THE REPUBLICAN.

Wednesday Morning, Sept. 13, 1917.
 CLEARFIELD, PA.
 The National of New York, in the resolutions adopted at their State Convention on Tuesday, July 17, 1917, the most outspoken presentation of communistic doctrine that we have thus far had from any presumably respectable body. Various foreign agitators in New York and San Francisco have promulgated similar ideas, and numerous Conventions, not only of National, Greenbackers and Labor Reformers, so-called, but even of the older political parties as well, have made demands which logically led to these results; but we believe this to be the first time that a body of decent American citizens, who are described as the most part honest and sober men, have deliberately encouraged their connection with the accumulation of property is a crime.

A BISHOP FOR PRESIDENT.
 A very remarkable sermon was delivered a few days ago at Martha's vineyard, by an eloquent young Methodist preacher from Lowell, Maine, the Rev. Herbert Hubbard. It was devoted to showing the grandeur and power of the Methodist Church in this country. He asserted that in 1876 the Methodist Church in the United States had 47,000 churches, and 4,000,000 members, and another in active service. He said that it was the duty of this powerful religious organization to hold the balance of power in the United States, and that it was the duty of its members to do so. He asserted that the Methodist Church was the only church in the United States that had the power to do so, and that it was the duty of its members to do so.
