

THE REPUBLICAN.

CLEARFIELD, PA.

WEDNESDAY MORNING, SEPT. 1, 1875.

Terms of Subscription.

It paid in advance, or within three months... $2.00
It paid after three and before six months... 2.00
1/2 paid for the duration of six months... 2.00
2/3 paid... 1.00
3/4 paid... 0.75
5/8 paid... 0.625
6/8 paid... 0.5625
7/8 paid... 0.50625
8/8 paid... 0.44166
9/8 paid... 0.375
10/8 paid... 0.3125
11/8 paid... 0.25625
12/8 paid... 0.20

RELIGIOUS NOTICES.

Methodist Episcopal Church—Rev. R. E. Stetson, Pastor.—Public Service every Sabbath at 10 A. M., & 7 P. M.
School at 9 A. M.
Prayer Meeting, at 7 P. M.
Cana Union Service, first Sabbath of every month, at 10 A. M.
Presbyterian Church—Rev. S. B. Berney, Minister.—Morning and evening Sabbath school at 2 P. M.—Prayer Meeting Wednesday evening.
St. Michael's Church—Catholic—Rev. P. J. Kavanaugh, Priest.—Morning Mass at 7 A. M., the first, third, and fourth Sundays of each month; Vespers and Benediction of the Blessed Sacrament at 7 P. M.—Sunday school every Sunday afternoon at 3 o'clock.

OFFICIAL DIRECTORY.

Judge of HADING QUARTERS SESSIONS COURT.
Second Monday of January.
Third Monday of March.
First Monday of June.
Fourth Monday of September.
First Monday of June.
Second Monday of November.
PUBLIC OFFICERS.
President Judge—Hon. Charles A. May, of Lock Haven.
Assistant Law Judge—John H. Orris, of Williamsport.
Associate Judges—William C. Foley, Clearfield; John J. Read, Carverville.
Prothonotary—Ellis Brown.
Register and Recorder—L. T. Morgan.
District Attorney—Frank Fitch.
Treasurer—David W. Miller.
Surficer—William H. McPherson.
County Coroner—Samuel F. McCloskey, Curwenville.
County Commissioners—John D. Thompson, George W. Tyler, Clearfield; Conrad W. Kyler, Graham.
County Auditor—James H. Hill, Lumber City.
Under Sheriff—John G. Cleland, Henry Whitehill.
Just Commissioners—John W. Shugart, James Mitchell, Clearfield.
Judge of Public Schools—John A. Gregory, Clearfield.
Notaries Public—John W. Wright, W. H. Beck, Andrew Cyrus, W. H. Cleland, J. J. Chapman, H. F. Hartshorn, N. A. Clark, Carverville; J. J. Langton, Emmet Sayers, Oceola Mills; John H. Hamilton, Luthersburg.

A Special edition is desired interesting in a local point of view, and profitable reading to outsiders who have no money.

New Session Tea—two months from China, at J. H. Lytle's.

The School Directors of Brady District wait to employ fourteen teachers. See advertisement.

GET REGISTERED.—To-day and tomorrow the Assessors will be at their respective election houses for the purpose of registering voters.

We notice by our exchanges that $1,000 counterfeits are in circulation. Well, they will not bother us. We will not be hoodwinked by any one.

It is the Hollidaysburg Register that says "Philippines, Clearfield court."—Philadelphia Journal. Well, the editor of the Register, like every other sensible creature, knows better to be thus.

PUBLIC SCHOOLS.—The public schools of this place will open for the ensuing term Monday next, September 6, with a full corps of teachers. Get your books and slate ready, boys and girls.

Neighbors and friends, do out the old and other odds which grow in front of your dwellings, and make our streets and alleys look as though the house and trees were all composed.

THE OATS CROP.—The finest oats crop ever harvested in this country has been had this season. The grain is excellent and the market value for the past two weeks has remained constant.

Particulars under the laws of Pennsylvania. Any party guilty of it shall be deemed a criminal, and on conviction be sentenced to imprisonment for life, and shall undergo an imprisonment not exceeding twelve months, or to death, or either, at the discretion of the court.

This new article is evidently a blessing and getting ready for a crusade in the Philadelphia journals, where the profession has been considerably excited for several years. We are highly pleased that he has furnished the Globe and the Journal with this bit of legal information. It may prove a blessing to the editor of those papers.

EDITORIAL MUSIC.—The editor of the Mahoning Argus, admits that he is the owner of two horns, and this is the way he shows his regard for a later issue.

Neighbors and friends, do out the old and other odds which grow in front of your dwellings, and make our streets and alleys look as though the house and trees were all composed.

HINDERS WEALTH.—The Reynolds' will, Herold says, as our street commissioners, Mr. Dennis Burgess, was making excavations on Jackson street east of Tracy, he struck upon an old van that was once connected with the tannery of Mr. Thomas Reynolds, Jr., that stood hard by, and after probing it thoroughly he discovered that beneath the accumulated debris of years a quantity of leather was deposited, and he set to work to remove it. After a few hours of labor, he found a quantity of leather, apparently a leather, state, which was to the dead man's estate, and, the other to the estate of Mr. J. A. Hayes, who was a tanner.

Final account of James McPherson, deceased, of the estate of Mr. J. A. Hayes, who was a tanner.

The Coleman Sisters—Clara and Alice, and their mother, Mrs. Coleman, passed through this place a week ago on their way to Biltmore, Indiana, where they have an eight month's engagement.

Our readers do not discount the puf too heavily, they will be sorry to find that the Argus is a great paper.

HINDERS WEALTH.—The Reynolds' will, Herold says, as our street commissioners,

Mr. Dennis Burgess, was making excavations

on Jackson street east of Tracy, he struck upon

an old van that was once connected with the

tannery of Mr. Thomas Reynolds, Jr., that stood

hard by, and after probing it thoroughly he

discovered that beneath the accumulated debris

of years a quantity of leather was deposited,

and he set to work to remove it. After a few

hours of labor, he found a quantity of leather,

apparently a leather, state, which was to the

dead man's estate, and, the other to the estate of

Mr. J. A. Hayes, who was a tanner.

Final account of James McPherson, deceased,

of the estate of Mr. J. A. Hayes, who was a tanner.

The Coleman Sisters—Clara and Alice, and their mother, Mrs. Coleman, passed through

this place a week ago on their way to Biltmore,

Indiana, where they have an eight month's engagement.

Our readers do not discount the puf too

heavily, they will be sorry to find that the Argus is a great paper.

HINDERS WEALTH.—The Reynolds' will, Herold says, as our street commissioners,

Mr. Dennis Burgess, was making excavations

on Jackson street east of Tracy, he struck upon

an old van that was once connected with the

tannery of Mr. Thomas Reynolds, Jr., that stood

hard by, and after probing it thoroughly he

discovered that beneath the accumulated debris

of years a quantity of leather was deposited,

and he set to work to remove it. After a few

hours of labor, he found a quantity of leather,

apparently a leather, state, which was to the

dead man's estate, and, the other to the estate of

Mr. J. A. Hayes, who was a tanner.

Final account of James McPherson, deceased,

of the estate of Mr. J. A. Hayes, who was a tanner.

The Coleman Sisters—Clara and Alice, and

their mother, Mrs. Coleman, passed through

this place a week ago on their way to Biltmore,

Indiana, where they have an eight month's engagement.

Our readers do not discount the puf too

heavily, they will be sorry to find that the Argus is a great paper.

HINDERS WEALTH.—The Reynolds' will, Herold says, as our street commissioners,

Mr. Dennis Burgess, was making excavations

on Jackson street east of Tracy, he struck upon

an old van that was once connected with the

tannery of Mr. Thomas Reynolds, Jr., that stood

hard by, and after probing it thoroughly he

discovered that beneath the accumulated debris

of years a quantity of leather was deposited,

and he set to work to remove it. After a few

hours of labor, he found a quantity of leather,

apparently a leather, state, which was to the

dead man's estate, and, the other to the estate of

Mr. J. A. Hayes, who was a tanner.

Final account of James McPherson, deceased,

of the estate of Mr. J. A. Hayes, who was a tanner.

The Coleman Sisters—Clara and Alice, and

their mother, Mrs. Coleman, passed through

this place a week ago on their way to Biltmore,

Indiana, where they have an eight month's engagement.

Our readers do not discount the puf too

heavily, they will be sorry to find that the Argus is a great paper.

HINDERS WEALTH.—The Reynolds' will, Herold says, as our street commissioners,

Mr. Dennis Burgess, was making excavations

on Jackson street east of Tracy, he struck upon

an old van that was once connected with the

tannery of Mr. Thomas Reynolds, Jr., that stood

hard by, and after probing it thoroughly he

discovered that beneath the accumulated debris

of years a quantity of leather was deposited,

and he set to work to remove it. After a few

hours of labor, he found a quantity of leather,

apparently a leather, state, which was to the

dead man's estate, and, the other to the estate of

Mr. J. A. Hayes, who was a tanner.

Final account of James McPherson, deceased,

of the estate of Mr. J. A. Hayes, who was a tanner.

The Coleman Sisters—Clara and Alice, and

their mother, Mrs. Coleman, passed through

this place a week ago on their way to Biltmore,

Indiana, where they have an eight month's engagement.

Our readers do not discount the puf too

heavily, they will be sorry to find that the Argus is a great paper.

HINDERS WEALTH.—The Reynolds' will, Herold says, as our street commissioners,

Mr. Dennis Burgess, was making excavations

on Jackson street east of Tracy, he struck upon

an old van that was once connected with the

tannery of Mr. Thomas Reynolds, Jr., that stood

hard by, and after probing it thoroughly he

discovered that beneath the accumulated debris

of years a quantity of leather was deposited,

and he set to work to remove it. After a few

hours of labor, he found a quantity of leather,

apparently a leather, state, which was to the

dead man's estate, and, the other to the estate of

Mr. J. A. Hayes, who was a tanner.

Final account of James McPherson, deceased,

of the estate of Mr. J. A. Hayes, who was a tanner.

The Coleman Sisters—Clara and Alice, and

their mother, Mrs. Coleman, passed through

this place a week ago on their way to Biltmore,

Indiana, where they have an eight month's engagement.

Our readers do not discount the puf too

heavily, they will be sorry to find that the Argus is a great paper.

HINDERS WEALTH.—The Reynolds' will, Herold says, as our street commissioners,

Mr. Dennis Burgess, was making excavations

on Jackson street east of Tracy, he struck upon

an old van that was once connected with the

tannery of Mr. Thomas Reynolds, Jr., that stood

hard by, and after probing it thoroughly he

discovered that beneath the accumulated debris

of years a quantity of leather was deposited,

and he set to work to remove it. After a few

hours of labor, he found a quantity of leather,

apparently a leather, state, which was to the

dead man's estate, and, the other to the estate of

Mr. J. A. Hayes, who was a tanner.

Final account of James McPherson, deceased,

of the estate of Mr. J