W. W. BELKNAP, Can Belknap be tried by the Senate and perpetually disqualified from holding office, notwithstanding that he is not a private citizen? It is, then, any citizen who has ever held office under the United States at any period of his life is liable, not only now but at any time hereafter before his death, to impeachment and disqualification. This is an important constitutional question which is likely to be decided soon by the Senate. The Democrats are talking of impeaching ex-Archbishop Williams next, and there is no telling where they may stop if every ex-officer is liable. Office in Court House, Clearfield, Pa.

THE BIRD CATCHERS, Ever since it became the fashion for ladies to wear the feathers of small birds in their bonnets and hats, these unfortunate winged creatures have had a hard time of it. Office in Court House, Clearfield, Pa.

THE POSTAL CARD, When the postal card was established, it was denounced by certain indolent statesmen and newspaper editors as a "vain and trifling whim of a corrupt and extravagant Administration, vainly seeking for some plying to amuse the people with the language of a vulgar and uneducated man, who were to be lifted, it seems now, however, that the people take to this whim of Mr. Croswell very kindly. Office in Court House, Clearfield, Pa.

THE POWER OF KINDNESS, "Are you not afraid," said a friend to Miss Dix, the philanthropist, "to travel over the country alone? I am naturally timid," she replied, "and I feel, like all my sex, but in order to carry out my purpose, I know that it is necessary to make sacrifices, and encounter dangers. It is true, I have been in my travels through the various States, in perilous situations. I will not deny that I have been in the State of Michigan. I had hired a carriage and driver to convey me some distance through an unhabited portion of the country. In starting, I discovered that the driver, a young lad, had been left behind by the carriage.
