exercise within the House and out of the House, exercise within the House and out of the House, and in all places, in time of war, in time of peace, and at all times!" It is a right secured by the Constitution—a right inestimable to the people, and formidable to tyrafts only.

If ever there was a time when the existence and consolidation of the Democratic party upon its principles and policipwas a vital necessity to public and private liberty, it is now.

Unquestionably the Constitution in a number of the principles and consolidation of the Democratic party upon its principles and policipwas a vital necessity to public and private liberty, it is now.

Unquestionably the Constitution gives ample power to the several Departments of the Govern. ment to carry on war, strictly subject to its pro-fisions, and, in case of civil war, with perfect security to cifteens of the loyal States. Everyact necessary for the safety and efficiency of the fovernment, and for the complete and most vignous trial of its strength, is yet wholly consistent with the observance of every provision of that instrument, and of the laws in pursuance of it, if the sole motives of those in power were the suppression of the "rebellion," and no more. And yet the history of the Administration for the twalve monther set has been and continued to the twelve months past has been and continues to be A history of repeated usurpations of power and of the districtions of the Constitutions and of the public and privates rights of the citizen. For the proof we appeal to facts too recent to need recital here, and too fregrant and heinous for the calm nerrative which we propose. Similar acts were done and a like policy pursued in the threatened war with France in the time of John threstened war with France in the time of John Adams, and with the same ultimate purpose.—
But in two or three years the people forced them into an flouorable peace with France, rebuked the exclusive and abuses of power, vindicated the Constitution, and turned over the Federal Governments to the principles and policy of the Democratic party. To the "scher second thought of the people," therefore, and to the ballot box, we have semant when some in like nerti with our now appeal when again in like peril with our fathers.

"But if every Democrat' concurred in the polioy of prosecuting the war to the utter subjugation of the South and for the subversion of her State Governments with her institutions, without senting all parts of the Union except the second State Governments with her institutions, without a Convention of the States, and without an over-ture for peace, we should just as resolutely resist land, the editor of the Lutheran Observer, was the disbanding of the Democratic party. It is the only party capable of carrying on a war; it is the only party which has ever conducted a war to a successful issue, and the only party which has done it without abuse of power, without coolestation to the rights of any class of citizens, and with due regard to economy. All this it has done; all tiffs, it need be, it is able to do again. If saccess, then in a military point of view be required, the Democratic party alone can command it.

To conclude. Inviting all men, without distinction of State, section, or party, who are for the Constitution as it is and the Union as it was, to unite with us in this great work upon terms of perfect equality, we insist that—
The restoration of the Union, whether through peace or by war, demands the continued organi-* sation and success of the Democratic party;

The preservation of the Constitution demands it;
The maintenance of liberty and free democratical government demands it:

The restoration of a sound system of internal policy demands it; Economy and honesty in the public expendi-tures, now at the rate of four millions of dollars a day, demand it;

The rapid accumulation of an enormous and permanent public debt demand it—a public debt-already one thousand milions of dollars, and equal at the present rate, in three years, to England's debt of a century and a half in growth;
The heavy taxation, direct and indirect, State and Federal, already more than two hundred millions of dollars a year, eating out the substance of the people augmenting every year, demands it; Reducid wages, low prices, depassion of trade, decay of business, scarcity of work, and impendng rule on every side, demand it;

And, finally, the restoration of the concord good feeling and prosperity of fermer years, de-mands that the Democratic party shall be maintained and made victorious.

Why John, where are you going to in such a hurry?

Why, I am going to LAUBACH'S, in Market street, to buy a nice lot of Furniture. to buy a nice lot of Furniture.
Well, John, can you tell me the reason why Laubaan wells so much more Furniture and Chairs than all the Cabiact makers in Lebanon together?
Yes, John, I think I can tell that reason very plainly he has always got by far the largest and best assort ments of all kinds of Furnitures and Chairs on hand, which he also sells a great deal cheaper than any other Cabinet-maker; besides he has an excellent cushioned Furniture Wagon with which he delivers all Furniture, to be very good and advantageous reasons.

EDITOR ADVERTISER:—Thinking your numerous readers would like to hear something of the 93d, I have again been tempted to write a few lines, for their benefit.

We left Washington on the 27th of March and reached Fortress Monroe in good time, but could not land for 24 hours, owing to the crowded state of the wharves.

When we did land, on the evening of the 29th, it was at Hampton, about 4 miles from the For-tress, and immediately took up the line of march for Newport News, which we reached about 11 o'clock. As we had no tents with us, we lay down aside of our muskets, wrapped in blankets, and I, for one, slept sound until next morning. I must not forget to state, however, that each man has been furnished with a gum blanket by the Government, and these contribute greatly to our

The village of Hampton, through which we passed just as night was coming on, was, before its destruction by the Rebel General Magruder, as nice a town as I have yet seen, since leaving Pennsylvania. The buildings were all of brick, two or three stories high, and the streets were nicely laid but, meeting at right angles, and for the most part planted with shade trees, giving it quite a rural appearance. At the end of the town there was a large wharf, which the rebels had also destroyed.—Now the whole town, with the exception of a single house, is a mass of blackened and crumbling ruins. After remaining at Newport News about 10 days, we were again ordered to advance towards this place. On this tramp our Regiment occupied the extreme left of the advancing column. We marched about twelve miles the first day, when we were ordered to halt, and we filed off the road to the right, into a wood, where we bivounched for the night. In the morning we were ordered to be ready at a moment's notice, but did not get off until near evening, owing to the almost imuntil 3 o'clock in the morning, when we were again ordered to move. This time, we succeeded in getting ahead, and reached Warwick Court House, a little after survise, having made 6 miles of the worst road I ever saw, on a dark night, in less than three hours' time. A greater part of the road is what is known in unilitary parlance as, "Forduroy." Attempt place we had two miles to go in Indian file.

Of the county town of Warwick, it is needless to say much as there is nothing of its.

to say much, as there is nothing of it. The County buildings—three in number—are small, dirty looking, and badly arranged, while the prison looks more like a slave pen, than any-thing else. They are all built of brick. The remainder of the town consists of a tavern and a store, and about a dozen of large, sombre-looking trees, which appear like so many sentinels, guarding an important post.

Apropos—Of those trees, there is one that would measure at least 8 feet across the shimp, while several of them would measure more than ample evidence in the majorities you have been able always to carry with you in this county, in able always to carry with you in this county, in eyery one of the many changes in principle which you have professed since the time you were a "Henry Clay Whig." Had you continued consistent you might now have occupied a proud position along side of the patriot and statesman, J. J. Crittenden. True, the people did give you a kind of "rap over the knuckles," in other words a very decided "sauh," at the General Charles in 1861. Like good General (Like The 98d Regiment is part of Gen.

Like a good General (I believe you are only a Colonel—another example of modest merit going unrewarded,) you prepared for another contest, and in the mean time, in an article in your paper last winter, headed "Shortenings of the People," you "pitched in "pretty strong, by telling the people that those in office were not to blame for their rasenlity, but that the people who elected them were in fact as great rascale as those in office. The deserters from your ranks last fall, fearing a full exposure by one of your ability and full knowledge, suddenly "caved in,"

You editorials are full of sentences so terse and pertinent, and withal so nervous and expressive, that they deserve preservation in a more durable form than the ephsmeral pages of a newspaper. I would suggest to you the propriety of publishing in "Blue and Gold," a collection of the "sparkling apothegms" and brilliant scintillations of wisdom and genius which flow of freely.

from your pen, to enrapture and enlighten the readers of your hebdomadal.

A week or two ago you gave utterance to the mark of unusual brilliancy and of very extensive application, which I have chosen for a motte; and although I consider it as much a work to; and although I consider it as much a work of supererogation on the part of any one and an utter impossibility our my part to elucidate or properly apply any of your "select beauties" as it would be to "paint the lilly," or "gild refined gold;" yet there are circumstances and parties nearer home than either the Halls of Congress or the "Backwoods of Ohio" to which it is appropriately applicable, that I shall make the attempt even at the risk of a failure.

During the time you tried but failed to inaugurate the reign of "Torror" last year, you doubtless remember the efforts made to get up an exoltement and prejudice against some of our citioftenent and prejudice against some of our offi-zens on the false charge of disloyalty. Rumors were current on the streets of the borough which were current on the streets of the bordugh which might have died there, had you not given them a county circulation. Whether personal ill will, ignorance, or a spirit of mischief was at the root of the matter I know not, but the brilliant scintillation of your genius at the head of this letter most appropriately describes all who had any hand in the inception or propagation of those ru. mors, they were "Miserable cowards as all mischief makers are."
