Crawling under the wood-shed, he had excavated a hole large enough to creep into down to the first wall.-There it was enlarged so that he could stand up with ease, and work with convenience. He had penetrated through the first wall, moving stones which would weigh 800 lbs. Eight holes were drilled in the second wall, which by the aid of a jack-screw, he had intended to force in. Many and costly tools were found in the hole. A GOOD ANECDOTE.

At last on the third day they came to a ferry, kept by a huge double fisted man who had never been licked in his life. Whilst crossing the river, Gardner, as usual, began to find fault and "blow." The ferryman naturally got mad, threw things around kind o'loose, and told them his opinion of their kind. Gardner then turned to his friend "from the shoulder," and gently broke the intelligence to him, "that he was sorry, but it was absobut there was no help for it. So when PHOTOGHAPHS.
