THE CRADLE SONG OF THE POOR.

Hush! I cannot bear to see thee Stretch thy hands in vain; I have got no bread to give thee, Nothing, child, to case thy pain. When God sent thee first to bless me. Proud, and thankful too, was I; Now, my darling, I, thy mother, Almost long to see thee die. Sleep, my darling, thou art weary ; God is good, but life is dreary:

I have watched thy beauty fading, And thy strength sink day by day; Soon, I knew, will want and fever Take thy little life away. Famine makes thy father reckless, Hope has left both him and me, We could suffer all, my haby, Had we but a crust for thee, Sleep, my darling, thou art weary; God is good, but life is dreary.

Better thou should'st perish early; Starve as soon my darling one, Than live to want, to sin, to struggle Vainly still, as I have done. Better that thy angle spirit, With my joy, my neace were flown, Than thy heart grow cold and caroless, Reckless, hopeless, like my own. Sleep, my darling, thou art weary;

God is good, but life is dreary. I am wasted, dear, with hunger, And my brain is all opprest, I have scarcely strength to press thee, Wan and feeble, to my breast. Patience, baby, God will help us, Death will come to thee.and me.

Where no want or pain can be. Sleep, my darling, thou art weary; God is good, but life is dreary.

Did we listen, we might hear, Close beside us-but the thunder Of a city dulls our ear. Every heart, like God's bright angel, -Can bid one such sorrow cease; God has glory when his children Bring his poor ones joy and peacel

The first of the series occurred on the route between Vera Cruz and the City of Mexico. In the regular dilligencia running between the places just mentioned, I had taken passage, and had passed through the beautiful city of Jalapa, and entered the gloomy town of Perote, without meeting with any unusual incident, though being continually warned to be on my guard against the danger of the Road.
