and disorders are nipped in the bud. Multitudes can, by the aid of this remedy, spare themselves from the endurance of foul eraptions and olcrons sores, through which the system will strive to rid itself of corruptions, if not assisted to do this through the natural channels of the body by an after attree medicine. Cleans out the vitiated blood whenever you finds its impurities bursting through the skin in pimples, cruptions, or sores; cleanse it when you find it is obstructed and sluggish in the veins; cleanse it whenever it is foul, and your feelings will tell you when. Even where no particibur disore is felt, people enjoy better health, and live longer, for cleaning the blood. Keep the blood healthy, and all is well; but with this pabulum of life disordered, there can be no lasting health. Somer or later something must go wrong, and the great machinery of life is disordered or overthrown.

Sarsaparilla has, and deserves much, the reputation, of accomplishing these ends. But the world has been agregiously deceived by preparations of it, partly because the drug alone has not all the virtue that is claimof for it, but more because many preparations, pretending to be concentrated extracts of it, contain but little virtue of Sarsaparilla, or anything else.

During late years the public have been misled by large bottles, pretending to give a quart of extract of Sarsaparilla for one do.lar. Most of these have been frands upon the sick, for they not only contain little, if any, Sarsaparilla, but often no curative properties whatever. Hence, bitter and painful disappointment has followed the use of the various extracts of Sarsaparilla

Still we call this compound Sarsaparilla, and intend to supply such a remedy as shall rescue the name from the load of obliquy which rests upon it.—And we think we have ground for believing it has virtues which are irresistible by the ordinary run of the diseases it is intended to cure. The boat landed, after twenty minutes of rapid progress, at a small wharf near the Galeta, in the western part of the town. The arrival was certainly witnessed, but not a great deal of attention was bestowed upon it by the stupid Algerines. Leaving part of his men in the cutter, with orders for them to lie low under the wharf, Lieut. Stewart and the remainder of his force followed the footsteps of Mr. Collins, who led the way rapidly up the intervening streets. On arriving at his late prison, an old dingy looking structure, extremely spacious, having all the looseness of the Moorish style, the party discovered that silence and darkness were deserted. The agony of the father was extreme. "Oh, my child! my child! he cried, no longer able to control the terrible emotions which had been surging in his soul during the fast hour; "shall I never see the more?"

A Moorish slave came around from the rear of the building, and assured his late fellow captive that the girl had been carried off by the master, and that no one was at home save himself. But even as the lying rascaluttered the concluding words, a wild shrick resounded throughout the chambers, and the next moment a beautiful girl of seventeen summers appeared at one of the front windows, looking like a spectre in her garments of spotless white .v = '

Stewart and his men. It was also at the same moment that the old Moor. who had so long considered himself the proprietor of Mr. Collins and his daughter came to the window through which the girl had just passed, and set up a startling yell.

"This way !" cried Mr. Collins, and he dashed open the front door of the building and conducted the entire party within. "Look to your weapons, and take the rascals off their pins the moment they halt!"

A sharp and determined struggle soon commenced, and in the course of which half the Moorish soldiers were killed, and the remainder finally gave ed all their ammunition, and only a written on his features and flashing from his eyes. This sudden arrival decided the destination of the last bulleta
