NEW BELL. - We noticed vesterday morning swinging in front of Kelker's hardware store a splendid new bell, weighing twelve hundred pounds, intended for St. John's Reformed congregation, of Lebanen, who have recently eracted in that place a handsome brown stone church building. The bell was manufactured at the colebrated establishment of A. Meneely & Son, West Troy, New York, and gives a remarkably clear tone. It has the following inscriptions on opposite sides: "Beloved, if God so loved us, we ought also to love one another."-"Mencely's, West Troy; Donated by Rudolph F. Kelker, Immanuel M. Kelker, and Henry A. Kelker, of Harrisburg, to St. John's church, of Lebanon, Pa., A. D. 1859."-Harrisburg Patriot.

After an almost continuous spell of delightful weather through the month of Norember, a high wind set in on Friday evening, , the 2d inst., which cast a wintry shade over Saturday. A slight fall of rain was changed, on Saturday night, to hail, and on Sunday morning the ground was covered with white. The merry jingle of several sleigh bells speedily inaugurated the dreaty monarch of winter, under whose reign, for the next two or three months, there will be revelry and riot, auffering and wee, and some pleasure and happiness.r., Would, the latter would cover up or absorb the former.

On Tuesday of last week, a delapidated individual, who answers to the name of Benjamin Boyer, assaulted the little express engine "Arlei," while pussing over the Lobanon Valley Railroad, about four miles from Harrisbung. He threw a large place of fence rail, bit-'ting Mr. Miller, the engineer, on the log, cutting a hole through his boot. He was captured, tak-ed to Libanou, and placed in charge of officer Rodabaugh, of Harrisburg, who happened to be here, and taken back to Harrisburg in the even- is estimated at twenty-seven thousand pounds ing train, and committed to prison. It is supposed that he is insane.

The association for the detection of fence rail thieves, met on Saturday evening. at the public house of Mrs. Rise. Mr. M. Lousor, was called to the chair, and Dr. D. B. Marshall, Secretary. The constitution was presented by the committee, and unanimously adopted. The Society then went into an election for permanent officers, which resulted as follows:-President, Josoph Karch, Secretary, Dr. Cyrus D. Gloninger, Treasurer, D. M. Karmany. DEATH OF JOHN O. ROCKAFELLOW, Esq .- The Harrisburg papers announce the sudden death of John O. Rockafellow, Esq., which occurred at Omit's Hotel, in that place, on last Sunday night about 11 c'clock. While laboring under an attack of night mare he jumped through his chamber window, on the third story of the State Capitol Hotel, and falling on the brick pavement below, was almost instantly killed .-R. was, in his time, one of the most extensive railroad contractors in this country, having assisted in constructing the greater part of the leading public improvements in this State, as well as those of New York. Prior to his death he had a large contract in Virginia. The last work he sugaged in this State was the enlargement of the Union Canal, as a member of the arm of "Kupp, Rockafellow & Co." His remains were taken to Lewisburg, Pa., where his relatives reside, for interment.

RESPONSIBILITY of TEACHERS. From childhood to old age, life overflows with duties. Not a year, not a week, not even a day but that some stern reality presents itself, and at our hands demands action. Whether we act in accordance or not, we see the beacon light, and bear the warning voice, -- the one shining in up-on our darkened paths, the other bidding us fol-

10w on. "But the present age of "first men" and "fast hared," may are apt to forgot that they have duried per but they have duried per but have duried per but have duried to the fathful execution of which they are held responsible. There is too much of the "eye for an eye and tooth for a tooth" system.

What a mighty rush there is after riches! what a scrambling for wealth! and wo unto the t man who stumbles and falls in the growd; for as no one wishes to be his "brother's keeper" he is run The book of conscience, in which are inscrib-

In no other department of business, in which mankind engage, are they clothed with greater responsibility than in the profession of school teaching. But how humentable the fact that many, oh! how many enter the school-room without riving ranger for that the the school-room without ny, oh! how many enter the school-room without giving proper forethought to the magnitude of their work without preparing themselves to meet its responsibilities, giving little heed to the manner and means by which they are to educate their pupils. They forget that they are engaged in moulding character, laying foundations of giant structures and intellects, and in shaping the future destiny of man. How often do we see a young man stand before a company of worther ture destiny of man. How often do we see a young man stand before a company of youths;—he calls hipself a Public School Teacher,—the world recognizes him as such. We wait to listen and hear the vulgar word, the bar-room phrase, the bissphemous onth, yea, he hesitates not to take the name of God in va.r. His breath is polluted with strong drink. We see him sip the utforwing how!" "flowing bowl" even to intoxication, and manage skillfully the "figured paste board," even about the card table of his own school-ross. A fact more sad, is not connected with the past history more sad, is not connected with the past history of our common schools. Do such young men mean to account for what may be the result of their labors? Do they hope to teach aright their native language, when theirs is thus defiled with obscenity and profanity? Do they hope to teach reverence for the Creator, that Great Teacher above, when they thus use His name in jest, and anger? Do they think to teach aright by blowing science through the necks of a rum bottle or whister in with an excited brain and trappling key jug, with an excited brain and trembling nerves? Do they think to impurt knowledge in a proper manner, when it is o erlaid, underlaid, and inlaid with tobacer leaves and tobaceo smoke? Do they hope to build up a Franklin or a Newton structure with four packs of "jacks" for corner-stones? Mistaken men! see from the school-room, and no longer blot the noble professume, involves a much greater responsibility than some apprehend. How many are impressed with the erroneous idea that if they only can read, write, and solve ordinary problems, they can teach school? without baving any knowledge of the other branches required to be taught.

But I rejoice to know that there is another class of teachers—another class, who look not to their business as a work of a play day;—to this class I trust all those who are so lively and earnestly engaged in holding District Associations for self-improvement. Among this class Cornwall is not far behind. Fellow Teachers, let us strive not far behind. Fellow Teachers, let us strive by all methods within our payer to prepare our selves so as to except our his payer to prepare our selves so as to except our his payer to hook upon the structure years, fear to look upon the structures we have erected. Teachers are, to a great extent, responsible for the education of their pupils. Unlished most of them may one else. It is true, many learn much at home, but I think that the most of them have to depend entirely on the school-room instruction for an education. To do justice, therefore, to the pupil thus given over to justice, therefore, to the pupil thus given over to his or her charge, the teacher should be educated, thoroughly educated, in all such branches as be or she may be required to tench. But the giant secret lies further on. The concented light may burn as brilliantly as ever, yet all is darkness around—there may be an abundance on one side of the river, while on the other side the hungry starve. So with the teacher, he many have his head full of knowledge, yet his pupils grow up in ignorance around him.

The school, in itself, is a miniature world. All classes of society, and all conditions of life, have representatives there—the good and the bad, the wise and the ignorant, the active, and the sloth-ful, the virtuous and the victious, the witty and the foolish, the deformed and the beautiful, the gny the sad, are all there gathered together for instruction. The way and means necessary to instruct one Accidents, diseases, and old age, soon hurry our wise men off the stage of action. Bacon, Newton, Franklin, Webster, and a host of others have all finished. Webster, and a host of others have all finished. Not the like will our wise men off the stage of action. Bacon, Newton, Franklin. Webster, and a host of others have all finished their earthly career and died. Worcester, Morse, Nott, Page, and the like, will too, soon yeald up their places of trust and go hence. Teachers, it is our privilege, yea, it is our duty, bound upon us by obligation, to propare minds to fill their places; to train up intellects to traverse the highways of greatness, of distinction, and of honor. The chinge Street, and the propagation of the street, and the street of the Some of the Republicans shed a great many crocodile tears last week, on account of the execution of the murdarer Brown. Without our labor, governments must go to de-cay; to hope for an advancement in the arts and sciences, without exertion, would be useless. Our olleges and seminaries look to us for support knowing full well that their pupils must first be ours. In short the whole intellectful world is looking to us for assistance, and will hold us responsible for the faithful performance of our duties. A TEACHER.
