LAST HEADSMAN IN GREECE. He was a Frenchman by the name of Carripeze, and had been reduced by misfortune, the details of which I do not now recollect, from a respectable station in society to the greatest poverty. which he had the anguish of sharing with his beautiful wife and two young daughters. He consented to be instruct. ed in the headman's horrible art, and to place himself at the service of the Greek government, on condition that not only his true employment was to be kept secret from those who would wreak their vengeance on him, but that it was also to be strictly concealed from his own to be strictly concealed from his own family. It was agreed that he should take up his abode at Engina, and work regularly as a mechanic, in order to 'avoid all suspicion of his real trade.— the cases. Rooms opened from 8 A. M., to 4 o'clock, P. M. Among the islanders, the headsman and his family were received with the most Soon they became well known and great. Great Stock of Spring Goods ly beloved in the island, and one of the young girls was married to the son of the principal proprietor in the place. For a considerable period his services were not required; but his inexorable destiny overtook him at last. A crime was committed too revolting to pass unpunished. A man was poisoned by his wife; she was tried and condemned, and a ship of war dispatched with the officers of justice to Egina, to convey Carripeze to the island of Santarin; where the sentence was to be executed. When they arrived at Egina, the whole population hurried down to the beach to ascertain the cause of so unusual a visit as that of a government vessel. The officers having landed, asked to be directed to the house of the public executioner. The islanders answered by laughing them to scorn, and declaring they had harbored no such character among them. The commanding officer with a smile, inquired if they did not know a certain Carripeze, and with considerable difficulty succeeding in con--vincing them that the man they loved and respected was, indeed, the common "bourreau." As the conviction forced itself upon them, one long, loud shout of fierce anthemas rose with the name of Carripeze through the air. Their borror at having lived on such friendly "bourreau." As the conviction forced horror at having lived on such friendly terms with him is not to be told. "I shook his hand-his blood stained hand-this very morning, as if he had been my brother !" exclaimed one.

"He lifted my poor child in his arms" and kiesed it !" shricked a woman. "But I," exclaimed a young man positively tearing his hair, "I have taken

"But 1," exclatined a young man pos-itively tearing his hair, "I have taken his daughter to be the wife of my bos-om, and the blood of the headsman is flowing in the veins of my children !" Thus lamenting and cursing, the na-tives followed the officer to the house of the executioner. He was not there at the moment; and when they asked for him by that title, his wife, with horror in her looks, passionately denied that her beloved husband had any claim to it, that the people of Egina began to doubt once more. Just then Carripcze binself appeared. He saw at a glance what was going forward; he knew his doom, and, without a murmur, signified to the officers his readiness to accompa ny them. They surrounded him with a strong guard—otherwise the populace would have torn him to pieces. They took him away—that miserable servant

ising, Bedford county: In April, 1856, is a near as I can remember, a small pimple made its appearance on my lip, which soon be-came enlarged and sore. I used poultices of sorrel, and wash of blue vitrol, without effect. Finding the sore extending, I called on Dr. Ely, of Schellsburg, who pro-nounced it CANCER, and prescribed a wash of sugar of lead and bread poultices. Finding these remodies of no avail, I called unpo Dr. Shafler, of Davidville, Sofner#et county, who also pronounced the disease Cancer, and gave me internal and external remidies—the latter con-sisting principally caustici j ut all to no purpose, to the discuse continued spreading toward the nose. I next used a preparation, of arsenic, in the form of salve. This for a time checked the disease, but the inflammation soon increased. I next called upon Dr. Statler, of St. Clairs ville, Bedford county, who also pronounced the disease cancer, and applied a salve said to be a never failing remedy, but it hadno effect-whatever in checking the proad of the sore. In December, of the same year, the disease had eaten away a greater part of my upper lip, and had attacked the nose, when I went to Cincinnati. where I consulted Prof. R. S. Newton, ot the Electu Medical College. He pronounced the disease "acutane-ois Cancer, superinduced by an inordinato use of mer-cury." took him away-that miserable servant of public Justice! His task was soon performed; it was, perhaps, all the easher for the extraordinary conduct of the prisoner herself. His task performed, Carripeze returned to Engina to his home. The same powerful guard was in requisition to conduct him to his house, and for greater security they landed at night, for they knew that henceforward the life of Carripeze must hang upon a thread, unless he could shield himself from the certain vengeance of the people of Egina.

When he arrived at the door of his house-his only refuge-the miscrable The Monthly Magazines, man found it closed against him. With in, there was a sound of weeping and praying; but the wife he had deceived so long-whose love seemed to have turned to loathing-persisted in shutting him out from her house, as utterly as she had driven him from her heart. It was in vain be expostulated. But the It was in vain he expostulated. But the fact of his arrival had become known, and already the infuriated population might be seen rushing towards him in resistless numbers. He called out to his wife that his life's blood was about his wife that his life's blood was about to stain her very threshold, then her heart melted towards the father of her children. She opened the door, and he darted in, whilst the multitude raged around his stronghold, which they were only prevented from burning to the ground by the wish to save his innocent family.

One moonless night, when it was ve-One moonless night, when it was ver-ry dark, he stole out of his once dear home, where his presence was a curse, and went to breathe the fresh air on the beach. He had not advanced a bundred yards when he fell prostrate to the ground shot rightthrough the heart, with no sure an aim that he was dead before the shout of exultation, which followed his sudden fall had burst from the lips of his avengers. The people had taken it in turns to lie in wait for him behind a certain lofty cypress tree close to his hourset and the voung men beneath house; and the young men beneath whose bullets he fell, considered themselves most fortunate in having been the chosen of destiny for the execution of their purpose. Such was the fate of the last headsman of Greece, for 1 am not aware that any such functionary now exists there.
