POOR MISSISSIPPI. This negro-ridden and carpet-bag plundered Commonwealth, next to Louisiana, has suffered more under the Radical reconstruction policy than any other State. For twelve years previous to the 1st of January, 1867, this State has been wholly under the thumb of Radicalism, and yet, black and white were more impoverished and unhappy on the opening of the new year than ever before. Why other race should have been rendered unhappy, while all their friends held the offices, we cannot define. In November last, very unexpectedly to all parties, a large majority of the people voted for the Democratic nominees for State and county offices. The former were all elected, and the county offices in three-fourths of the counties were also of the same party.
