THE THREE DUTCHMEN

Three Dutchmens vas comin' slong ble a house, Und a booty young witter from der winder looked ous "Shust bui up your horses, bel blitz, we'll shtop here Pring zwei hundert pretzels and a gallon of bler."

Der booty yonng witter dat lif in the house, Did hear desh drei Dutchmens when she looked herous "Plesh trive on your horzes und dravel," gays she, "You will get neider pretzels nor lager from ma."

Den to de young witter de Dutchmens did say : "Shnat bring us der pretzela, und you shall baf pay." Says she, "we is keepin' a Demperance house. Und for pretzels and lager 'tis niz cumerouse."

Says day, "we has shust de peat company Dat aver come over from old Shermany, Und if we can't get any viskey or bier, Be hanged if we're goin' to be customers here."

THE CHIVALRY.

It was during the Swedish wars of the 17th century, that, after a battle in which the enemy had been worsted, a burghe of Flensborg was about to refresh himse with a draught of beer from a small wood en bottle, when he heard the cry of wounded Swede, who, fixing his longin eyes on the beverage, exclaimed, "I an thirsty, give me to drink." Now, th burgher of Flensborg was a kind man and though he suffered greatly himself, h replied at once, "Thy need is greater that mine," and kneeling down by the side of the wounded soldier, he poured the lique into his mouth. But the treacherou Swede, taking advantage of the unarme state of his benefactor, fired his pistol a he bent down, wounding him in th shoulder.

Then the burgher sprang upon his le and, indignant, exclaimed, 'Rascal, I would have befriended you and you would mu der me in return; now I will punish you I would have given you the whole bottle but you shall only have half," and, drinl ing off one half himself, he gave the re mainder to his energy. When the new of this action came to the ears of Kin Frederick III, he ørdered the burgher in to his presence, and asked him, "Why h did not kill the rascal ?"

"Sire, " replied the man, "I could never slay a wounded enemy."

"Thou meritest to be noble." said the King, and he caused him to be created one at once, and gave him for his arms a wooden beer-bottle pierced through with an arrow; which cognizance was borne by his children after him, till the family died out.

They crowded in there like sheep.
 "At noon the firing of cannon was more distinctly heard, and later the crack of musketry told us that the rebels were very near. An officer rode along in sight of the men, waving the American colors, appealing to them to come and join therir comrades. Not a man moved—not one heeded his appeal any more than a drove of oxen would regard the sermon of a preacher. I saw an officer go up to a man and urge him to go with him to the battle. He would not. THE WASTE OF WAR. The Boston Journal has a letter from

Pittsburg Landing, dated April 26, wherein the writer says :

It is raining hard to-day. Yet as I look along the river bank I see thousands of sacks of meal and barrels of bread exposed to the rain. Near by is a quantity of mouldy coffee, wet in some former shower and poured upon the ground. Many of the sacks of meal have burst by handling, and bushels are wasted. Yesterday I noticed a teamster give a half bushel of oats to a mule. The animal ate perhaps four quarts, and the remainder was wast-ded. He had had enough oats, or, as the farmers say, he was cloyed and refused them. It is waste everywhere. No one them. It is waste everywhere. No one them. It is waste everywhere. No one hinks of economy. No one cares to save nything. So from millions of streams lows the treasure of the people.
