Sketches of Local History. BY JOHN WEIDMAN. REV. JOHN GEORGE LOCHMAN, D. D.

Auditor, JOSEPH G. HEILMAN, Cornwall.

In addition to the congregations men. tioned in the former part of this sketch, Dr. Lochman, was the pastor of the congregations at Kimmerling's and Bindnagel's churches. The congregation at Myerstown was not among his regular conmind on political questions.

As before stated, there were in that day no Thespised and snubbed by the Republicans gregations. He only preached there oc-

From 1794 to 1815, a period of twentv-one years, this faithful servant of Christ, labored zealously in these numerous congregations. The duties of a pastor in that day were far more arduous than now. The increase of wealth and population, has reduced the number of congregations to which a clergyman was required to minister. Fow Clargyman was required to minister. Fow Clargyman was required to minister. Christ, labored zealously in these nurequired to minister. Few Clergymen and so hospitable that there was almost alway in Eastern Pennsylvania have now more than two or three charges. Dr. Lochman had six and to the eternal welfare of these he devoted kimself with such affectionate zeal, that he came to be looked upon by all the members, with a love and reverence of which there are love and reverence of which there are few like examples. The Father of the at college, (which was then little more than an Lutheran church, the immortal Luther, Academy,) his father had bought him a book neclaid great stress on the due religious essary for his studies, and when giving it to him had charged him to be particularly careful of it, education of children, and thought it one of his best labors, that he had prepared a catechism admirably suited to their tender minds. Following in the foot-steps of his great exemplar, Dr. Lochman, not only impressed upon the much to his expenses, and praying to God mentally to make the path of duty plain to him, he parents the necessity of religious in- nicked up a feather, and as he walked along the atruction, but endeavored and succeeded in making himself so beloved by the children-of his congregations, that they eagerly sought to be instructed by him. In those days, the Lutheran church bred up its members from childhood and considered it amongst its most important duries to instil its doctrines into their infant minds, and also to encourage them to indulge in innocent amusements, calculated to refine and elevate their intellects. Then almost every church had its parochial school, and no one was a corrected in the general welfare, and labored diligently for its elevation. He was interested in its general welfare, and labored diligently for its elevation. He was interested in its general welfare, and labored diligently for its elevation. He was interested in its general welfare, and labored diligently for its elevation. He was interested in its general welfare, and labored diligently for its elevation. He was disposed to identify himself with every effort intended to advance its best interests. The records of the Synod with which he stood connected, show how much he was valued by his errors devoted friend of the General Synod, which has been such a blessing to the church. The congregation at Harrisburg erected a handsome monument over his grave, and his memory is chorished in the Lutheran Church as one of her h, to compare Lebanon as it was brightest ornaments during Lochman's time and as it is now. To the encouragement of these things and of all other matters connected with thy servant departin peace, according the temporal and celestial happiness of his congregations, Dr. Lochman applied himself with an ardor rarely excelled. His common appellation was "Papa Dr. C. D. Gloninger, Joseph Gleim, and Joseph Lochman." and truly did he deserve it. No kinder or warmer heart ever heat in Frederick Trace, James H. Morgan, and Geo. For many years he re- Knox, met at Palmyra, on the 10th of September, fused the liberal calls, which his widely | 1857, when on motion Dr. Gloninger was elected extended reputation induced. He did Chairman, and Geo. W. Knox, Secretary of the nat seperate the ties which bound him Conference. to this community, until he felt that his duty called him elsewhere. He had established the church in this region, upon a rock, and the fruits of his labor vet exist, and will exist through countless generations. Many congregations, who offered him handsome salaries, desired to secure his services, but in vain. He continued to labor here, on a moderate income, until he was called to Harrisburg in 1815. There were three Lutheran congregations in that charge, limited in the number of their members, and not as now rich. They were struggling with many difficulties. The people were mostly Scotch-Irish Presbyterians, who looked at that time on a Lutheran, in much the same light as they did on a Catholic. Their creed was a reproachto them then, and not as now an honor. Dr. Lochman felt that he could do much good, and that it was his duty to go.-He accordingly accepted the call, and amidst sorrowing hearts removed to Harrisburg, in 1815. The congregations were the one at Harrisburg, at Schupp's, and Middletown. Besidesthese he occasionally preached at what is now Dauphin, and at Haldeman's town. It was his custom, occasionally to send his vices, and thus prepare them for their future career. Under his career these

of his labors began to affect him. He was seized with liver complaint and suffered much. Nevertheless the pains of his body could not induce him to refrain from the duties of his station. Even when a palsy of the eye, disabled him from reading print, he made the memhers of his family write out his text, cessary matters, in a large round hand, which he could still see distinctly, and so continued to labor with failing bodily powers, but unabated mental zeal in

Dr. DeWitt he said, whilst lying in pain andsuffering on the bed of death, "What should I now do, if I had not an Almighty Saviour to depend on." On the day following his death, his mortal remains were deposited in the earth, amidst an immense assemblage of mourners, and real mourners, for every one felt that in him he had lost a friend. In person, Dr. Lochman was of about the midight. He was a very handsome man. His hair and eyes were black, his nose somewhat aquiline, and his chin and mouth well-shaped, and denoting a firm and resolute mind. Although not corpulent, he was stout and fleshy. His manners were remarkably fine. He niways raised his hat when passing any area is the streat. Indeed some when passing any one in the street. Indeed some of his brethren objected that he was too formal, but he always contended that nothing was lost by but he always contended that nothing was lost by observing the forms of politioness. The love which attended his path through life proved that in him, at least, an observance of those rules was not incompatible with the most entire and unreserved confidence and affection. He was a kind and indugent father, an affectionate husband, and a useful citizen, and a most untiring and devoted servant of Qod. In his general conduct he was a model. In the language of another biographer, "He was careful in his expressions, discreet in his actions, charitable in judgment, and slow to ascribe an improper motive to an individual's conduct without sufficient reason, or when a good one could be assigned."

Embich: Myerstown Continental Cadets, Capt. Reinhold; Jonestown National Rifle, Capt. Faber; Myerstown Rifles, Lieut. Spangler; Jonestown Rifles, Capt. Lantz; Stouchsburg Jackson Artillery, Capt. Schoener; in all 232 men.

The Cadet company from Myerstown took the palm in the eyes of the lookers on. It was composed of 35 active boys, ranging from 12 to 18 years, dressed in the style of the Revolutionary Heroes, who fought for and secured the liberties we now enjoy. They are well-drilled, and passed with precision through many intricate manœuvres, credible alike to their commanding officers as to themselves.

It has been well remarked by an American po-et, that no gift, however beautiful, no success, how-ever brilliant, should be placed above the skill and over orillant, should be placed above the skill and talents which can relieve a single pang, and the self-devotion which lays them at the feet of the humblest fellow creature." Judged by this rule, Professor Holloway, of whom the world has heard so much during the last twenty years, occupies a high position. His life seems to have been devoted to the alleviation of suffering, and his desire to benefit his fellow creatures appears to have been seconded by an amount of natural talent and acquired skill, seldom combined in one individual. The practical result of this combination has been the production of two remedies known throughou the world as Holloway's Pills & Holloway's Ointment, which, if any value can be attached to human testimony, have left all devices of science far behind in the great work of relieving pain, strengthening the constitution and prolonging life.

In bilious disorders especially, the Pills have been wonderfully efficacious, and for that reason they are a most important medicine in the country, where bilious fever, and all the varieties of iver complaint are unfortunately so common. We learn from persons subject to bilions attacks in the Spring and Fall, who have resorted to these Pills as a preventive, that they have never failed to save them from such periodical affections; while we have also the strongest possible testimony in heir favor from individuals who have taken then in the worst stages of liver disease. Long before we had had an oportunity to judge of their value from home testimony, the medical journals and the daily press of Europe had referred to them in terms Gaily press of Europe na referred to them in terms of praise. It gives us pleasure to say that our own experience confirms and verifies the statements derived from foreign sources. Not being conversant with the philosophy of medical science, we cannot enterinto a learned exposition of the modus operandi of Holloway's Pills in bilious cases, but shall rest content with saving that under the index the first content with saving that under the first content with saving the first content with the saving that under the saving the saving the saving that under the saving that under the saving the saving the saving that under the saving the saving that under the shall rest content with saying, that under the in-fluence of the remedy the skin and the white of the eyes soon lost their yellow tinge, the pain in the right side disappears, the appetite returns, the digestion improves, and the physical strength of the invalid is restord. Professor Holloway, who has made physiology and pathology his study for a quarter of a century, has given scientific whys and wherefores for their curative effects we simply state that they fulfil the promises o the inventor, a fact that has never been question ed, we believe, by those who have given them fair trial.—N. HOLLOWAY'S OINTMENT. GIRCULAR TO THE SICK.—The first hospital surgeons and medicinal publicists of Europe admit the unparalleled anti-inflammatory and healing properties of this Ointment; governments sanction its use in their naval and military services; and the masses in this country and the properties of the country and the properties. try and throughout the world repose the utmost confidence in its curative properties. It penetrates the sources of inflammation and corruption which underlie the external evidence of disease, and neutralize the fiery elements which feed and exasperate the malady.

Rheumatism, Scrofula. Erysipelas.

These are among the most terrible and agonizing dis-ases of the muscles, the fleshy fibre and the skin; yet a their worst forms, and when seemingly incurable, they nvariably disappear under a persevering application of his scothing, healing autidote to pain and inflammation. Salt Rheum, Fever Sores, Stiff Joints. In all cases of Salt Rheum, where medical waters, lottons, and every recipe of the pharmacopea have proved useless, the Olintment will accomplish a thorough cure Fever Sores heal quickly under its influence, and its relaxing effect upon contracted sinews is truly wonderful.

Discharging Ulcers. A most remarkable and happy change is produced in the appearance of malignant ulvers after a few applicaishes, and granules of healthy flesh begin to take the place of the discharged matter. This process goes on more or less rapidly until the ordice is filled up with sound material, and the ulcer radically cured. A Word to Mothers.
