AMANDA PRESENT.
It was near 12 o'clock, but she was awake and watching. She had gone to bed at 10, and would have remained there until the morning, had it not been for the fact that she had heard a noise in the night. She had never closed her eyes, but she had been watching. She had heard a noise, and she had been watching. She had heard a noise, and she had been watching. She had heard a noise, and she had been watching.

THE OLDEST CONGRESSMAN.
The death of Ex-Gov. Ross T. Throp, on Nov. 1st, at the age of ninety years, revives the question as to who are the oldest Congressmen. Governor Throp was the oldest of his class, having served during the years 1815 and 1816.

ICE HOUSES ABOVE GROUND.
Knowing as I do from long and extensive experience how common procrustianism is, I infer that there are many in various parts of the country who intend to build an ice house, and fill the coming winter, and have not even provided the material for it up to the present late day. For the benefit of this unfortunate class, I would say that I have more than once been obliged to fill an ice house and build it afterwards. I will explain this seemingly paradoxical expression. I have prepared a foundation, supplying proper dimensions, and subsequently enclosed it with the material forming the house. The style of house to which I refer is built entirely above ground. This class of houses may be made to preserve ice as well as those in the ground. The commercial houses of the country are all built above ground.

CATCHING TIGERS.
Full-grown tigers are very seldom captured, because the transport of them is very costly, and the tigers in Europe do not like them. Large tigers from the jungles of India are taken into the wooden parts of their cages in the corner and growl, and do not show themselves. They get swellings on their hind legs from lying in the cages, and the tigers are very difficult to handle.

A HINDOO FUNERAL.
The London Times of November 14th prints the following extract from the letter of Lieutenant C. E. Yate, Assistant Political Agent, Bombay Staff Corps, relative to the funeral of the Maharajah of Oodeypoor:

THE PRESIDENT.
How shall the Executive of a republic be constituted? What shall be the powers, the duties, the tenure of office and manner of choosing the Chief Magistrate?

GOOD WINNERS.
The Country Gentleman talks thus: The present writer is one who thinks that the present system of taxation is a matter of probability. The whole American nation, farmers included, are suffering from overtaxation; that is, a state of seeing how little we can get out of our present system, and how much we can get out of a better one. We make it a rule to see how much we can get out of our present system, and how much we can get out of a better one.
