Choice Noetry.

PALLID BEAUTY IN SLUMBER. Little, pale face, with the dream-shadows over it, Hushed in the moonlight, peaceful, and calm, Soft stars drop dew-rells upon it, and cover it; Zephry lips kiss it with kisses of balm.

Hushed in a slumber so white and so breathless,
"Will she not waken to know of my love?
Know of my worship so holy, so deathless,
Pure as the star-blossoms dropped from above?" Wan is the moonlight, and fainter and whiter Quiver the dream-shadows over her cheek; All her free hair with the dew trembles lighter, "Will she awake to my love if I speak?"

Now her sweet dream, like a breath over roses, Melt on her lips in a tender joy smile; From its brief sorrows her warm heart reposes, Lost in a vision of love all the while.

"Awake, little maiden to love that is deeper— Love that for you is so perfectly wise; Rost your bright head on my heart little sleeper Bury my love in the depths of your eyes." A LYRICAL GEM.

The following lullaby is sufficiently tender and musical to make every woman who reads it wish for a baby o sing it to:— Como to my arms, you bewildering elf!
Let me gather you, body and soul, so myself;
Bury your spinitillant ayes and heir;
And all the glory and grace you wear;
From twinking feet to golden crown;
Deep in the folds of my crimson gown;
Clasping you closs to my bosom and heart,
A thing of my holiest being a part;
Crooning a song in the olden rhyme,
Tender and sweet as a vesper chime.

Sleep, baby-boy;
The little birds rest,
Downy and sorf,
In the mother-bird's nest;
The lambkins are safe
In the shepherd's warm fold;
The dgw-drops asleep
In the butter-cup's gold.

The violet nods
To the datay's dream;
The lily lice hushed
On the lap of the stream;
And all holy and calm,
Like motherly eyes,
The stars look down
From the silent skies.

From the silent skies Sleep, baby boy,
My birdling, my flower,
My lily, my lambkin,
My dew-drop, my dower!
While heart against heart Beats softly in time
To the murmuring flow
Of my tender old rhyme

The Providence Journal gives an account of a case of mysterious bell-ringing in that city. The ringing commenced on Thursday evening, and continued at intervals for three hours. So annoying did the ringing become, that the wire of one bell was detached, and the other bell was muffled by being completely enveloped in a napkin. The phenomenon was witnessed by several persons, who thor. oughly examined every part of the bell apparatus, but could discover no cause which tended to throw any light upon the occurrence. One gen. tleman present took hold of the knob. and held it firmly; he says there was while he held it, and that he distinctly felt a power attempting to pull 16.

As soon as he lets go, the bell would begin to move, and flew rapidly backward and forward as though some one pured, and then suddenly let go. He held the knob several times, and in avery instance with the same result. At the same time, the bell would ring by a movement communicated to the wire between the first and second director. One gentleman present attempted to seize the wire, and as soon as his hand approached it the ringing would cease, and the other bell comthe first commence ringing again.— He tried this repeatedly, and in evpassing through the varying strataof to the typhoid pneumonia, which ocin the one, and commence in the other. The same was true of other par-

Paris! dear, delightful Paris! What a gay capital it is, to be sured There, patricians as well as plebeians dance all night till broad daylight, and don't go home remarkably early in the morning. We see it stated that the last quadrille at the Empress's recent grand fancy ball commenced at 5 o'clock, A. M. At what time it closed is not stated. The belle at this ball (M'lle Errazu) was a young Mexican lady, who must have been dangerously inflammatory, for she personated Fire! The Princess Mathilde, in preparing for her appearance in the costume of an Egyptian princess, employed Giraud, an eminent artist of Paris, to paint (a bronze color) her face, arms, neck, and legs! We are not surprised to see it stated that this delightful work occupied the artist three hours, as there must have been considerable space to cover, whether the legs of the piquant princess were painted above or below 'the pregnant hinges.' At any rate, when in full costume, Mathilde is said to have seemed a living picture of the times of Sesostris or the Pharaohs.

What is more remarkable, is that while his face is as black as Egyptian darkness, his hair is perfectly white; thus form-ing a most beautiful and striking contrast. The name of the man who has undergone this remarkable transformation is Nicholas Billingsly, and he is about twenty two years of age. The affair has quite mystified the good citizens of Stewartstown, as doubtless it will all others who read or bear of t.—York Republican.
