How to Prepare Lint .-- As every person does not know how to prepare lint, we are requested to say that the Surgeons state that much of the lint sent is not properly prepared, and, in most cases, cannot be used. Most persons who prepare lint go to the trouble of scraping it, Agreements for the which is not only unnecessaay labor, but | for sale, the lint thus prepared can be used only in exceptional cases. The proper way to prepare it is to take old sheets, or any other articles of pure linen, old rather, preferable to new, and cut it in pieces from three to six and twelve inches in length. These pieces should then be simply unravelled, thread by thread, and laid to Call at the gether in skeins or bundles, and tied or rolled up in paper, different lengths in separate packages. The Surgeons can then roll it up in any shape wanted in a moment. When scraped lint is used in A GREAT BATTLE most wounds, it closes up the wounds, and the blood or pus uniting with it forms a hard mass, which not only irritates, but MUST HAVE CLOTHING, is difficult to remove ; while the unravell ed lint keeps the wound cool and in a healthy condition.
