Our readers have all heard the saying that "nine tailors make one man," possibly, however, some of them would like to know the origin of the saying...

In 1742, an orphan beggar boy applied for alms at a tailor's shop in London, in which nine journeymen were employed...

With this capital, the young man purchased fruit, which he sold at a profit. From this beginning, industry and perseverance rose to distinction and usefulness...

A CAUTION TO YOUNG MEN IN SEARCH OF WIVES.—A young medical student from Michigan who had been attending lectures in New York for some time, and considering himself exceedingly good looking and fascinating, made a deadly on-on-the-heart and fortune of a blooming young lady who was boarding in the same house with him...

After a prolonged siege the lady surrendered. The same afternoon the young wife sent for and exhibited to the astonished student a beautiful little daughter three and a half year of age.

"Good heavens! then you were a widow," exclaimed the student. "Yes, my dear, and this is Amelia, my youngest. To-morrow, Augustus, James and Reuben will arrive from the country, and then I shall have all my children together again once more."

The unhappy student replied not a word; his feelings were too deep for utterance. The next day the other party arrived. Reuben was six years old, James nine, and Augustus a stately boy of twelve. They were delighted to hear that he had a "new pup," because they could live at home, and have all the playthings wanted.

The new pup, as soon as he could speak remarked that Augustus and James did not much resemble Reuben and Amelia.

"Well, no," said the happy mother. "My first husband was quite a different style of man from my second. His complexion, his temperament, the color of his hair and eyes—were all different."

"This was too much. He not only married a widow, but was her third husband, and the astonished step-father of four fine healthy children."

"But her fortune," thought he, "that will make amends." "These are my treasures," she said in the Roman matron style, pointing to her children.

The conceit was quite taken out of Michigander, who, finding that he had made a complete goose of himself, at once retired to a farm in his native State, where he could have a chance to render his boys useful, and make them sweat for the deceit practiced upon him by their mother.

"The tongue," said the tongue of the wise is health. "A wholesome tongue is a tree of life, and a sharp razor, working deceitfully."

"The tongue can no man tame; it is an unruly evil, full of deadly poison." "Death and life are in the power of the tongue; and they that love it shall eat of the fruit of it."

"The words of a talebearer are as wounds, they go down into the inner-most parts of the belly." "Which tongue have you?"

"Oh," said a little girl, bursting into tears on hearing of the death of a playmate, "I did not know that was the last time I had to speak kind to Amy."

"The last time they were together she spoke cross to her, and the thought of that last cross word now lay heavy on her heart."

"This suggests a good rule about kind words. Speak kindly to your father, or your mother, or your sister, or your playmate, or your teacher, or the poor, when you are speaking, lest it may be your last time to speak to them. Cross words are very, very sorrowful to think of."
