portions of the State this tax is so light that it is only a nominal qualification of the rights of the elector. This inequality is palpably unjust and the tax is often burdensome, and, small as it may be, frequently prevents a laboring man from going to the polls.—There is no good reason why the right of suffrage in one county should be attended with greater burdens than in another, and, on the contrary, there seems great injustice in such a regulation. I renew therefore, my suggestion of last year, that all the laws impossing taxes on trades, occupations cosing taxes on trades, occupations and professions be repealed, and that a unit arm poll-tax be imposed, and that this tax be made so reasonable that its payment will be within the ability of some man in the Sate.
