to buy flowers for poor Luce's grave, and for these I can only pay money honestly earned."

A DISGRACEFUL NOMINATION.—We see by our Wayne county papers that W. H. Dimmick, he who had to resign his seat in the Legislature last winter to save expulsion, for his attempt to "pinch" the banking institutions of this State, on a usury bill, has actually succeeded in having his county instruct their conferees for him for President Judge of the Wayne and Pike district. The vote in the convention stood 32 for Dimmick, 15 for Crane, and 3 for Hamlin. If the district conferees endorset his action then do the Democracy of the district deserve to be beaten. So distasteful is he to the true Democrats of Wayne that already two of the candidates placed on the ticket with him have declined the honor of his association.—Easton Sentinel.

VERY NICE EATING.—The Saratoga Sun gives the following as a dinner table feature adopted by some of the hotels at that resort: "At every plate the snow-white napkins, tastefully folded, are placed in clear cut glass goblets, and carefully disposed in every napkin is a beautiful little button-hole boquet. These are intended for the guests, and are cheerfully appropriated. The effect, both while the boquets embellish the napkins and after they have been transferred to the button-holes of the gentlemen's coats and to the bosoms of the ladies' dresses, is very pretty and pleasing. The Sunday bill of fare is handsomely illuminated, and, being so pretty, all of them are carried from the tables as a sort of souvenir.

OH, DEAR!—In Missouri they give it up. The Replicans have agreed to nominate no State ticket. The Philadelphia Evening Telegraph regards this as a humiliating affair, and plainly charges it to the conduct of the party in the Southern States. It says:

With such a set of scalawags running the Republican party the outlook is anything but encouraging for Republicanism. Nothing but prompt and wholesale surgery can save the case. There unwholesome excrescences must be lopped off, and free cautery resorted to, if life is to be preserved in the body Republican down south.

What a wonderful Doctor the editor of the Telegraph must be. His knowledge in political surgery is truly astonishing.

"LOYAL" OPINIONS.—The Boston Transcript says of the address of the Republican Congressional Committee:

"It was ill considered and crudely expressed, and will have no possible weight with the Republican party. It may possibly represent the views of Senator Logan and a few more filibustering politicians who aspire to leadership, and who ought to be content to follow."

And the Chicago Journal (Rep.) adds:

"A more discreditable botch than the Republican Congressional address never emanated from any political committee. In every point of view it is unworthy the men whose names are signed to it. The general judgment is that the paper is both stupid and wicked, and that it is divided in about equal parts between the two."

GETTING THINGS STILL WORSE MIXED.—And now comes the Journal de Marseilles to give its "statement" in the Beecher-Tilton case. It says that terrible troubles have broken out among three American preachers, viz:—Beecher, Stilton, and Moulton; that love letters written by Stilton to Madame Beecher Stowe have been found in the possession of the Rev. Mr. Moulton; that Stilton has brought an action against Mr. Beecher for the seduction of his youngest daughter Florence, claiming $50,000 damages; that Madame Beecher is the mother of Uncle Tom, the blind pianist, who created, a few years ago, so great a furore over France.

The West Chester Jeffersonian asks: "Are the sober-minded and order-loving men in the Reyublican party prepared to lend a hand in hurling the fire brand of Civil Rights upon that inflammable political element which takes counsel only of the prejudice of race? Are they willing to aid the carpet-baggers in inciting the negroes to riot and bloodshed in order that through a second San Domingo their party may maintain power? If not they will repudiate the candidates nominated on the Civil Rights platform."

A few days ago, the officers and soldiers of the Federal and Confederate Armies at Vicksburg formed an association, to be known as the "Order of Blues and Grays." Let this peaceful example be followed in all parts of the South.

The ball is rolling. First Louisiana and now South Carolina endorses the third term movement. Carpet-baggers, to the front!
