The air is filled with rumors of war. It is notable, however, that scarcely a single rumor is authentic, and in nine cases out of ten the most the same breath they are uttered .-In another column we give what appears to be important, with the reservation, however, that nothing is reliable. It will also be seen, that Governor Curtin has been figuring over at Washington promising assistance and urging on war. HIGHLY IMPORTANT! SYMPTOMS OF WAR!

WARLIKE MOVEMENTS OF THE ARMY AND NAVY. GREAT ACTIVITY IN THE ARMY AND NAVY.—The news from Washington is highly important. Movements are on foot indicating the speedy development of the policy of the administration. Greater activity prevails in the army and navy than has been known since the war with Mexico. Troops have been placed on ship board with sealed orders, and the vessels of war on foreign stations have been ordered home, while at the navy yard the "New York paper," alluded to is orders have been received to make the New York Tribune, the leading ready for sea such vessels as are avail-

Our latest accounts from the capital, assert positively that the administration, yielding to the pressure of the war section of the Republican party has determined to blockade the Mississippi river, and if possible collect the revenue at that point from on board ship. The vessels of war now preparing for sea are intended to cooperate in this design.

> WARLING RUMORS .- The New York Herald's Washington correspondent, of Saturday, says:— Governor Curtin, of Pennsylvania, besides be-ing closeted with the President an hour, has had an interview to day with Secretary Cameron and General Scott, and at eleven o'clock to night had a private interview with one of General Scott's confidential officers. There is a complete and thorough understanding, although it is tacit, and to a certain extent unofficial, between the Southern Commissioners and the Lincoln Administration, that the state quo shall not be disturbed, either by the United States authorities or by the Southern Confederacy. One of the Commissioners from Montgomery has stated in the most emphatic manner, within the last twenty-four hours, that no reinforcemen could be sent to Fort Pickens or to Fort Sumpter, and that no attempt to blockade the mouth of the Mississippi, or any Southern port or harbor, for Alississippi, or any Southern port or narbor, for the purpose of collecting revenue, could be made, without such a violation of good faith and such a wanton treachery on the part of the President and his advisers as would be without a parallel in the history of any civilized nation.

Imbecile and weak as Mr. Lincoln's administration is, it is scarcely fair to accuse it of the dishalical perfidy which would be involved in breach of faith with the Southern Commissioners, and unless such perfidy is practiced, there will not be bloodshed, at least not for a while.

FURTHER RUMORS. ' WASHINGTON, April 6.—Neither the President nor any member of his Cabinet has told any one that any change has occurred in the policy of the Government. The ulmost secrecy is observed. It is inferred from the extreme activity in the movements of soldiers and officers of the army and navy, that the Administration is preparing for the worst, and will defend the Government property to the names of its children. property to the utmost of its ability.

It has been reported here that the President has Carson" excitement, more than forty years ago. The recent exhuming of the remains of Lieut. Richard Smith, at Powelton, Philadelphia, has revivdeath. They are as follows:

After the war of 1812 Smith became acquainted in Philadelphia with a dashing woman, of questionable reputation, named Ann Carson, who cent a china store at the southwest corner of Secand and Dock streets. Captain Carson, the husband of Ann, was absent from home and at sea, and two or three years clapsed without anything being heard from him. During this prolonged absence Smith and Mrs. Carson were married, her affection centred on Smith. This condition of things led to a series of quarrels, and finally to n attempt upon the part of Carson to eject Smith from the house. The latter then drew a pistol and fired, mortally wounding his antagonist .rime; but he was convicted and ultimately exe-

Between the time of the conviction of the murderer and his execution, Mrs. Carson resorted to every passible expedient to save him from the gallows. When efforts to precure a pardon from Governor Snyder by fair means failed, extraordinary schemes were resorted to for the accomplish. ment of the purpose by foul measures. One of these plans was the seizure of a son of the late John Binus, who was an intimate personal and political friend of the Governor's, and the hold ing of the boy as a hostage until a pardon could be extorted. Another scheme was to seize the Governor himself, and force him to sign a pardon under the penalty of the loss of his own life.—Plans of escape from the prison were also contrived; but all these exercions were in vain, and the murderer died miserably upon the gallows, on Saturday, August 10th, 1816. The gallows of the present time was not used on the occasion, in death being produced by the sudden jerking a-way of a cart, in which the condemned man had ridden from the Walnut-street prison to the place of execution, now Logan Square. It was repor-ted at the time, and believed by numbers, that Smith was cut down before life became extinct, placed in a warm bath, and resuscitated. In fact he poor fellow was half dead before he was swung off stimulants being given to him in large quan-tities to enable him to meet his tragic end. The execution, however, was invested with eir-cumstances of very fearful character. Smith held to the tail of the cart with his toes, when it was being drawn from under him, and when his grasp could be maintained no longer, he swung to and fro in the air, absolutely strangling to death. Mrs. Carson had him decently interred in the old graveyard which is the subject of our sketch, and she placed a neat stone over his grave. The double widow led a displute life after the of the domestic tragedy in which she had figured so prominently, and after being implicated it several crimes, she finally died miserably in a cell in the old Walnut-Street prison."

We expressed the hope that intense suffering. We expressed the hope that the younger sister, Lizzie, who was bitten at the some time that her sister was, might escape so drendful an end. Our hopes, we regret to say, bave proven delusive, and she too has met death in the same frightful manner. After watching with intense anxiety, the relatives of the child, on Sunday, saw the unmistakable symptoms of the approaching malady.

These symptoms, which were precisely similar to those of the former case, gradually increased up to last night, when the little sufferer died. Lizzie was aged between 10 and 12 years.
