

The Republican.

GEORGE B. GOODLANDER,
Editor and Proprietor.

CLEARFIELD, PA.

WEDNESDAY MORNING, OCT. 21, 1874.

DEMOCRATIC STATE TICKET.

FOR JUDGE OF THE SUPREME COURT,
WARREN J. WOODWARD,
OF BEERS COUNTY.

FOR LIEUTENANT GOVERNOR,
JOHN LATTA,
OF WESTMORELAND COUNTY.

FOR ALBATOR GENERAL,
JUSTUS F. TEMPLE,
OF GREEN COUNTY.

FOR SECRETARY OF INTERNAL AFFAIRS,
WILLIAM M. MCCANDLESS,
OF PHILADELPHIA.

DISTRICT TICKET.

FOR CONGRESS,
L. A. MACKAY,
OF LOCK HAVEN.

FOR ADDITIONAL LAW JUDGE,
JOHN H. ORVIS,
OF BELLEVILLE.

FOR STATE SENATOR,
WILLIAM A. WALLACE,
OF CLEARFIELD.

COUNTY TICKET.

FOR ASSEMBLY,
W. R. HARTSHORN,
OF CURWENSVILLE.

FOR PROTHONOTARY, &c.,
ELI BLOOM,
OF CURWENSVILLE.

FOR REGISTER AND RECORDER, &c.,
I. J. MORGAN,
OF WALLACETON.

FOR COUNTY COMMISSIONER,
CONRAD W. KYLER, 1 year,
OF GRAHAM TOWNSHIP.

FOR COUNTY AUDITOR,
HENRY WHITHEAD, 1 year,
OF UNION TOWNSHIP.

FOR COUNTY SURVEYOR,
SAMUEL F. McCLOSKEY,
OF CURWENSVILLE.

WHO MAY VOTE.

It is well to remind our readers that under the new Constitution, every person offering to vote must show:

- 1. That he has been a citizen of the United States at least one month.—This will cut off all persons naturalized before there shall have returned six months preceding the election.—This is the same provision that prevails in the old Constitution.
- 2. That he has resided in the State a year, or, if formerly a resident, removed thereto shall have returned six months preceding the election.—This is the same provision that prevails in the old Constitution.
- 3. That he has resided in the election district where he offers to vote, at least two months immediately before the election.
- 4. That he has, within two years and at least a month before the election, paid a State or county tax assessed at least two months prior to the election and expect to vote.

THE DEMOCRATIC TICKET.—The Modoc and their Radical allies will no doubt flood the county with spurious tickets by election day. Below will be found the full list Democratic ticket as printed by us for the County Committee, and to be voted on the 3d.

JUDICIARY

Judge of the Supreme Court
Warren J. Woodward

Additional Law Judge
John H. Orvis

STATE

Lieutenant Governor
John Latta

Attorney General
Justus F. Temple

Secretary of Internal Affairs
William M. McCandlell

COUNTY

Congress
L. A. Mackay

State Senator
William A. Wallace

Assembly
W. R. Hartshorn

Prothonotary, &c.
Eli Bloom

Register and Recorder, &c.
I. J. Morgan

County Commissioner
Conrad W. Kyler, 1 year

County Auditor
Henry Whithead, 1 year

County Surveyor
Samuel F. McCloskey

Curwensville.

OUR COUNTY TICKET.

THE DIFFERENCE.

Tuesday, November 3d, is fixed by law for holding our general election, and it is the duty of all Democrats to vote for our nominees, especially since our party friends, have nominated an upright and competent man to fill the respective positions.

Our nominee for Assembly, General William R. Hartshorn, was born in Curwensville and still resides there, and is a representative of one of the oldest families in the county. He is of unquestionable private character, and a Democrat of the old school.

He entered the army as a lieutenant, and by bravery and integrity rose to the high and honorable position of Brigadier General. This fact alone settles the status of his ability. Since the close of the war, he has been engaged in merchandizing and the lumber trade, and stands high among business men, and will make an excellent Representative. His opponent, Dr. Porter, has betrayed his trust, and sold out to the enemy, with the treasury ring under his sympathy. During the hard times through which our people have passed, business men can speak, to make the calling and election clear to all. Now he sells out to the Radicals, and wants to enter a larger field to ply his vocation. He aspires to a seat in Congress, where "divides" are five and even ten-fold higher than at Harrisburg. But we will fall in his object. There are too many highminded honest voters in this Congressional district to send a Legislative rooster to the National Congress. We have been already misrepresented too long in that body, by the Credit Mobilier gang of pickpockets. Alexander could be no improvement on Scrofield, but might even be worse, because he lacks the ability and experience to assist in a first-class national robbery, without being detected. Hence the infamy would fall upon the voter, should he unfortunately be counted in as a Congressman. There is intelligence enough in this country to know that it a man misrepresents his constituents at the State capital, will do the same thing at the National capital, only to a worse degree.

GRIFFING THEIR TEETH.—The Radical organs are in a terrible way since the recent elections. The thunderclap from Ohio, Indiana and other States nearly drives them into rebellion. Their family, during their absence in the field, frequent the saloons and beer houses, and, in so doing, make up the party of the country, and therefore deserve the support of every Democrat. Besides, he is a first-class pennman and will make an excellent officer.

The Radical candidate, Samuel G. Knutts, we have known since his birth. He misrepresents his family and has betrayed his party. His father, uncle and relatives belong to the best families and are the most undeviating Democrats in the country; not one of whom will vote for him. He is an Ishmaelite, and wholly incompetent for the position he is seeking. He is a mere instrument in the hands of a few designing men, who will make a first class fool out of him, unless he learns their motives and takes the advice of friends before election day and leaves the field for some one more competent.

"So far as the example of this year the tide has been running against us, and certainly.

That is about the only political truth that organ has uttered since Col. Forney said salve for Europe. But this bit of truth is not all the writer says. His continues:

"This must be stopped, or the day is lost. And Pennsylvania is the field where the tide must be turned."

Now this is some of Morris' work.

ROSES FOR THE REPUBLICAN STATE CENTRAL COMMITTEE.—INDIANAPOLIS, Sept. 2, 1872.—Editor, The Indianapolis Journal:

Dear Sir: I desire to call your attention to the terrible scenes of violence and bloodshed transpiring throughout the South, and suggest that you give them as far as possible to the public press from this time until after the election.

Thomas J. Brandy, Chairman.

To show why the Radicals grind the Southern outrage mill, please read the following secret circular issued by the chairman of the Radical State Committee of Indiana to the newspapers of that State.

Then he exhorts the faithful to return to every personal and political effort in their power until election day to save the party from overwhelming defeat.

He is one of the best book keepers and accountants in the country. The Kauthaus railroad, and that like, is the warm advocate of the Radicals; he is an able and useful officer of an institution which they created, and it is bound to go through. It is in such a time as this that we need men to represent the people—not a clique—but the whole people, and we know that Mr. Mackay is the only one to assume a duty he will not discharge with fidelity. Let the people consider these facts.

While the Radical papers of this district are attacking Mr. Mackay because he is President of a National Bank, they should bear in mind that monopoly of which they were created was by the Radical party.—He did not create it. He has made an able and useful officer of an institution which they created, and it is bound to go through. It is in such a time as this that we need men to represent the people—not a clique—but the whole people, and we know that Mr. Mackay is the only one to assume a duty he will not discharge with fidelity. Let the people consider these facts.

Then he exhorts the faithful to return to every personal and political effort in their power until election day to save the party from overwhelming defeat.

He is one of the best book keepers and accountants in the country. The Kauthaus railroad, and that like, is the warm advocate of the Radicals; he is an able and useful officer of an institution which they created, and it is bound to go through. It is in such a time as this that we need men to represent the people—not a clique—but the whole people, and we know that Mr. Mackay is the only one to assume a duty he will not discharge with fidelity. Let the people consider these facts.

Then he exhorts the faithful to return to every personal and political effort in their power until election day to save the party from overwhelming defeat.

He is one of the best book keepers and accountants in the country. The Kauthaus railroad, and that like, is the warm advocate of the Radicals; he is an able and useful officer of an institution which they created, and it is bound to go through. It is in such a time as this that we need men to represent the people—not a clique—but the whole people, and we know that Mr. Mackay is the only one to assume a duty he will not discharge with fidelity. Let the people consider these facts.

Then he exhorts the faithful to return to every personal and political effort in their power until election day to save the party from overwhelming defeat.

He is one of the best book keepers and accountants in the country. The Kauthaus railroad, and that like, is the warm advocate of the Radicals; he is an able and useful officer of an institution which they created, and it is bound to go through. It is in such a time as this that we need men to represent the people—not a clique—but the whole people, and we know that Mr. Mackay is the only one to assume a duty he will not discharge with fidelity. Let the people consider these facts.

Then he exhorts the faithful to return to every personal and political effort in their power until election day to save the party from overwhelming defeat.

He is one of the best book keepers and accountants in the country. The Kauthaus railroad, and that like, is the warm advocate of the Radicals; he is an able and useful officer of an institution which they created, and it is bound to go through. It is in such a time as this that we need men to represent the people—not a clique—but the whole people, and we know that Mr. Mackay is the only one to assume a duty he will not discharge with fidelity. Let the people consider these facts.

Then he exhorts the faithful to return to every personal and political effort in their power until election day to save the party from overwhelming defeat.

He is one of the best book keepers and accountants in the country. The Kauthaus railroad, and that like, is the warm advocate of the Radicals; he is an able and useful officer of an institution which they created, and it is bound to go through. It is in such a time as this that we need men to represent the people—not a clique—but the whole people, and we know that Mr. Mackay is the only one to assume a duty he will not discharge with fidelity. Let the people consider these facts.

Then he exhorts the faithful to return to every personal and political effort in their power until election day to save the party from overwhelming defeat.

He is one of the best book keepers and accountants in the country. The Kauthaus railroad, and that like, is the warm advocate of the Radicals; he is an able and useful officer of an institution which they created, and it is bound to go through. It is in such a time as this that we need men to represent the people—not a clique—but the whole people, and we know that Mr. Mackay is the only one to assume a duty he will not discharge with fidelity. Let the people consider these facts.

Then he exhorts the faithful to return to every personal and political effort in their power until election day to save the party from overwhelming defeat.

He is one of the best book keepers and accountants in the country. The Kauthaus railroad, and that like, is the warm advocate of the Radicals; he is an able and useful officer of an institution which they created, and it is bound to go through. It is in such a time as this that we need men to represent the people—not a clique—but the whole people, and we know that Mr. Mackay is the only one to assume a duty he will not discharge with fidelity. Let the people consider these facts.

Then he exhorts the faithful to return to every personal and political effort in their power until election day to save the party from overwhelming defeat.

He is one of the best book keepers and accountants in the country. The Kauthaus railroad, and that like, is the warm advocate of the Radicals; he is an able and useful officer of an institution which they created, and it is bound to go through. It is in such a time as this that we need men to represent the people—not a clique—but the whole people, and we know that Mr. Mackay is the only one to assume a duty he will not discharge with fidelity. Let the people consider these facts.

Then he exhorts the faithful to return to every personal and political effort in their power until election day to save the party from overwhelming defeat.

He is one of the best book keepers and accountants in the country. The Kauthaus railroad, and that like, is the warm advocate of the Radicals; he is an able and useful officer of an institution which they created, and it is bound to go through. It is in such a time as this that we need men to represent the people—not a clique—but the whole people, and we know that Mr. Mackay is the only one to assume a duty he will not discharge with fidelity. Let the people consider these facts.

Then he exhorts the faithful to return to every personal and political effort in their power until election day to save the party from overwhelming defeat.

He is one of the best book keepers and accountants in the country. The Kauthaus railroad, and that like, is the warm advocate of the Radicals; he is an able and useful officer of an institution which they created, and it is bound to go through. It is in such a time as this that we need men to represent the people—not a clique—but the whole people, and we know that Mr. Mackay is the only one to assume a duty he will not discharge with fidelity. Let the people consider these facts.

Then he exhorts the faithful to return to every personal and political effort in their power until election day to save the party from overwhelming defeat.

He is one of the best book keepers and accountants in the country. The Kauthaus railroad, and that like, is the warm advocate of the Radicals; he is an able and useful officer of an institution which they created, and it is bound to go through. It is in such a time as this that we need men to represent the people—not a clique—but the whole people, and we know that Mr. Mackay is the only one to assume a duty he will not discharge with fidelity. Let the people consider these facts.

Then he exhorts the faithful to return to every personal and political effort in their power until election day to save the party from overwhelming defeat.

He is one of the best book keepers and accountants in the country. The Kauthaus railroad, and that like, is the warm advocate of the Radicals; he is an able and useful officer of an institution which they created, and it is bound to go through. It is in such a time as this that we need men to represent the people—not a clique—but the whole people, and we know that Mr. Mackay is the only one to assume a duty he will not discharge with fidelity. Let the people consider these facts.

Then he exhorts the faithful to return to every personal and political effort in their power until election day to save the party from overwhelming defeat.

He is one of the best book keepers and accountants in the country. The Kauthaus railroad, and that like, is the warm advocate of the Radicals; he is an able and useful officer of an institution which they created, and it is bound to go through. It is in such a time as this that we need men to represent the people—not a clique—but the whole people, and we know that Mr. Mackay is the only one to assume a duty he will not discharge with fidelity. Let the people consider these facts.

Then he exhorts the faithful to return to every personal and political effort in their power until election day to save the party from overwhelming defeat.

He is one of the best book keepers and accountants in the country. The Kauthaus railroad, and that like, is the warm advocate of the Radicals; he is an able and useful officer of an institution which they created, and it is bound to go through. It is in such a time as this that we need men to represent the people—not a clique—but the whole people, and we know that Mr. Mackay is the only one to assume a duty he will not discharge with fidelity. Let the people consider these facts.

Then he exhorts the faithful to return to every personal and political effort in their power until election day to save the party from overwhelming defeat.

He is one of the best book keepers and accountants in the country. The Kauthaus railroad, and that like, is the warm advocate of the Radicals; he is an able and useful officer of an institution which they created, and it is bound to go through. It is in such a time as this that we need men to represent the people—not a clique—but the whole people, and we know that Mr. Mackay is the only one to assume a duty he will not discharge with fidelity. Let the people consider these facts.

Then he exhorts the faithful to return to every personal and political effort in their power until election day to save the party from overwhelming defeat.

He is one of the best book keepers and accountants in the country. The Kauthaus railroad, and that like, is the warm advocate of the Radicals; he is an able and useful officer of an institution which they created, and it is bound to go through. It is in such a time as this that we need men to represent the people—not a clique—but the whole people, and we know that Mr. Mackay is the only one to assume a duty he will not discharge with fidelity. Let the people consider these facts.

Then he exhorts the faithful to return to every personal and political effort in their power until election day to save the party from overwhelming defeat.

He is one of the best book keepers and accountants in the country. The Kauthaus railroad, and that like, is the warm advocate of the Radicals; he is an able and useful officer of an institution which they created, and it is bound to go through. It is in such a time as this that we need men to represent the people—not a clique—but the whole people, and we know that Mr. Mackay is the only one to assume a duty he will not discharge with fidelity. Let the people consider these facts.

Then he exhorts the faithful to return to every personal and political effort in their power until election day to save the party from overwhelming defeat.

He is one of the best book keepers and accountants in the country. The Kauthaus railroad, and that like, is the warm advocate of the Radicals; he is an able and useful officer of an institution which they created, and it is bound to go through. It is in such a time as this that we need men to represent the people—not a clique—but the whole people, and we know that Mr. Mackay is the only one to assume a duty he will not discharge with fidelity. Let the people consider these facts.

Then he exhorts the faithful to return to every personal and political effort in their power until election day to save the party from overwhelming defeat.

He is one of the best book keepers and accountants in the country. The Kauthaus railroad, and that like, is the warm advocate of the Radicals; he is an able and useful officer of