It is pleasant, -very pleasant. It fills the mind with beauty, glory, grandeur, life, light and love, to winder amidst the verdure of tropi-cal luxuriance, to feel your brow forever softly fanned by the perfumed kepbyrs, wafted from the eternal summer of oriental bowers; to watch amidst the groves of orange and see air and earth amidst the groves of orange and see air and earth and sea and sky teem with forms of beauty and of grace. Why, I am going to LAUBACH'S, in Market street, to buy a nice lot of Furniture.

Well, John, can you tell me the reason why LAUBAGH sells so much more Furniture and Chairs than all the Cabinet-makers in Lebanon together?

Yes, John, I think I can tell that reason very plainly he has always got by far the largest and best assort-ments of all kinds of Furniture and Chairs on hand, which he also sells a great deal cheaper than any other Cabinet-maker; besides he has an excellent cushioned Furniture Wagon with which he delivers all Furniture and Chairs sold by him, free of charge; these I think to be very good and advantageous reasons.

Clubs of 10, each copy, 30 cents,

Clubs of 20, each copy, 25."

Subscriptions after the 16th July will be taken at prices in proportion to the above.

The Campaign Aaverrisen will contain the same reading matter as the weekly ADVERTISER. The price of the subscription being low, there are but few persons in Lebanon county that cannot afforcibe take the paper during the campaign.

The ADVERTISER will advocate Democratic panciples, and the election of conservative men to Congress, believing it absolutely necessary that sound constituti al men should be chosen in order to restore the Union and preserve the Constitution. The time is at hand when the people should rebuke MADNESS and FOLLY. Rebellion against the laws and rebellion against the Constitution must be put down! We fully agree with Jo-SEPH Hour, that "Secessionism and Abolitionism must be put down-the former by the bayonet and the latter by the ballot-box !" Every voter in the land knows that the rebels and radicals are attempting to destroy our Government, each for their own reason. A "foreign bondholder" should have sent us his name and then we would have endeavored to answer his questions satisfactorily. If, however, it is a fact, as he asserts, that "the borough coupons are not paid although the Treasurer has funds in hand." those holding them should know the reason why. It may be that "the Treasurer is not instructed to pay n," if so it should be a very easy matter to obtain the necessary instructions. #### A TRIBUTE Respectfully inscribed to the Pennsylvania 93d.

Noblest of heroes! ye who stood, That fearful thirty first of May, Beside the river's raging flood, Whose swollen waters barred your way,-Who fought as only freemen could, And kept the foe at bay.

Onward ye came in fearless haste, Nor danger reck'd above, below, Plunging in water to the waist, Nor feared to breast its surging flow,-Up the opposing bank ye faced,

Then crashing deep the forest through, The vollied thunders went and came, The leaden hall in lightning flew, Riding on wings of living flame; Bearing a hundred deaths to you,

But vainly onward now ye press. New foes appear, bufore concealed; Your weaker numbers you confess. Yet, inch by inch, contest the field; Your little band grows less and less, But know not how to yield.

He was a noble mark I ween. In that fierce battle's fiercest tide. Among the foremost foemen seen; His heart the traitor marksman tried, In vain,—his Bible lay between, And turned the death aside.

But holier tears for you who lay, After the labors of the fight, To wounds and raging thirst a prey, Through all the horrors of the night,-Upturned your dying eyes for day,

No! not in vain! to you there came, Amid that wreck of broken guns, From out the night, a purer flame;— Ye saw the patriot, sainted ones Bend earthward,-call you name by name, And hall you, younger Sons!

Be yours the brightest memory That yet the ear of Fame has heard. Through Earth, the children of the free Shall bless the gallant NINETY-THIRD, And to our sons each name thall be A cherished household word.

And they, the loved, to whom we were The mother,-may it comfort her,-May it assuage the father's tear To see all Earth, one worshipper Beside each honored bier !

CITY POINT, JAMES RIVER, Va.

July 4, 1862. My DEAR PARENTS :- On this, the glorious anniversary of American independence-instead of joining in the festive socialties of a home celebration, I find myself in a woods near our Camp, engaged in the pleasant occupation of holding epistolary communion with those I love. Many changes have encroached upon the routine of performances expected by the common soldiers in our ranks. I am sorrv to acknowledge the fact, such changes as will not altogether induce us to be lieve that the intention of our late movements was purely strategic or a foregone determination with the "powers that be." To be marched, as we have been, through mud knee-deep, with the rain pouring down in torrents upon us, drenching our clothing to the very skin, and then lying down in the same elements, are necessities not calculated to elevate the military spirit, especially when such grand feats are enacted during a retrogade movement of our army; but it is not in our place to inquire into the causes of such events, and hence we will endeavor to bear the effects with as little complaint as possible. The retreat to our present location was marked by several important battles,the general accounts of which you will have read long ere this reaches you, and hence I shall limit my short account to fornwall township, had paid in on Monday $8199,61 on Our own Regiment's doings. Although frequently called out, and brought up in prospect of participating, the "93d," we believe, can only claim the honor of being in one battle since we left "Fair Oaks.-The day previous to starting, howeverwhile on picket duty on the outposts, they were fired upon,-suffering the casualty of two wounded, and while ordered by Gen. Howe, our Brigadier General, to maintain a certain position closing in upon an ugly swamp, during last Tuesday's fight, they sustained a similar loss; -among which I may class myself. We were not obliged to do any fighting, but the position was to be held; and, should the Rebels have advanced at this point, affected, eight weeks in hospital, no better, has you would have heard of a much greater Lawrence Goodman, Middleport, Schuykill loss. Thus the missiles of Death were passing to and fro, sometimes screeching along far over our heads, then falling short, now getting very near until all of a sudden I find my head drop, everything being darkness before me.-I was killed, and that I lelt happy. I was At the Chesapeake Hospital are the following only stunned, however, and, on recovering from the effects of the blow, I found the blood streaming down over my face, accompanied with an unpleasant giddiness of the head. Capt. Murray then said I had better go out and have it attended to, and, detailing a man to help me along, I left for the rear of the battle. both rest perfectly easy in regard to the matter,-not neglecting, however, to unite in thanks with me to God for so miraculously saving my life. As I passed out of the field, what a terrible sight met my gaze. Lines of batteres—one after the other were pouring showers of death into the enemy, while the latter were equally busy in sending along their replies to the same,-tearing the ground, and scattering destruction wherever they went. Regiments of soldiers were lying down awaiting "orders" to move, while ambulances and all the instruments of the battle field were in constant readiness for action. I felt very much fatigued, as we were marched out the night previous, almost to the scene of Friday's battle, and, after resting only several hours, were obliged to return again, and lie in a field till day. With the dawn of the light I arose, and, getting our little kettle and a tin plate I carry PURPOSES OF THE WAR with me, I soon managed to cook a good cup of coffee and fry some speck for our breakfast. Then I awakened Theodore, and apprised him that all was ready, and it did my heart good to see the grateful

Public Notice.

THE material of the bridges in Lebanon county, carried away by the recent flood, was necessarily scattered over a wide stretch of country along the streams. The Commissioners of the county would again ask all who have any information of said material to give notice thereof; and those who have appropriated any of it to their own use must make restitution. Blacksmiths are requested to give notice of any iron offered to them which had come from said bridges.
