WHOLE NO. 453.

O'NE morning, last week, as a friend and myself, were leisurely walking out Market street, and on arriving near the corner of Guilford street, our attention was attracted to a large crowd of Ladies—and nearly all of whom were provided with large market baskets, and others with satchels hanging to their arms, and were evidently intent upon the same object. Upon inquiry we found that in the Manison House, on the corner of Guilford and Market streets, is located the extensive Dry Goods, Grocery, and Oneoneways Store of our politic and ford and Market streets, is located the extensive Dry Goods, Grocery, and Queensware Store of our politic and ambile friends, FUNCK & BRO, who have just opened a large stock of Rall Goods, and that the great crowd of Ledies were, their regidier consoners, who may be seen daily at their counters, purchasing their goods. All we saw were evidently antisfied with their purchases; were loud in the praises of the excellent quality of their stock, and all were of the unanimous opinion that FUNCK & BRO. Sell the best qualities, at lower prices, than any of their competitors. So our advice would be to you, one and all, both great and small, to give Funck & BRO a call and they will surely try to please, you.

Important Discovery. CONSUMPTION Diseases of the Lungs and Throat

CURABLE BY INHALATION!!!

Remedies to the earlies in the lungs through the al. parsages; and coming in direct contact with the disease, neutralizes the tubercular matter, allays the cough, causes a free and casy expectoration, heals the lungs, purifies the blood; imparts renewed vitality to the nervous system, giving that tone and energy so indispensable for the restoration of health. To be able to state confidently thist Gonsumption is curable by Inhalation, is to me a source of unalloyed pleasure. It is as much under the control of medical treatment as any other formidable disease; ninety out of every hundred cases can be cured in the first stages, and fifty per cent. in the second; but in the third stage it is impossible to save more than five per cent., for the lungs are so cut up by the disease as to defy medical skill. Even, however, in the last stages, inhalation affords extraordinary relief to the suffering attending this fearful scourge, which annually destroys ninety-five thousand persons in the United States alone; and a correct calculation shows that of the present population of the earth, eighty millions are destined to fill the Consumptice's grave.

Truly, the quiver of death has no arrow so faital as Consumption. In all ages it has been the great enemy of life, for it spares neither age nor sex, but sweeps off alike the brave, the beautiful, the graceful, and the gifted. By the help of that Supreme Being, from whom cometh every good and perfect gift, I am enabled to offer to the afflicted a permanent and speedy cure in Consumption. The first cause of tubercles is from Impure Blood, and the immediate effect, produced by their deposition in the lungs, is to revent the free admission of air into the air cells, which causes a weakened vitality through the entire system. Then, surely, it is more rational to expect greater good from medicines entering the cavitics of the lungs, than from those administered through the entire system. Then, surely, it is more rational to expect greater food from redicine CURABLE BY INHALATION !!!

ity in a few minutes, paralyzing the entire nervous system, so that a limb may be amputated without the slightest pain; inhaling the ordinary burning gas will destroy life in a few hours.

The inhalation of ammonia will rouse the system when fainting or apparently dead. The odor of many of the medicines B perceptible in the skin, a few moments after being linhaled, and may be immediately detected in the blood. A convincing proof of the constitutional effects of inhalation, is the fact that slekiness is always produced by breathing foul air. Is not this positive evidence that proper remedies, carefully prepared and judiciously administered through the lungs, should produce the most happy results? During eighteen years' practice, many thousands, suffering from diseases of the lungs and throat, have been under my care, and I have effected many remarkable cures, even after the sufferers had been pronounced in the lust stages, which fully satisfies me that Consumption is original, and founded on long expe-lence and a thorough investigation. My perfoct acquintance with the nature of tubercles, &c., enables me to distinguish, readily, the various forms of disease that simulate consumption, and apply the proper remedies, rarely being mistaken even in a single case.—This familiarity, in connection with certain pathological and microscopic discoveries, enables me to relieve the lungs from the effects of contracted cheets; to enlarge the chest, purify the blood, impart to it renewed vitality, giving energy and tone to the entire system.

Idedicines, with full directions, sent to any part of the United States and Canadag, by putients communicating their symptoms by letter. But the cure would be more certain if the patient spain.

Editor New York Weekly Dispath : Edutor New York Weekly Dispath:
There are epochs in every medical man's history, each of which compromises a lifetime of horror. Only three short weeks ago I was one of the gayest students of medicine and surgery in the United States. To-day-well, let me not anticipate.

Two years have elapsed since I was sent from Mobile, by my father, to study medicine at the North. I listened to my first course of lectures in Philadelphia, and there made the acquaintance of Professor ----, who is, probably, the best demonstrator, in physiology, that ever taught the young idea how to shoot, allopathically, on this side of the Atlantic.

I was fortunate enough to become a particular favorite of his, and was introduced by him, with an especial flourish, to one of the cleverest surgeons, I think, in the world. \ His name is ---I will call him the Professer, however. He is one of those individuals for whom you at once conceive a great dislike, or a wonderful partiality, and it was the latter I, at the first time we met, f.lt for him.

He was a strange being; at least he seemed so to me upon our first meeting, and forever afterwards. Oftentimes he drank deeply, and, while under the influence of drink, he would let fall curious hints concerning "blighted hopes," "the rascality of kindred," and "the folly of supposing any affection sprang from the ties of consanguity. On one of these communicative occasions he told me a heart-rending history of family experiences. I gathered by piecemeal, from his conversations the fact that one of his own blood had treated him most heartlessly, and driven him by fraud of the grosses: character, from his native place to this country, pennilers and friendless. I ought to say, en passant, that his drinking bouts were conducted strictly upon the gentlemanly plan, and were seldom or never made known to the public, or aven to the majority of those who ranked among his immediate friends; and furthermore, I should remark that he is well advanced in years, although no doubt you know that aiready. "My evil spirit is upon me," he would some times say to me, and then he would illustrate, in his conduct and manner, the most singular phase of hypochondria I ever witnessed. It appears that he was born in the town of C-(I must be guarded, for I am now violating con fidence) and was unfortunate enough, considering the laws which gave the elder brother everything, to be ushered into the world after his brothe

John. For this frere he felt the intensest affection. To him he confided a history of his hopes, to him he looked, more than to his infirm father. for advice; to him he communicated a narrative of his love, and of his successful wooing. The maiden of his choice was beneath him in wealth and station, but his brother approved of that choice, and he was content. It is necessary to my object, in penning this narrative, only to state that the elder brother seduced the girl; robbed, by a fraud of the basest character, her honorable lover of all his means, (also reducing the old father to penury by forgeries,) and then decamped, taking the girl along, to Italy.

"Did you never take vengeance upon the seduor?" I inquired, when he related these facts to me.
"I did not regard either of them as being wor. thy of my anger," he replied, "and I never followed them an inch." "Did you ever hear from them?" I queried. "Yes several times. The last news I got was to the effect that she had become shameless and besotted, and was living in a condition of public infamy in Paris. Of course he had left her." "And he?"

Had become a gambler; some wro to to me, a by the surrounding circumstances. The corpse are Hats and Caps, Trunks, Valless and Carpet Bags, all will be sold at the lowest Square. Here he shuddered.] Cortain it was that into which the Professor was about to plunge the Lebanon, Oct. 7, '57.

Three weeks ago; the Professor was to explain to us all (a class of students) a certain condition of the human stomach, and he was to do this practically in the dissecting room. There was a dispute as to the propriety of some of the late Doctor Marshall Hall's teachings, with reference to the division of the nervous system, and the Pro- He was kicked into the street-attempted to comfessor was to settle the dispute, scalpel in hand, The division of Doctor Hall, permit me to say, arranges the norvous system into three sectionsand was in that condition conveyed to the purthe cerebral, or sentient voluntary; the true spinal, or excito-motor, and the ganglionic, or nutrient, or secretory. The Professor is one of the most skillful of lecurers, and a precise and handsome demonstator. His devotion to the anatomical branches of medical science amounts almost to a monomania. The patience with which he will work around and elaborate the smallest preparation for his cabinet, is spider-like.

Connected with the mooted questions concern

essary for me to describe; but they made it imperative that the body, to be dissected, should be that of a male adult somewhat aged. The night arrived. We were all in our dis-secting room apparel. The body entirely nude, and completely covered with a cloth, as is the custom, lay upon the table, and we impatiently awaited the Professor's arrival. The conduct of stadents in the dissecting room is not, as I presume the most of your readers know from the many able sketches you have published, particularly diguified. In fact, it is (iu view of the sad precis of our wretched helplessness and mortality, spread around) frivolous, dis-gusting, and utterly at variance with the scene, and the legitimate purpose of the assemblage. Rude jests, profanity the intemperate use of ardent spirits, pipe smoking, &c., are practiced and indulged in by all, or nearly all. On this night we were in the wildest spirits, and when, soon after the kour appointed, the Professor entered, he found us engaged in a most animated series of laughs at the spectacle of a lighted eigar stuck between the lips of a half-dissected negro. The Professor appeared to be as joyful as the students. He regaled us with several anecdotes more pointed than polite, but calculated to inspire the heartiest mirth; I preceived that he was in his best mood. There he was, a perfect picture of the man of science, unbending, for the moment, from the dignities of his station, so as to insure a feeling of ease to those who had congregated to receive his instructions. And ease, in the presence of the preceptor, let me tell you, is very serriceable to a pupil.

"It is astonishing," he said, as he prepared imself for the business of the night, "how soon we get to be familiar with the relies of mortality. Habit is everything. The first time that I was introduced to the dissecting room, I was compelled to bite a piece of human flesh, that being considered, among my companions, a rite of initiation that could not be dispensed with. The sensation of horror I experienced cannot be described. I revolting place again, but in three months I was Now I handle the dead as if they were mere bales ligence in the exact shape in which we received of cotton. Scarcely had it touched the lean, lauk, scraggy, and miserable relic of mortality, ere there was a fearful change. The most perfect silence reigned in the room. The scalpel a second time touched the body, and then, as if the instrument had been a galvanic battery, the supposed corpse, with a countenance most borribly contorted, sprung up and seized the Professor by the gown, and then fell back quiescent., A glance of horror and recognition seemed to pass between the "aubject" and the Professor. He, as if stuck by light ning staggered back, with a loud cry, or rather shrick, and stood, in an attitude of despair and wild terror, gazing vacantly into the air. Before we could recover form our terror and de we looked at the body; the muscles of the face were working-those of the limbs were twiching convulsively, and yet, as after investigation proved, it was dead. Why it should have made this strange manifestation is not to be resolved into a matter of certainty. One of the physicians connected with the institution says that he has witnessed the same phenomena among the bodies of those who died suddenly in fits, as well as of those who were slain by cholera. Heaven only knows the reason of the terrific and curious demonstration! But the strangest part of my story remains o be told.

We naturally supposed that the Professo wooned from fright. We applied restoratives, and finally he exhibited indications of conscious ness. We explained to him that the show of life given by the poor, faded form upon the table was purely spasmodic, and fallacious, but he incredulously shook his head, muttered, "it was the hand of God," and relapsed into insensibility. A second time we restored him to his senses, and his first words wores "Remove the subject! Hide it from my sight!" and then, as if again horror-stricken, he fell into violent convulsions. We remained near him until he seemed to have recovered from the effects of the seene and be left in charge of one watcher. Before we retired, however, the explanation of the Professor's extreme affright at the scene of horror was made. The revelation (for such it was) was given under a pledge of secrecy—a pledge extorted from me by the surrounding circumstances. The corpse an unenviable notoriety among horse-jockeys, gamblers; and the victims of profligacy generally he gradually sank into the mire of degradation until he became a dweller in a den of thieves well known to the police. Here he was seized with disease, and deprived of his acoustomed strong potations ; delirium tremens was the conseque condemned to the State's prison. Before reaching there, however, he was to all appearance dead, veyor of "subjects," and so brought to our dissecting room. The college (in which we do not reside) is for the present closed. The remains which greated ted to rule and direct its parrounge they can at the horrified vision of the Professor; which their option overthrow its power, and build up sprang from the same loins as his own body; another party on its roles. We all esmember which he had often enfolded in his arms; and in Gen. Duff Green, who foolishly supposed that it the integrity of the heart that animated which was his puisant power that elected Gen. Jackhe had open placed the firmest reliance, were son to the Presidency, and who, presuming upon silently placed in a neat coffin, and deposited, this silly concest, undertook to direct the old here of resurrection, in a secluded spot in-

I have no excuse to offer for making this aw. tion of any one, Duff Green determined to take a ful affair public, other than that the terrible im-pression I received haunts me continually, and once, and rear up in its stead one which would be this seems to be a good way of partially relieving my mind of it. I intend to quit the "profession," to his dictation. The result of this silly effort is ceasful practice. The cause of the Professor's present dangerous lness, which has been guardedly alluded to by the press, is hereby explained.

THE FATE OF TRAITORS.

Those who have mingled in the political contests of the country for the last thirty years, can not have forgotten the fate of sundry individuals who once stood prominently in the ranks of the Democracy, but who having turned traiterite their principles and their party sunk into obscurity and neglect. The fate of these men might have served as a warning to aspiring politicians of after days, who, in their inordinate estimate of their own abilities, imagine the success of the Democracy depend upon them and that if they are not permitnot to be disturbed again, I hope, until the day how to dispense the patronage of the office. Formey imagines that it was his mighty influence that made Mr. Buchanan President .--Thus thinking, he had a supposed right to select his own position, and be consulted about all others. Mr. Buchanan, like Gen. Jackson, deterestablished a Press, to beat down the Administhat old and sterling Democrat of Pennsylvania,
