MY NEIGHBOR AND I.
BY REV. J. J. LINGLE.
Oh, I pity my neighbor over the way,
Who is always sure to play
No little hands to trouble his hair;
No little "cuttings" to vex his care;
No little "turn-outs" to vex and tease,
Nothing to do but to be his own case.

CONTAGIOUS FOLLIES.
In times of panic, those people who have escaped have double need of keeping cool and steady in manner, thus sustaining themselves and helping the others. Men of clear ideas and positive convictions ought to stand firm amid the swelter of uncertainty and fearful ripples upon which, after the fever of the contagion of the deluded may gather. We are in such a predicament as this at the present time, and men of sound judgment upon finance need to keep their heads and keep their tempers. More abuse of the various branches of industry will effect nothing. It is necessary to be reasonable even with their unreasonable and tolerant of their intolerance.

THE ABOVE CREW IS CAPABLE OF ABSOLUTE TERROR.
The above facts are capable of absolute terror. The above facts are capable of absolute terror. The above facts are capable of absolute terror.

LOOKERON IN VENICE.
General Davis, editor of the Doylestown Democrat, and who was one of our Commissioners to the Paris Exposition, after an absence of five months in Europe, has returned to his post. He traversed the Continent of Europe while abroad, and being a close observer of its political and social conditions, he is in a position to give us a valuable insight into the character and social habits of the people, he says:
