THAT BIRD STORY. It's strange how little boys' mothers Can find out all they do, If a fellow doer anything naughty, Or says anything that's not true! They'll look at you just a moment Till your heart in your busous swells, And then they know all about it:— For a little bird tells!

Now where the little bird somes from, Or where the little bird goes, If he is covered with beautiful plaumage, Or blast as the king of the crows, If his vaice is as baren as a raven Or clear as the riegiog of belir, I know not-but this I am sure of— A little bird tells.

The moment you think a thing wicked, The moment you do a thing lead,
Are angry or sullen or haleful,
Get ugly or stupid or mad,
Or tone a dear brother or rister—
That instant your sentence be knotle,
And the whole to mamma in a minute.
That little bird tells.

You may be in the depths of a closet Where acholy sees but a mouse, You may be all alone in the cellar, You may be on the tip of the house, You may be in the dark and the allene Os out in the wools and the dellar. No matter? Wherever it happens, The little bird tells?

And the only contrivance to stop him. Is just to be sure what you saySure of your facts and your fancies,
Sure of your work and your play!
Be honest, he brave and be kindly,
Be gentle and loving as well,
And then you can laugh at the stories.
The Hitle bird tells!

Mr. Garfield is peculiarly unfortunate—more so than any other man who has ever been solected as a candidate for the Presidency. No sooner did he begin to posture in that capacity than the nelly facts of his peculiar rection at Chicago, as a delegate from Allegheny county. I left before the
