the most indubitable evidence of the virtues of this wonderful medicine.

Sworn statement of David M'Creary, of Napier Township, Bedford county:

In April, 1856, as near as I can remember, a small pinple made its appearance on my lip, which soon became enlarged and sore. I used poultides of sorrel, and wash of blue vitrol, without effects. Finding the sore extending, I called on Dr. Ely, of Schellsburg, who pronounced it Cancer, and prescribed a wash of sugar of lead, and bread poultices. Finding these remedies of no avail, I called upon Dr. Shaffer, of Davidville, Sonieriest county, who also pronounced the disease (Cancer, and gave me internal and external remidles—the lattic consisting principally of caustic; tut all to no purpose, as the disease continued sprending toward the nose. I next used a preparation of arsenic, in the form of salve. This for a time chacked the disease, but the inflammation soon increased. I next called upon Ur. Staffer, of. St. Clairsville, Bedford county, who also pron unced the disease Cancer, and applied a salve said to be a never falling remedy, but it had no effect whatever in checking the spread of thig sore. In December, of the same year, the disease, had eaten away a greater part of my uppor lip, and had attacked the nose, when I went to Cincinnati, where I consulted Prof. R. S. Newton, of the Electic Medical Gollege. He pronounced the disease "a cutaneous Cancer, superinduced by an inordinate asse of mercury." He applied mild zinc ointment, and agave me factornal remedies. My face healed up but the inflammation was not thoroughly removed. In February, 1857, the prohounced me cured, and I left for home. In April the disease egain rotunned, and so violent was the pain that I could not rest at night! Late in May I returned to Cincinnati, and again placed myself under the charge of Dr. Newton, with whom I remained until September during which time he used every known remedy, and particulated my left eye. I lind given up all hope of ever being cured, with whom I remained until Se last seven years. Although my face is saily disfigured I am still grateful to a benign Providence who has spar ed my life, and which has been done through the instru

CONTENT A man in his carriage was riding along, A gally dressed wife by his side; In satins and laces she looked like a queen, And be like a king it his pride.

A wood sawyer stood on the street as he passed; The carriage and couple he eyed, And said as he worked with his saw on a leg, "I wish I were rich and could ride."

The man in the carriage remarked to his wife,
"One, thing I would do if thould."
I'd g lye all my realth for the strength and the nealth Of the man who saweth the wood." A pretty young maid with a bundle of work ..

Went tripping along with a smile of delight, While humming a love breathing air. She looked on the carriage: the lady she saw. Arrayed in apparel so fine,
And said in a whisper, 'I wish from my heart,
Those sating and laces were mine." The lady looked out on the maid with her work, So fair in her calico dress,

Whose face as the morning was fair.

And said, "I'd relinquish possessions and wealth, Her beauty and wealth to possess." Thus it is, in this world, whatever, our lot, Our minds and our time to employ, In longing and sighing for what we have not. Ungrateful for what we enjoy.

We welcome the pleasures for which we have sigher The heart has a void in it still, Growing deeper and wider the longer we live. That nothing but heaven can fill.

THE MERRY HEART.

"I would not from the wise require The lumber of their learned lors : I would not from the rich desire A ringle counter of their store
 For I have ease, and I have health, And I have spirits—light as air, And more than wisdom, more than wealth— A merry heart that laughs at care."

Like other mortals of my kind, I've struggled for Dame Fortune's favor; And sometimes have been half inclined To rate her for her ill behaviour. But life was short-I thought it folly · To lose its moments in despair, So slipp'd asid , from melancholy,

With merry heart, and laugh'd at care. And once, 'tis true, two 'witching eyes Surprised me in a luckless season; Turn'd all my mirth to lonely sighs, And quite subdued my better reason. Yet 'twas but love could make me grieve, And love, you know, 's a reason fair; And much improv'd, as I believe,

The merry heart, that laugh'd at oare. So now from idle wishes clear, I make the good I may not find; Adown the stream I gently steer, And shift my sail with every wind. And half my nature, half my reason, Can still with pliant heart prepare The mind, attuned to every season, ...

Ye social feelings of the mind; Give, sometimes give, your Sunday gleam, And let the rost good humor find. Yes-let me hail and give To every joy my lot may share; And pleased and pleasing let me live With merry heart, that laughs at care.

THE BROKEN-HEARTED: OR, CRIME ITS OWN AVENGER.

A Leaf from a well-known History.

Sandusky, Ohio, fled from the country, taking with him about $40,000 dollars of the peoples' money, and the young and beautiful wife and child of a friend and neighbor. Recently the husband received a letter from Case, written in the far East Indies, announcing the decease of the unhappy woman who had accompanied his flight, and implored the foregiveness of her husband. Under the title we have given above, a missionary correspondent of the Boston Watchman and Reflector describes an interview with the guilty pair, which took place shortly before death hurried away the mother and the child whom she had nade the companion of her wanderings. The subject is a painful one but the writer describes so feelingly and truthfully the self-inflicted m sery of Case and his partner in guilt, that we reproduce his narrative :--].

AN ITEM POR. OUR LADY READERS .- The Paris correspondent of the North American says, in that gay city, were fashions originate,"the most fashionable bonnets are made of terry velvet, with a scarf and trimmings of plain velvet, and decorated with birds or feathers. We also see bonnets composed of white crape, covered with black tulle and lace, and bright colored volvet. The crown is of crape; the curtain and front of the bonnet of velvet. Crape is not certainly an appropriate material for the month of January, excepting in a ball room, and yet it is now worn, even in walking, as a morning bonnet. Day dresses are still made with a deep flounce, headed with a puffing, or with several narrow flounces. Wajsts are generally round, with a wide scarf such, bordered with lace or with fringe, or else a waistband, without ends, fastened by a gold, or silver or steel buckle. Very small lappets are still in vogue; they are cut in points, and bordered with lace, Satin, both "Perhaps you have suspected them," he said. black and colored, is much used again as a material for robes. Two skirts, richly trimmed with fringe or lace, is the usual style of these dresses. The correspe sometimes open, with a plastron of talle puffings and lace trimmings.
