ALL ABOUT HER HEART. I would not have their lifeless hearts-The "cold in blood," the passionless, So still, so calm, so motionless, Whose inward life is barrenness; No thrill of joy, no thrill of woe, They feel within their inmost soul; And what know they, the cold in heart, Of feelings spurning all control, Of burning l'assion's lordly sway, That knows no rule and brooks no stay. probability is that if he had stood his ground boldly his life would have been saved. Unfortunately, one of the lionsthat which is known by the name of Havelock-caught sight of his retreating figure and instantly sprang upon him. It seized him by the haunches, pulled him down and then fixed its teeth in his throat.-Death must have been almost instantaneous; but as Smith was found a good deal cut and bruised at the back of the head. t is supposed that the lion, after burying its fangs in his throat, dragged him about and dashed his head against the ground It seems, in fact to have worried him. though the wounds inflicted by the brute are neither so numerous nor so severe as might have been expected.
