THE CORNER.

LENDING TO THE LORD .- A poor man, some of whose family were sick, lived near Deacon Murray, referred to in the tract, "Worth of a Dollar." and oceasionally called at his house for a supply of milk. P One morning he came while the family were at breakfast. Mrs. Murray rose to wait upon him, but the deacon said to her, "Wait till after breakfast." She did so, "The Proprietor will pay particular attention to, and attend personally, to the receiving and delivery of all weite at observation of the man about his family and circumstances. After family worship, the deacon invited him to go out to the barn when they got into the yard with him when they got into the yard with him weith him when they got into the yard with him weith him the deacon, pointing to one of the cows, exclaimed, "There, take that cow, and drive her home." The man than ted him heartily for the cow, and started for home; but the deacon was observed to stand in mile undersighed has Removed but the deacon was observed to stand in the attitude of deep thought until the man had gone some rods. He then looked up, and called out. "Hey, bring that cow back." The man looked around, and the deacon added "Let that cow come back, and you come back too." He did so; and when he came into the yard again the deacon said, "There, take your pick out of the cows, I ain't going to lend to the Lord the poorest cow I've got."

CONFESSIONS OF A HORSE THIEF .- A few days since, says the Buffalo Commercial, the police here arrested a man who had of horse stealing, I deem it my duty to give people a little advice in regard to preventing their horses from being stolen .----First, never put a padlock on your barn :

First, never put a padlock on your barn: It is of no more use in keeping a thief out than a straw. Put on all your doors good house löcks then carry your key with you, or if you leave it in the house, put it in a drawer, or some place where it is out of sight. If a thief sees a good horse go into a barn that has a lock on with which he is not fa-miliar, he will go to the owner's house and stay all night, passing himself off as a traveler—all for the sake of getting a sight traveler-all for the sake of getting a sight sut of his barn door key.
