We predict that the Philadelphia merchants will discover ere long that the system they have succeeded in effecting will not work to their advantage or benefit: on the contrary the trade will necessarily divert itself to other cities, and besides this such a feeling will thereby be engendered in the country of hostility against Phil. adelphia as cannot but soon become apparent from the nature of the case, and which will require years to eradicate and remove. The axe will have effectually to be applied to the root of the evil. and this it is to be hoped will be done by our next Legislature soon after it has assembled by the enactment of salutary laws for the protection of the Country

> Recently (says the Table Talk) an article ippeared, intimating that John Howard Payne was not the author of the touching song, " Sweet Home," which forms a part of one of his operas. The authorship was ascribed to Washington Irvving, who it is well known, was a personal friend of Payne. In order that no doubt might, rest upon so interesting a question, at a time when some effort is being made to ereat a monument. ome effort is being made to erect a monument to the memory of the gifted Payne, we addressed a note to Mr. Irving, which has elicited the following reply—"Sunnyside, July 3, 1858. To the Editor.—Dear Sir: In veply to your inquiry, I dssure you that I did not write the words of 'Sweet Home! I have always considered the fate John Howard Payne to be the mittor of that very popular song; and am still of that belief. Yours very sincerely, Washington Irving." You are the fust conductor I have seed agwin about among a passel of decent wimmin folks in his shirttait! Ain't you 'shamed over yourself?" He probably was, for he left that car quickly, and unbuttoned the shirt-tail coat.

> VANITAS VANITATEM.—The Boston papers are chronicling the death of an old man in that city, named Francis, who, after a long life of penuriusness and note-shaving, left a fortune of four millions of dollars. The sum is not altogether ontemptible, but in these days of millionaires it is not startling, and as the result of nearly eighty. three years devoted to money getting, the game seems hardly worth the candle. This poor old man, before he died, was considered the richest individual in Massachusetts.

It is estimated that full 30,000 head will be packed at that point this scason. A LANCA STER DUELIST .- A letter to the Laneaster Examiner from Memphis, Tennessee, states that a ducl was recently fought near that city between Mr. Walters, of Virginia, and Dr. J. E. Nagle, formerly of this county, a young man well known here, and who has many relatives residing in this county. He studied his profession under Dr. Zeigler, after which he removed to the Southwest. The two principals to the affair had been secretly arranging the preliminaries to a hostile accting for some time past, and on Sunday morning, without any suspicions being excited, they met on the island above the city, and without any witness but their seconds, fought one of the bloodiest duels on record. Shey fired two rounds with Derringer pistols, both being wounded at each fire. They then, by agreement, resorted to revolvers, and continued the fight. Mr. Watters was riddled at every shot, and it is said died on Sunday night. Dr. Nagle was so badly wounded that his recovery is thought impossible. He was taken on a boat, on Sunday night, to Missouri, friends .- Lancaster Express.
