BY WILLIAM R. RESTA

Another figsting year has pass'd away; Cler'd its assessed of eig, and tears, and care And thoughtless follow, light as viewless air The advent of each festire New Yoar's day But finds us nearer to our home of clay Old age, and infancy, and youthful b Oid age, and inflacer, and youtcan means.
Drup, one by one, into a yawning tomb;
But cheer'd by Christian Hope's celectial ray.
We who survive them yield them up to God;
With hearts resign'd to lits resistions will,
We how beneath our Father's cheefing red;
He who work'd wond cousty of oid can still
