

THE REPUBLICAN.

WEDNESDAY MORNING, MAY 11, 1881.

SMALL OUR PARTING BE FOREVER.

ators to demand all the committees and all the chairmanships by the casting vote of the Vice President is simply to empower the Vice President to appoint the committees. That has never been consented to until this session, when, for the sake of peace, the Democrats permitted it. It will never be permitted again, and due and fair warning is now given to that effect.

OUR DON.

Is not the Washington Post just a trifle too hard upon our Don? Read what it says: "If it be true that Don Cameron is in the habit of attending the sessions of the Senate, day after day, in a state of intoxication, something should be done to prevent him from thus exhibiting himself. It is true that he has a fashion of keeping a brace of loaded revolvers within easy reach when engaged in debate on the floor, the Sergeant at Arms should hold himself in readiness to prevent any serious consequences. If it be true that he is accustomed to conduct himself in a most disorderly manner while within the precincts of the Senate Chamber, the courtesy of the Senate should be invoked to restrain him. Don Cameron is not an interesting figure in the annals of American statesmanship, and as a general proposition, the country is not disposed to bear him to any great degree. He sits in the Senate, the product of the most thoroughly disreputable political machine in the land, and the special representative of the political prostitute—now grown gray and venerable—who founded that machine and who happens to be his father. He is all in all, a wily, slimy politician, possessed of an order of intellect no higher than that of a certain ape to the brute creation and devoid of even a suggestion of statesmanship. Such a man, so unfortunately placed, should be content to keep quiet himself and be left alone by others. It is the discretion which would be relied upon to prompt such feeling has been denied him, along with other beneficiaries of which he is lacking, by nature, it should be engraved into his disordered system by artificial processes. The United States Senate cannot allow Don Cameron to insult its members. He is in every respect contemptible a person to be allowed any of those extra-parliamentary indulgences for which whisky and a fondness for rare firearms are always excuses. He must be repressed, if not on the complaint of Mr. Hill, a Democrat, then on the complaint of Mr. Dawes, a Republican."

CARL SHREVE'S VIEW OF THE SITUATION.

Ex-Secretary Carl Shreve has returned to St. Louis and again writes on his journalistic career on the Watts Post, of which paper he is reported to be the chief editor. In its issue of the 17th of April the Post prints an interesting article from Mr. Shreve's pen on the situation in the United States Senate. In his opinion the political situation is a very peculiar one indeed. The extra session of the Senate was called for the purpose of disposing of executive business. The Republicans are the party of the Administration, and the Democrats form the Opposition. And now the country beholds a singular spectacle. The Democrats are in favor of transacting the business for which the extra session was convened by the President, while the Republicans, the party of the Administration, refuses to comply. The real cause at the bottom of this state of affairs do not become apparent during the discussions in the Senate, but are hidden under the surface. These Mr. Shreve interprets to mean a struggle for political power at the South; but he warns the Republicans that if they break the solid South to reinstate in the South during the present generation. Their previous conduct is too well understood by every taxpayer South of the Potomac.

A FOREIGN NET CASINO OPINION.

The London Standard Review, in alluding to our domestic troubles, says: "Every man who has studied with average candor the history of the Confederate war knows that the North owed at least as much to the patent wisdom, the organization genius, the temper, the forbearance, the enduring good faith of General McClellan as to the daring and strategic skill of Sherman, or the stern resolution and capacity for extensive command displayed by General Grant. But for McClellan the North would never have had any army; and McClellan's work was done at the most critical moment of his country's fortunes, in spite of a fractions, infidelity, persistent opposition from nearly every member of the Cabinet. Opposed to the greatest General and the best army of the South in its prime, unsupported by his own Government, McClellan achieved at the head of a hundred thousand men, turned by himself into an army, almost as much as General Grant, with three that number in the field, accomplished, with the full confidence and eager support of his own Government, against the mere wrecks of the army of Northern Virginia."

HE'S NOT HONEST.

Senator Mahone is a brigandage, a blatherskite, a dunce. The encounter between him and Senator Voorhees is conclusive. It is true the "Tall Sycamore" lowered his intellectual stature by replying to the unrepentant rebel, repudiator, and disgraced Republican, but he made the little Virginian most despicable in the eyes of all. Mahone takes his "plantation manners" into the Senate, and there poses right in the faces of those fastidious Massachusetts statesmen, and despite him at the same time. Mahone will not very soon desire another encounter with Senator Voorhees. The Republican party never did look quite so small and contemptible, particularly the Senatorial portion of it, as since they sold out to Mahone.

THIRTEEN SUFFICIENT REASONS FOR THEIR STAND IN THE SENATE.

The New York Herald, of a recent date, contained an interview with a very prominent Democrat, who has given close attention to the deadlock in the United States Senate. This gentleman lays down the following thirteen propositions as, in his judgment, grounds of the dispute carefully and intelligently, and the thirteen points which he presents deserve attention, not only for the strength with which they are presented, but also because they represent, in a forcible way, the grounds upon which the Democratic Senators justify their course. The following are the thirteen propositions:

1. First—A party cannot be considered to have a majority in the legislative body when it is unable to take a single step or adopt a single motion unless some one of the alleged minority will aid it by voting and thus making the desired and necessary quorum.
2. Second—The Republicans in the Senate, without Mahone's aid, have just one-half the Senate. Unless some member of the Democratic half lends his aid to the Republican Senators, plus Mahone, cannot command a quorum, and can do no business of any name or nature except adjourn.
3. Third—The vote of the Vice President cannot be made available until the Democrats shall be obliged enough to create the tie, which he will then be able to vote. Of original power the Vice President has not one particle, and the Republicans are enraged because the Democrats will not so vote as to give the Vice President the opportunity to turn out Democratic office-holders who are faithfully discharging their duty.
4. Fourth—The Vice President has never in the history of the Government, save in a single instance, voted in the election of Senate officers, and that was in a case where a vacancy was to be filled. If a vacancy were to be filled to-day every Democratic Senator would be perfectly willing to have the Vice President vote if a tie should occur, but the Democrats affirm, and will to the end maintain, that the Vice President's vote shall not be used to create a vacancy where no accusation is made against the incumbent and where the change is to be made for political purposes only.
5. Fifth—The "rule of the majority," about which the Republican Senators talk so loudly, is the "rule" which they will enforce if one or more Democratic Senators will help them do it.
6. Sixth—The Republicans are irritated because the Democrats will not lend their aid to the consummation of the Mahone bargain by the election of Gorham and Riddleberger.
7. Seventh—At the opening of this session and for seventeen days after, the Democrats had a clear and absolute majority in the Senate, but the Republicans interposed dilatory motions every time the appointment of committees was proposed, and they held the Senate in a totally unorganized and disorganized condition until the recent session was filled and the trade with Mahone completed.
8. Eighth—When the Republicans got ready to appoint committees the Democratic Senators interposed no objections, because committees were essential to a proper organization of the body, and they submitted quietly to having all the chairmanships taken from them and transferred to the Republicans, although they never ought to have done this, and they set an evil precedent in allowing it, which must be corrected at the very first opportunity.
9. Ninth—But when it is proposed to take another and needless aggressive step, one entirely needless, except to give Mahone his pay and turn out two excellent and acceptable officers simply because they are Democrats, the Democratic Senators say: "No, you shall not do it, and we will stop you by precisely the same means which you employed for seventeen days to stop us from organizing the committees."
10. Tenth—Whenever the Republicans shall have a majority, even of one, in the Senate, no Democrat will interpose a single dilatory motion against the election of new officers; but so long as the Republican Senators united with Mahone have only one-half the Senate and the Democrats the other half, the Democrats will not aid, directly or indirectly, in turning out Democratic officers.
11. Eleventh—The Republican Senators may make up their minds that neither at this session nor at the next session will they be able to turn Messrs. Borch and Bright out of office unless by some means they first secure a majority of the Senate.
12. Twelfth—One word more. Where committees are to be appointed next December, if the Senate continues evenly divided as now, fair warning is given to the Republican Senators that the Democratic Senators will insist on a fair and equitable division of the committees and chairmanships. There are thirty-eight Senators on each side of the Chamber, and common fairness demands and equal partition of the committees.
13. Thirteenth—For the Republican Sen-

THE FALL OF DORSEY.

Legal Advertisements.

Notice of Incorporation.

WASHINGTON HOUSE.

TEMPERANCE HOUSE.

SHAW HOUSE.

WASHINGTON HOUSE.

SUSQUEHANNA HOUSE.

COURT PROCLAMATION.

JURY LIST.

REGISTER'S NOTICE.

COURT PROCLAMATION.

JURY LIST.

REGISTER'S NOTICE.

COURT PROCLAMATION.

JURY LIST.

REGISTER'S NOTICE.

COURT PROCLAMATION.

JURY LIST.

REGISTER'S NOTICE.

COURT PROCLAMATION.

JURY LIST.

REGISTER'S NOTICE.

COURT PROCLAMATION.

JURY LIST.

REGISTER'S NOTICE.

COURT PROCLAMATION.

JURY LIST.

REGISTER'S NOTICE.

COURT PROCLAMATION.

JURY LIST.

REGISTER'S NOTICE.

COURT PROCLAMATION.

JURY LIST.

REGISTER'S NOTICE.

COURT PROCLAMATION.

JURY LIST.

REGISTER'S NOTICE.

COURT PROCLAMATION.

JURY LIST.

REGISTER'S NOTICE.

COURT PROCLAMATION.

JURY LIST.

REGISTER'S NOTICE.

COURT PROCLAMATION.

JURY LIST.

REGISTER'S NOTICE.

COURT PROCLAMATION.

JURY LIST.

REGISTER'S NOTICE.

COURT PROCLAMATION.

JURY LIST.

REGISTER'S NOTICE.

COURT PROCLAMATION.

JURY LIST.

REGISTER'S NOTICE.

COURT PROCLAMATION.

JURY LIST.

REGISTER'S NOTICE.

COURT PROCLAMATION.

JURY LIST.

REGISTER'S NOTICE.

COURT PROCLAMATION.

JURY LIST.

REGISTER'S NOTICE.

COURT PROCLAMATION.

JURY LIST.

REGISTER'S NOTICE.

COURT PROCLAMATION.

JURY LIST.

REGISTER'S NOTICE.

COURT PROCLAMATION.

JURY LIST.

REGISTER'S NOTICE.

COURT PROCLAMATION.

JURY LIST.

REGISTER'S NOTICE.

COURT PROCLAMATION.

JURY LIST.

REGISTER'S NOTICE.

COURT PROCLAMATION.

JURY LIST.

REGISTER'S NOTICE.

COURT PROCLAMATION.

JURY LIST.

REGISTER'S NOTICE.

COURT PROCLAMATION.

JURY LIST.

REGISTER'S NOTICE.

COURT PROCLAMATION.

JURY LIST.

REGISTER'S NOTICE.

COURT PROCLAMATION.

JURY LIST.

REGISTER'S NOTICE.

COURT PROCLAMATION.

THE REPUBLICAN.

WEDNESDAY MORNING, MAY 11, 1881.

SMALL OUR PARTING BE FOREVER.

ators to demand all the committees and all the chairmanships by the casting vote of the Vice President is simply to empower the Vice President to appoint the committees. That has never been consented to until this session, when, for the sake of peace, the Democrats permitted it. It will never be permitted again, and due and fair warning is now given to that effect.

OUR DON.

Is not the Washington Post just a trifle too hard upon our Don? Read what it says: "If it be true that Don Cameron is in the habit of attending the sessions of the Senate, day after day, in a state of intoxication, something should be done to prevent him from thus exhibiting himself. It is true that he has a fashion of keeping a brace of loaded revolvers within easy reach when engaged in debate on the floor, the Sergeant at Arms should hold himself in readiness to prevent any serious consequences. If it be true that he is accustomed to conduct himself in a most disorderly manner while within the precincts of the Senate Chamber, the courtesy of the Senate should be invoked to restrain him. Don Cameron is not an interesting figure in the annals of American statesmanship, and as a general proposition, the country is not disposed to bear him to any great degree. He sits in the Senate, the product of the most thoroughly disreputable political machine in the land, and the special representative of the political prostitute—now grown gray and venerable—who founded that machine and who happens to be his father. He is all in all, a wily, slimy politician, possessed of an order of intellect no higher than that of a certain ape to the brute creation and devoid of even a suggestion of statesmanship. Such a man, so unfortunately placed, should be content to keep quiet himself and be left alone by others. It is the discretion which would be relied upon to prompt such feeling has been denied him, along with other beneficiaries of which he is lacking, by nature, it should be engraved into his disordered system by artificial processes. The United States Senate cannot allow Don Cameron to insult its members. He is in every respect contemptible a person to be allowed any of those extra-parliamentary indulgences for which whisky and a fondness for rare firearms are always excuses. He must be repressed, if not on the complaint of Mr. Hill, a Democrat, then on the complaint of Mr. Dawes, a Republican."

CARL SHREVE'S VIEW OF THE SITUATION.

Ex-Secretary Carl Shreve has returned to St. Louis and again writes on his journalistic career on the Watts Post, of which paper he is reported to be the chief editor. In its issue of the 17th of April the Post prints an interesting article from Mr. Shreve's pen on the situation in the United States Senate. In his opinion the political situation is a very peculiar one indeed. The extra session of the Senate was called for the purpose of disposing of executive business. The Republicans are the party of the Administration, and the Democrats form the Opposition. And now the country beholds a singular spectacle. The Democrats are in favor of transacting the business for which the extra session was convened by the President, while the Republicans, the party of the Administration, refuses to comply. The real cause at the bottom of this state of affairs do not become apparent during the discussions in the Senate, but are hidden under the surface. These Mr. Shreve interprets to mean a struggle for political power at the South; but he warns the Republicans that if they break the solid South to reinstate in the South during the present generation. Their previous conduct is too well understood by every taxpayer South of the Potomac.

A FOREIGN NET CASINO OPINION.

The London Standard Review, in alluding to our domestic troubles, says: "Every man who has studied with average candor the history of the Confederate war knows that the North owed at least as much to the patent wisdom, the organization genius, the temper, the forbearance, the enduring good faith of General McClellan as to the daring and strategic skill of Sherman, or the stern resolution and capacity for extensive command displayed by General Grant. But for McClellan the North would never have had any army; and McClellan's work was done at the most critical moment of his country's fortunes, in spite of a fractions, infidelity, persistent opposition from nearly every member of the Cabinet. Opposed to the greatest General and the best army of the South in its prime, unsupported by his own Government, McClellan achieved at the head of a hundred thousand men, turned by himself into an army, almost as much as General Grant, with three that number in the field, accomplished, with the full confidence and eager support of his own Government, against the mere wrecks of the army of Northern Virginia."

HE'S NOT HONEST.

Senator Mahone is a brigandage, a blatherskite, a dunce. The encounter between him and Senator Voorhees is conclusive. It is true the "Tall Sycamore" lowered his intellectual stature by replying to the unrepentant rebel, repudiator, and disgraced Republican, but he made the little Virginian most despicable in the eyes of all. Mahone takes his "plantation manners" into the Senate, and there poses right in the faces of those fastidious Massachusetts statesmen, and despite him at the same time. Mahone will not very soon desire another encounter with Senator Voorhees. The Republican party never did look quite so small and contemptible, particularly the Senatorial portion of it, as since they sold out to Mahone.

THIRTEEN SUFFICIENT REASONS FOR THEIR STAND IN THE SENATE.

The New York Herald, of a recent date, contained an interview with a very prominent Democrat, who has given close attention to the deadlock in the United States Senate. This gentleman lays down the following thirteen propositions as, in his judgment, grounds of the dispute carefully and intelligently, and the thirteen points which he presents deserve attention, not only for the strength with which they are presented, but also because they represent, in a forcible way, the grounds upon which the Democratic Senators justify their course. The following are the thirteen propositions:

1. First—A party cannot be considered to have a majority in the legislative body when it is unable to take a single step or adopt a single motion unless some one of the alleged minority will aid it by voting and thus making the desired and necessary quorum.
2. Second—The Republicans in the Senate, without Mahone's aid, have just one-half the Senate. Unless some member of the Democratic half lends his aid to the Republican Senators, plus Mahone, cannot command a quorum, and can do no business of any name or nature except adjourn.
3. Third—The vote of the Vice President cannot be made available until the Democrats shall be obliged enough to create the tie, which he will then be able to vote. Of original power the Vice President has not one particle, and the Republicans are enraged because the Democrats will not so vote as to give the Vice President the opportunity to turn out Democratic office-holders who are faithfully discharging their duty.
4. Fourth—The Vice President has never in the history of the Government, save in a single instance, voted in the election of Senate officers, and that was in a case where a vacancy was to be filled. If a vacancy were to be filled to-day every Democratic Senator would be perfectly willing to have the Vice President vote if a tie should occur, but the Democrats affirm, and will to the end maintain, that the Vice President's vote shall not be used to create a vacancy where no accusation is made against the incumbent and where the change is to be made for political purposes only.
5. Fifth—The "rule of the majority," about which the Republican Senators talk so loudly, is the "rule" which they will enforce if one or more Democratic Senators will help them do it.
6. Sixth—The Republicans are irritated because the Democrats will not lend their aid to the consummation of the Mahone bargain by the election of Gorham and Riddleberger.
7. Seventh—At the opening of this session and for seventeen days after, the Democrats had a clear and absolute majority in the Senate, but the Republicans interposed dilatory motions every time the appointment of committees was proposed, and they held the Senate in a totally unorganized and disorganized condition until the recent session was filled and the trade with Mahone completed.
8. Eighth—When the Republicans got ready to appoint committees the Democratic Senators interposed no objections, because committees were essential to a proper organization of the body, and they submitted quietly to having all the chairmanships taken from them and transferred to the Republicans, although they never ought to have done this, and they set an evil precedent in allowing it, which must be corrected at the very first opportunity.
9. Ninth—But when it is proposed to take another and needless aggressive step, one entirely needless, except to give Mahone his pay and turn out two excellent and acceptable officers simply because they are Democrats, the Democratic Senators say: "No, you shall not do it, and we will stop you by precisely the same means which you employed for seventeen days to stop us from organizing the committees."
10. Tenth—Whenever the Republicans shall have a majority, even of one, in the Senate, no Democrat will interpose a single dilatory motion against the election of new officers; but so long as the Republican Senators united with Mahone have only one-half the Senate and the Democrats the other half, the Democrats will not aid, directly or indirectly, in turning out Democratic officers.
11. Eleventh—The Republican Senators may make up their minds that neither at this session nor at the next session will they be able to turn Messrs. Borch and Bright out of office unless by some means they first secure a majority of the Senate.
12. Twelfth—One word more. Where committees are to be appointed next December, if the Senate continues evenly divided as now, fair warning is given to the Republican Senators that the Democratic Senators will insist on a fair and equitable division of the committees and chairmanships. There are thirty-eight Senators on each side of the Chamber, and common fairness demands and equal partition of the committees.
13. Thirteenth—For the Republican Sen-

THE FALL OF DORSEY.

Legal Advertisements.

Notice of Incorporation.

WASHINGTON HOUSE.

TEMPERANCE HOUSE.

SHAW HOUSE.

WASHINGTON HOUSE.

SUSQUEHANNA HOUSE.

COURT PROCLAMATION.

JURY LIST.

REGISTER'S NOTICE.

COURT PROCLAMATION.

JURY LIST.

REGISTER'S NOTICE.

COURT PROCLAMATION.

JURY LIST.

REGISTER'S NOTICE.

COURT PROCLAMATION.

JURY LIST.

REGISTER'S NOTICE.

COURT PROCLAMATION.

JURY LIST.

REGISTER'S NOTICE.

COURT PROCLAMATION.

JURY LIST.

REGISTER'S NOTICE.

COURT PROCLAMATION.

JURY LIST.

REGISTER'S NOTICE.

COURT PROCLAMATION.

JURY LIST.

REGISTER'S NOTICE.

COURT PROCLAMATION.

JURY LIST.

REGISTER'S NOTICE.

COURT PROCLAMATION.

JURY LIST.

REGISTER'S NOTICE.

COURT PROCLAMATION.

JURY LIST.

REGISTER'S NOTICE.

COURT PROCLAMATION.

JURY LIST.

REGISTER'S NOTICE.

COURT PROCLAMATION.

JURY LIST.

REGISTER'S NOTICE.

COURT PROCLAMATION.

JURY LIST.

REGISTER'S NOTICE.

COURT PROCLAMATION.

JURY LIST.

REGISTER'S NOTICE.

COURT PROCLAMATION.

JURY LIST.

REGISTER'S NOTICE.

COURT PROCLAMATION.

JURY LIST.

REGISTER'S NOTICE.

COURT PROCLAMATION.

JURY LIST.

REGISTER'S NOTICE.

COURT PROCLAMATION.

JURY LIST.

REGISTER'S NOTICE.

COURT PROCLAMATION.

JURY LIST.

REGISTER'S NOTICE.

COURT PROCLAMATION.

JURY LIST.

REGISTER'S NOTICE.

COURT PROCLAMATION.

JURY LIST.

REGISTER'S NOTICE.

COURT PROCLAMATION.

JURY LIST.

REGISTER'S NOTICE.

COURT PROCLAMATION.

JURY LIST.

REGISTER'S NOTICE.

COURT PROCLAMATION.

JURY LIST.

REGISTER'S NOTICE.

COURT PROCLAMATION.

JURY LIST.

REGISTER'S NOTICE.

COURT PRO