

ROSE ELMER;

A DIVIDED HEART AND A DIVIDED LIFE. BY MRS. SOUTHWORTH.

It was early on the morning of a lovely day in June, A. B. Hastings gathered in front of the Elberidge Arms, a quiet old tavern, in the English little town of Swinburne, in the west of England. It was evident that some event of unusual importance was expected to come off.

He had the cottage furnished, and was that morning to meet Rose there, where they had last seen each other, by appointment. Rose came at last, and as she stepped from the carriage, she looked so beautiful, so fresh, so young, so full of life, that the intruding lover sat at work to persuade her to consent to a secret marriage.

Perhaps the next best speech that has been made in Congress on Popular Sovereignty after Senator Douglas, was made by Eli Thayer, a Republican member from Massachusetts.

The tariff resolution of the Chicago convention is very much like the weather: was two weeks ago foggy, cloudy, muddy, hard to understand, rather cool, and generally unacceptable.

The Philadelphia Inquirer of Friday, 14th inst., has a very interesting article on the Chicago Convention, and the race is ours.

The Pennsylvania members are frequently treated very cavalierly in Congress by their political brethren. Whenever the Tariff is mentioned it is made the signal for fun, the Republicans from the New England States terming it the "Pennsylvania Nigger."

Lincoln, the Republican candidate for President, was a member of Congress in 1846, and opposed the Mexican war so earnestly, and took side so determinedly with the enemies of his country, that, at the following election he was left at home, and could not since obtain a footing in politics until the recent convention resuscitated him.

The Japanese Embassy now visiting this government for the purpose of exchanging the ratification of the recent Treaty with Japan, were presented to the President on Thursday.

Covode's Investigating Committee has already drawn over $50,000 in stationery. As stationery is scarce, the people can readily imagine how the expenditure of Government are made so enormous.

The nomination of Lincoln by the Republicans, for the Presidency is more distasteful to the moderate men of that party than the nomination of Seward would have been.

The nomination of Hannibal Hamlin, of Maine, for the Vice Presidency, is in keeping with the practice of the opposition party.

With such candidates there is no wonder that the nominations are received coldly by the people. The papers are bound to shout, but the voters only wonder who the candidates are, and cannot take up a single heartfelt reason why they should vote for them.

The slaughter of Seward by the Chicago Convention, makes it impossible for the opposition to carry New York State.

Maryland thirty persons had gathered at Baltimore and sent delegates to the Convention. There was no party organization there, and there would be none until the Republicans had wrested the government from the hands of its present possessors.

The Convention adjourned till 5 o'clock, P. M. The Convention re-assembled at 5 o'clock, P. M. The Convention then proceeded to ballot for Vice President.

On the 1st ballot, Pennsylvania gave 11 votes for Seward; 4 for Lincoln; 47 for Cameron; 1 for McLean. On the 2d ballot Lincoln had 48; Seward, 24.

The National Committee was then announced, for the ensuing four years, upon which Pennsylvania is not represented.

On the 2d ballot, Massachusetts withdrew the name of Banks, and cast 26 votes for Hamlin. Pennsylvania withdrew the name of Gov. Reeder, and cast 51 votes for Hamlin.

The result of the second ballot was then announced, as follows: Hamlin, 364; Clay, 86; Hickman, 1.
