

The Republican

GEORGE B. GOODLANDER, Editor.

WEDNESDAY MORNING, MARCH 26, 1881.

Reader, if you want to know what is going on in the business world, just read our advertising columns. The Special column is particularly interesting.

IMPURED ON AGAIN—It looks now as though Conkling and Logan have things politically as much their own way as if their third term project had succeeded.

The "SUN" EDITOR DEAD.—John F. Crow, for many years managing editor of the Baltimore Sun, died suddenly in that city on the 23d instant, aged 60 years.

The Raleigh (N. C.) News of the 15th inst. says: "The apple trees are in full bloom here. The buds on the plum trees are nearly open. There is an odor of Spring in the air."

NO SEASION.—The latest telegrams from Washington, relating to an extra session of Congress, are to the effect that President Garfield concluded on Monday that he would not call an extra session.

The 14th of March was a field-day in the United States Senate. "A Confederate Brigadier" was Hill ed in and smoked out most completely. Read the proceedings on our fourth page.

GRANT SETTLED.—The West Chester Village Record has learned of the purchase of fifty acres of ground near Wayne Station, on the Pennsylvania railroad, by Gen. Grant, upon which he will build a handsome residence.

Our first page is covered with a variety of literary and historical reading matter suitable for old and young. Statemen, divines, scientists, and all others may learn a good lesson by giving it an attentive perusal.

REFUSED RADICALISM.—Gen. Shields was allowed to die in poverty, and the widow of Gen. Thomas receives but thirty dollars per month, while the Government has spent $10,000 in trying to prove that a darkey owned at West Point didn't slit his own ears.

EX-SPEAKER RANDALL has our thanks for a lot of valuable public documents. We hope that the member from the III. district will have a good time during the session of the XLVII. Congress, so as to overbalance the burdens of the past two sessions.

ANTAGONIZING.—It looks now as though the Garfield and Grant forces would soon separate. Both the leaders indicated want to be on the Presidential track in 1884, and as the road to the White House is not a single track both cannot go over it. If in their blind zeal they attempt it, there will be a collision and somebody hurt. It is pretty plain already that Garfield wants to be his successor. There is his sin ahead.

NOT SEARED.—They say that Senator Sherman has great difficulty in giving Vice President Arthur in recognition when he wants to say anything. This is a horrible case of things called a "Cotton" Arthur out of office for three years and out of office.

THREE YEARS AGO Hayes and Sherman both denounced Arthur as a scoundrel, and the official letters are on file. More. We believe they told the truth. Yet today he sits in the United States Senate as its presiding officer. What a "grand moral idea!"

SOMETHING WRONG.—It looks as though Garfield upset several Grant cards the other day. In the various transfers of office on Thursday last, the Rev. M. J. Cramer, Gen. Grant, brother-in-law, drops out of his position as Minister to Denmark, and Gen. Adam Badeau goes in. What with the appointment of Robertson for Collector of Customs in New York and the removal of Cramer, Thursday was a bad day for the third term faction.

MILED AGAIN.—The New York Sun makes the following pertinent inquiry: "Did the President ever live who would have dared to place upon the table of Daniel Webster, John C. Calhoun, John J. Crittenden or Henry Clay a bouquet as a token of White House approval of a vote?" The point is here: Garfield's man Friday, who bosses the party garden at the White House, placed a bouquet on the desk of the "Confederate Brigadier." Senator Mahone, of Virginia, after he voted to betray his party friends who had elected him. This act is certainly sentimental White House-ism. Shame!

A "LOYAL" DOSE.—The Harrisburg Patriot remarks: "A part of the corrupt bargain with Mahone is revealed in the selection of Mahone's man, Riddberger, for Sergeant-at-Arms of the Senate of the United States. Riddberger is the editor of a repudiation organ in Virginia, and is one of the 'Confederate Brigadiers.' Such superior New England loyalists as Morrill, Hoar and Dawes must have squirmed when this ex-rebel and repudiator was presented to them by Mahone for Sergeant-at-Arms of the Senate. But there was no help for it. They could expect from Mahone none but his own kind when he had the selection. Compromisers and mongers of corrupt political bargains must not be over nice."

PROFOUND VIEWS.—The Columbia Freeman avers that John I. Mitchell, the new Senator from this State, is a profound and seeing statesman that is made perfectly manifest from the broad view he takes of the bargain entered into by his colleague, Don Cameron, with Mahone, who addresses the doctrine that the honor of a State consists in repudiating her public debt. Mitchell says: "I think that the action of Mahone means the dawning of a new and brighter day for this country. It means the establishment of national, not sectional parties. The fetters have been broken and the apostle of a new order of things has come forth." Mitchell is undoubtedly a "brick," as is evident from this opinion which is an opinion.

THE "ROCKED" PRESIDENT.

The Philadelphia Times says: "Resolution, if his friends are to be believed, is not Garfield's strongest characteristic. There are a good many concurrent testimonies to this, however, in the President's own actions. He has from the first dreaded the idea of an extra session. Like all men new in the office, he wants to enjoy peace and unmolested the intoxicating up of supreme power without the incessant attrition that comes from the co-ordinate branch. He feels equal to the filling of all the places that are likely to be vacant, and, if the truth were known, he wants to be rid of the intimacies bred from long association on terms of equality with members who do not realize the difference between 'Jim' Garfield on the floor and President Garfield in the White House. When he listens to Blaine and the stalwarts, who ache for ammunition to fill the caissons for the Fall campaign, he glows with a desire to straightway summon Congress; yet, however, he reads the unanswerable arguments of the able editors, who have a wholesome dread of partisan repudiation in legislative blunders, his mind wanders again and he is rocked on the billows of a problem too deep for hasty solution. The bankers too have been sending in their notes of warning. They do not want an extra session, you may be sure, and it may turn out that the cogency of the Cabinet and the pleading of the party prizes will turn out unavailing as against this still small voice of the money power, which has a knack of working in mysterious ways its wonders to perform." We advise the President to keep a sharp lookout for shrewd dealers like Ames, and pavement contractors, like De Golyer, who always have an eye to business, whether it results in damaging the reputation of a Congressman, Senator, or President, or not.

A FEN IN THE CAMP.—It appears that a majority of the Senators and Members of our Legislature have but little business to attend to at home, and had, therefore, made up their minds that they would spend the one hundred days at Harrisburg (which expires on the 14th of April) without doing anything, and then remain in session for fifty days longer, for which they propose to charge $10 per day, making the session one hundred and fifty days and pocket $1,500, instead of $1,000. However, the Auditor General and State Treasurer, have appealed to the Attorney General, and he has rendered an opinion that the fifty-day grab would be an unconstitutional act; that the State Treasury is not warranted in paying out more than $1,000 salary and the mileage to which each is entitled. If our legislators cannot discharge their proper duty to the taxpayers by the 14th of April, they must work for nothing the balance of the time they may be in session. This decision has caused a great flurry among those members who have already drawn their $1,000 and spent it. Fan ahead, but they will get away with the $1,500, which is about all they go for here.

LOCAL PATRIOTS.—The city of Washington is crowded with clamorous claimants for office, and the new administration is fairly besieged about with gangs of hungry politicians who "want something." During the Presidential campaign one of the strongest pleas for the support of Republican office-holders who served under the Republican administration, was that which called to mind the fact that in the case of General Hancock's election they would necessarily be forced to quit. Upon this ground was based repeated demands for contributions of money to help the cause along, to which they readily replied with their cash. Now it would seem that they are in as much danger of losing their places as if a Democratic President had been chosen. There could not have been a greater number of office-seekers at the Capital if Hancock had been elected than there is now.

DEMONSTRATION.—In his recent reply to Senator Hill, General Mahone confessed that he fought with his people in the "late unhappy contest" and had no apology to make for it. Under any other circumstances this allegation would have been met with a look of indignation from the Republican side of the House. If Conger and Hawley had not been aware that Mahone was "fixed" they would have leaped to their feet and with frothy mouths cried out against the defamations of the "rebel brigadiers." But silence prevailed among the Republicans. Even a rebel brigadier's shortcomings are forgotten when he votes with their side.

LECTURER LIKE.—The Cleveland Plaindealer is reminded by Garfield's position on public questions of a certain lecturer. Having an engagement to speak in a town upon certain matters of an ecclesiastical nature, and not desiring to wound anyone's feelings, he inquired of a local committee member what subjects he had best avoid. He was informed that it would not do to say anything against the Episcopalians, or Methodists, or Catholics, or any of the other evangelical churches, because the members thereof might not like it. "But," said the committee man, at last, "you may give the Mormons—"; there's one town.

SONS AT LAST.—That noted Southern Abolitionist, Mr. Cassius M. Clay, writes to a Northern friend: "I can't go with the Republicans for centralization, corruption in office, extravagant expenditures and imperialism. I am a Jeffersonian Democrat, and maintain that the rights of the States and the Federal government are granted by the people and equally sacred."

MASKED ROBBERS

An Oil City (Pa.) dispatch, dated March 24, says: "About ten o'clock last night seven masked men robbed the house of Mr. John Connors, Sr., a wealthy old man, living in an isolated locality near Queenstown, in Clarion county. Mr. Connors is about seventy years old, and when the burglars called upon him he was seated with his aged wife by the fire-place. Five of the men entered and two remained on guard outside. Upon entering the burglars ordered the old man to open his safe, which stood in the room. This he refused to do, when they shot and beat him in a fearful manner. One bullet taking effect in his head. The old man still refusing, they proceeded to torture Mrs. Connors by putting her on burning coals. They threatened to roast her alive before his eyes, and proceeded to do so. This caused the old man to succumb, and he opened his treasure-chest, when the burglars helped themselves to gold, silver and bonds to the value of from fifteen to twenty thousand dollars. Railroad bonds, East Brady bridge bonds, six thousand in Government bonds, and a large quantity of other negotiable papers were taken. Connors is the owner of one of the best grain farms in Western Pennsylvania, and receives a large royalty from coal companies operating on his farm. The old man is now lying in a critical condition and it is impossible to tell exactly how much is taken. There is no clue to the robbers, but it is supposed that they knew all about the house and the old man's property. They are thought to be residents of the neighborhood and not professional thieves."

A MODERN CRUADER.—The Newark (Ohio) Advocate remarks: The Judge Hunt of Louisiana, the new Secretary of the Navy, is not exactly an old salt, but he has sailed the seas of matrimony to some effect and is not altogether unacquainted with squalls and stormy weather. He has buried two wives, has divorced one, and another one shares his house and board at this writing. The divorced wife, feeling that improper advantage had been taken of her in the Louisiana Courts during her absence in Europe, made an attempt for several years to set aside the divorce. As the Judge had taken to himself a new wife, this placed her in rather an awkward position. The courts stood by him, though Louisiana justice does not. The Judge seems to be a person well fitted to assist Mr. Garfield in his crusade against Polygamy.

THE TRAITOR AHEAD.—The Philadelphia Times states that case Philipine from Virginia shows up well on the committee. Mr. Mahone has no chairmanship and a place on three other committees. This is doing better than almost any of the Senators. Senator Sherman has an ornamental chairmanship and two committee places; Senator Frye has three committees and Senator Harrison only two. Mahone has even beaten Senator Cameron, who has one chairmanship and two other places, and Senator Mitchell is left away in the shade. The most of them will be satisfied, however, since had it not been for Mahone they would not have done so well.

SOMEBODY TO BE CREATED.—The Bellefonte Democrat says: It is reported from London that President Garfield wrote a letter to the Cobden Club, of which he is an honorary member, in which he expressed himself in favor of "all possible ventilation on the subject of free trade in America." Whether the President's views accord with those of the Cobden Club, or not, one thing is certain, not a word in his inaugural address will encourage the protectionists to hope that he will favor the protection policy which was so fiercely claimed to be an issue in his election to the Presidency.

THINK OF IT!—Remarks the Pittsburgh Post: "On what small things great events hinge. Here is the 'little rebel' repudiator of Virginia, selling his vote to make the Senate a tie, so that Arthur, kicked out of office by Hayes and Sherman for bribery, incapacity and general misconduct, can have a casting vote, so and determine the Senate organization. In there not a pungent odor of Credit Mobilier and De Golyer knavery already exhaled from the Garfield administration?"

A COSTLY SENATOR.—The Williamsport Banner says: "It cost Pennsylvania over $300,000 to elect a Republican United States Senator. He should prove a valuable representative in that honorable body, when he cost such a price. It cost only two hours time to elect Senator Wallace." That's the difference in cash between the two Senators. Mitchell must be more active in the future than he has been in the past if he ever pays for his bill.

LOVELY!—"A Confederate Brigadier" now rules the United States Senate since that body has again drifted into the hands of the Radical party. General Mahone, of Virginia, is his name. He was one of Mosby's men well known to the 5th Pennsylvania and Beckett regiments. "Loyalty," about which the Radicals have boasted so much, during war times, seems to have taken wings and flown away down South. What hypocrisy!

A GOLDEN REWARD.—Ex-Governor Hendricks, of Indiana, has sent to R. B. Martin, of Indianapolis, a valuable gold-headed ebony cane in payment of a debt he had last year upon the result of the Chicago Convention. The ex-Governor wagers that Grant would be the Republican candidate.

CROWDING.—A Washington correspondent of the Philadelphia Times, illustrating how busy the new administration is kept, avers that the President has not kissed either his mother or wife since the inauguration scene. "The Government" must be kept busy indeed.

THE CHANGE.—"A Confederate Brigadier" (Mahone) and the man who was kicked out of the New York Custom House (Arthur), for general crookedness, now control the United States. How charming!

CAN'T LET HIM ALONE.—The Pittsburgh Critic wants Senator Wallace nominated for State Treasurer next Fall, or Governor for the Fall after.

NO APPOINTMENT.

The Constitution of Pennsylvania enjoins on the legislature the duty of apportioning the Senate into equal and Representative districts "at each decennial census." The time for making this apportionment is here and yet nothing has been done. The act of 1876, which authorized the present law, has been reported as a number on the calendar, and beyond that nothing has been done. It is said that the Legislature is not in possession of an official copy of the act, and that for this reason the Apportionment Committee have been unable to prepare the bills. There is certainly no difficulty in procuring the official copies returns from the proper authorities, and that there is nothing in this respect.

The changes in representation cannot be many, and the task of re-apportioning the State will therefore be a comparatively easy one. The Legislature seriously desired to perform the duty required by the Constitution. In the apportionment of the Senate Schuykill is no longer entitled to two members, and Lebanon is not entitled to two, but a liberal interpretation of the purpose of the apportionment of the Senate will result in the apportionment of two members to Schuykill for two Senators and Lebanon to Lehigh for two. Herks and Luzerne will have a population larger than the two Senators and Schuykill and Lebanon together have a population nearly equal to two. In the Senatorial apportionment but few other changes will be required. In the House of Representatives there will be no greater. Philadelphia, Allegheny, Luzerne, Clearfield and McKean will gain eight members in all, and these must be taken from the counties that have not kept pace with the rest in the matter of population increase since the last census. So there is no difficulty in making an apportionment of members of the House, and not the slightest room for the exercise of partisan favoritism.

It is intimated that there is no intention on the part of the Legislature to obey the injunctions of the Constitution in making an apportionment of Senators and members at this session. The extraordinary delay in reporting the proper bill is a sufficient evidence of such a suspension. It has been alleged as a pretext for this evasion of duty that it will be necessary to hold an extra session next winter to apportion members of the House, and that the Legislative apportionment may not be made at the same time. If an extra session should be required to make a Congressional apportionment, that does not afford the slightest reason for neglecting to perform the duty of making a Legislative apportionment. There is no necessary relation between the two that one should be postponed for the other. The people of Pennsylvania may be very duly assured that the Legislature will not see in this failure to make an apportionment the invention of a pretext for holding a protracted extra session for apportioning members of Congress.

It is proper legislation an extra session for apportioning members of Congress must not be required. It is probable that the number of Representatives in Congress will be increased, as such a disposition was plainly made in the part of the Republicans in the last session. In the State of Pennsylvania will hold its own gain in representation. It will be necessary for the Legislature to provide that such additional members as may be assigned to this State be elected at large as was done in 1872. It is represented to be unchanged there will be no need of an apportionment until the next regular session in 1883.

But whether an extra session for making a Congressional apportionment is required or not there is in the action or excuse for neglecting to make the regular Legislative apportionment now, as required by the Constitution. The delay for reporting the proper bill is a sufficient evidence of such a suspension. The present Legislature does not enjoy so large a share of public esteem that it can afford to practice such an experiment on the public temper.—Harrisburg Patriot.

THE PRESIDENT AND REPUDIATION.

The trade between the Republicans of the Senate and Mahone for the offices and committees of the body, is a matter to which President Garfield has been justly held responsible. It is simply a bargain by which Garfield gets a place, that he could not get on his merits, and an ex-Confederate repudiator secures the second most important position in the Senate, and the Republican party is made a party to the bargain.

The Republican party of Virginia, with the intelligent white anti-repudiation element, driven out of it, will constitute a very important factor in the Presidential election, and the Republicans should be prepared to meet it.

ROBBERS ATTEMPT

A NOTORIOUS HOBNOB ATTEMPT TO TUNNEL INTO THE BANK YACUAND IS SHOT DOWN IN HIS TRACKS BY OFFICIALS WHO HAVE BEEN APPRISED OF HIS DOINGS.

ROLLA, Mo., March 23.—One of the boldest attempts at bank robbing in the history of Missouri occurred in this city at 3 o'clock this morning, which resulted in the death of the burglar, Pat Ebert. He arrived in Rolla about a month ago from Kansas, ostensibly taking up his abode at the National Hotel. His suspicious conduct attracted attention and upon investigation it was discovered that the burglar had gained access to the vault. Ebert was employed in the bank and for three nights was employed in his desperate efforts to tunnel to the vault. On the fourth night, just as he had made an entrance to the vault, Marshal Dennis and his posse, at a signal given by the cashier, who was accosted in the hall, surrounded the building and attempted his capture alive, but Ebert, who was armed with a dagger and a revolver, made a desperate effort to escape and fled down the street. He lived one hour after being shot but would reveal nothing.
